Rayders knock off rivals for regional title

BY ALLEN TELGENHOF
SPORTS WRITER

Just like old times. Charlevoix against McBain in basketball regional action.

The Rayders (21-3) renewed their rivalry with McBain, defeating the Ramblers, 63-54 before a near capacity crowd, March 15 at Gaylord High School to move on to the state quarterfinals and within one game of a return trip to the Breslin Center for Class C's final four.

"It was fun," coach Keith Haske said. "I've been getting on our guys all year long about their toughness. They really won the game with toughness and grittiness and just grinded it out."

From 2001 to 2003, Charlevoix and McBain met each year in the regionals, with the Rayders prevailing in 2001 and 2003, while the Ramblers won in 2002 on their way to a state championship.

Each of those three games were close, with the Rayders winning in miracle fashion. 78-76 in 2001 on a last second Scott Parrish shot, winning 63-58 in overtime in 2003, and suffering their only loss of the season at the hands of McBain, 71-70 in 2002.

This game was no different as Charlevoix came back from an early 12-point deficit for the victory.

"It was interesting," Haske said. "Before the game I sensed we didn't have the same intensity that we came out with against St. Francis."

McBain led 21-9 with 5:47 to go in the second quarter, largely on their intense physical pressure and physical presence underneath the basket. The Rayders' inability to score also left them unable to get into their trademark full court pressure defense.

The ball finally bounced Charlevoix's way late in the first half as four McBain missed free throws helped and two three-point baskets by Nate LaBlance, keyed a 10-0 Rayder run to close the first half, slicing the lead to 23-22.

The Rayders took their first lead since a 2-0 start on a Justin Friske bucket for a 25-23 advantage but the lead changed four times and neither team led by more than three in the stanza.

Cliff Jones scored seven of the Rayders' final eight points of the third quarter, including a 3-pointer at the buzzer to give Charlevoix a 40-37 lead.

Depth became a factor in the fourth quarter as a McBain player fouled out early in the quarter and the Ramblers, using a much shorter bench than the Rayders, saw many shots fall short.

McBain took a 45-41 lead with 5:26 to go but Charlevoix's Corey Gotshall scored seven points to key a 12-2 Rayder run for a 53-47 lead with 2:57 left to play. The Ramblers cut the lead to one, 53-52, but Ty Haske – previously scoreless in the game - calmly drained eight free throws in eight attempts in the last 52 seconds of the game to salt it away.

Justin Friske led Charlevoix with 14 points. Cliff Jones, in his best game as a Rayder, scored 11.

Austin Wilhelm had 10 points and five rebounds. Gotshall scored eight points and grabbed five rebounds. LaBlance also finished with eight points. Haske dished out four assists.

Earlier in the week, the Rayders finished the season of another rival, Traverse City St. Francis, eliminating them with a convincing 67-44 win. The Rayders jumped out to a 10-2 lead, upped it to 29-15 at the half, and never looked back.

The win avenged last season's regional loss to the Gladiators that ended the Rayders' 2006 season.

Mitch Crandall led the Rayders with 16 points, five rebounds and three blocks. Wilhelm had 11 points and five rebounds. LaBlance scored 10. Gotshall contributed seven points and eight rebounds.

Charlevoix played Houghton in quarterfinal play at Cheboygan High School on Tuesday, March 20. The winner advances to play at 2:50 p.m. Thursday, March 22 at the Breslin Center on the campus of Michigan State University, against either Detroit Community or Saginaw Nouvel.

The Class C state finals will be played at noon on Saturday, March 24 at the Breslin Center. The results of the Rayders' march to the Breslin will appear in next week's Courier.

Alex Gooch posts personal bests at state swim meet

The weekend of March 9-11, Charlevoix resident Alex Gooch, 12, participated in the United States Swimming 12 and under State Championships at the Jenison Aquatics Center in Jenison.

This was the first time a swimmer from Charlevoix has qualified for three events at this meet. Two years ago, Evan McCormick qualified in two events.

He was one of 642 swimmers who qualified for the meet. Gooch placed 21st in the 200 breaststroke. His seed time was 3:02.89 and he finished with a personal best time of 2:57.51. In the 100 breaststroke. Gooch placed 22nd, his seed time was 1:22.94 and he finished with a personal best time of 1:21.9. His last event was the 50 breaststroke where he placed 20th. His entry time was 37.82 and he finished with another personal best time of 36.89.

Waha signs full-ride with Grand Rapids Raiders

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Chris Waha (center) , recently signed a letter of intent sealing a full-ride baseball scholarship with Grand Rapids Community College, a two-year junior college. He also plans to play football for the school and pursue studies in either business or education. He is pictured above with his baseball coach, Allen Telgenhof, his father, Doug Waha, and his football coach, Don Jess.

Chris Waha's time on the mound won't end this spring when he completes his final high school pitching season.

Waha, an 18-year-old senior at Charlevoix High School, recently signed a letter of intent sealing a full-ride baseball scholarship with Grand Rapids Community College, a two-year junior college. He also plans to play football for the school and pursue studies in either business or education.

While Waha said managing the workload and athletics will be challenging, he's focused on establishing himself in Grand Rapids and transferring to a four-year Division I school.

This is a common path for players at Grand Rapids Community College — Central Michigan University, Western Michigan University and Oakland University each have two former Grand Rapids Raiders on their baseball team rosters.

The local student-athlete credits Charlevoix High School boys' baseball coach Allen Telgenhof with helping secure the scholarship. Telgenhof was integral in getting Waha involved in a competitive summer baseball program in Traverse City, setting up training opportunities with the Traverse City Beach Bums and making connections with college coaches.

Telgenhof promoted Waha's impressive stats — with pitches burning in at 86 mph, a 2.15 earned run average and 1.4 strikeouts per inning. He's a valuable player.

The accomplished athlete started his high school career as a Rayder, then in his sophomore year moved to California's Bay Area with his mom. Wendy Waha. He attended Terra Linda High School in San Rafael, Calif.

After two years in California, this fall he returned to Charlevoix to live with his father, Doug Waha who played football in 1982 and 1983 at Grand Rapids Community College and later walked on at Michigan State University.

He opened the year as Rayder quarterback, passing for 1,310 yards and 15 touchdown passes, helping lead the team to their best finish since 1977. The Rayders ended the season 6-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference, wrapping up second place behind Traverse City St. Francis, the only team to beat the Rayders this season and made their second straight playoff appearance.

"He had a great year. We put a lot of pressure on our quarterbacks," Rayder football coach, Don Jess, said. "He's a great athlete and a great kid."

While his excitement to join the Grand Rapids Raiders in the fall of 2007 grows, Waha's focus is on leading the Charlevoix Rayder baseball team to a strong season finish. The season officially started on March 12.

Grand Rapids Community College won the National Junior College Athletic Association Division 2 baseball championship in 2003, 2004 and 2005. In 2006, they were national runners-up in Division 2. The football program is also successful. In 2005, the football team was runner-up in the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Harbor Health hosts triathlon pre clinic

Harbor Health and Fitness will host a free triathlon clinic at 6:45 p.m. on Wednesday, March 21.

Experts will be on-site to discuss the upcoming Third Annual Women's Non-competitive Tri*4*Fun Sprint Triathlon to take place in May.

The event will include a scenic 20K hike, a 5K run and a half mile indoor pool swim.

Participants will receive information on getting a team together, proper equipment, creating a training schedule, staying motivated as well as tips on running, biking, swimming and stretching. Harbor Health and Fitness is located at 110 Clinton St. in Charlevoix.

Chamber moves to make way for office demolition building expected to come down sometime this week. The complete project also includes construction of the new performance pavilion and harbormaster's facility as well as site work, landscaping and underground excavation.

EAST PARK

The new chamber building features more lobby room, efficient windows, a newly insulated ceiling, kitchen and bath facilities for the employees.

"It took approximately three months to do the ($100,000) renovation," Merta said. "We put new drywall in, new flooring, there is an employee break room — our staff will be able to eat lunch there and that will be nice because we've never had a place where we could do that."

The new 2,300 square foot chamber building dwarfs the old 425 square foot building, according to Merta.

"Now more people can look at brochures and come to the reception area, so that's a big plus," she said. "The other thing we have is a meeting room, so we will be able to have board meetings on site and there is definitely more space there for employees to work."

While chamber operations in their new facility were up and running by Monday of this week, an open house for the community will be forthcoming.

The move, which was expedited with help by movers from Harbor Industries and the Belvedere Club, took approximately one week.

Even Violet Dinwiddie, the chamber's office manager, volunteered to help move all week for no pay.

"I don't know what we would have done, without those work crews and volunteers coming in to move all that major stuff," Merta said.

Merta said the only downfall she can see to the move is that the chamber won't be as visible to traffic.

"It will be interesting to see," she said. "Maybe it won't make a difference."

Other than Merta and Dinwiddie, chamber of commerce staff consists of Shelly Ferguson, finance manager, Dianne DuPont, retail special projects manager, and Mallory Mahoney, an administrative assistant who works summers.

Merta said no new staff will be added.

The 409 Mason St. building, home of the old Charlevoix post office, will be leased to the chamber by the City of Charlevoix for $1 per year for 10 years with an automatic five-year renewal.

The last known appraisal of the former post office building showed the value to be $208,927 — a figure determined before two major renovations were completed in 2003 and 2007.

Entergy to buy Big Rock fuel storage acreage

BIG ROCK

resources across an entire fleet. Entergy has multiple nuclear sites."

According to information provided on the Entergy Web site, www.entergy.com, Entergy delivers electricity to 2.6 million utility customers in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas and has annual revenues of more than $10 billion and approximately 14,000 employees.

While both Big Rock Point and Palisades are nuclear power plants they are totally different animals.

Big Rock, which used a boiling water reactor, is the nation's longest running and oldest operating nuclear plant which came online in September of 1962 and permanently ceased operations in August of 1997. Palisades, which uses a pressurized steam reactor, was built in the 1970s. When Big Rock was operating it was a 67 megawatt facility — the Palisades plant is over 10 times larger.

The sale is expected to be complete by the end of April.

Petrosky said under the proposed agreement, Entergy will own and operate the dry fuel storage area at the Big Rock site until Yucca Mountain in Nevada accepts and stores spent fuel from commercial nuclear plants. Consumers will maintain ownership of the remaining 435 acres that make up the Big Rock property.

The Big Rock property Entergy will now own will be governed by the same requirements the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has of Big Rock. Petrosky said maintenance and oversight of that site which houses eight idle canisters containing used fuel requires about 20 employees, not including required security personnel.

The acreage that remains in Consumers hands has been released by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for unrestricted use and is currently on the market. No official price tag has been attached to the property. In a previous interview, Tom Bailey, executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy, said $20 million is a ballpark figure.

Petrosky stressed that there is nothing in the sale agreement with Entergy that restricts Consumers' use of the remaining land:

"We will continue to work with the state to see if an agreement can be reached to keep that property in public hands," he said.

Initial attempts to secure funding for state purchase of the property were delayed in December of 2006 when a funding request with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Trust Fund board was withdrawn because of uncertainties in the agreement between Consumers and the Department of Natural Resources.

According to Bailey, who is acting as the liaison between Consumers, the Department of Natural Resources and community groups, an application for $3 million to purchase the property will be submitted to the Trust Fund by April 1.

While Entergy now becomes a third player involved in the Big Rock property, Bailey said he doesn't feel the proposed sale hurts the chances of the Department of Natural Resources Trust Fund Board approving funding.

"This was known last year and discussed by the Trust Fund board. Entergy is a big company with a lot of nuclear experience," he said.

Bailey hopes the Trust Fund board will grasp the myriad benefits he and other supporters see to public purchase of the property. These include preservation of the largest and least disturbed section of Lake Michigan shoreline available to the public in this part of the state, its significance in terms of its human and natural history, habitat preservation for several threatened species of plants and animals and its accessibility along U.S. 31.

But not all people concur. Beaver Island resident, Richie Gillespie, thinks the property should be sold to a private entity.

"The state can't afford to maintain the parks and facilities it has," he said. "I'm not against doing something if the need is there. I'm against doing something because maybe it's the easiest thing to do. Why not take a look at what we leave behind for our descendants. If the state takes tax dollars to buy the land and take it off the tax rolls, what good does that do all of us? What good does it do the people feeding their families?"

What? The plan is for Consumers to sell its Palisades Nuclear Plant in South Haven to Entergy Corporation for $380 million and for Consumers to pay Entergy $30 million to take over 107 acres of the Big Rock property where spent nuclear fuel is stored. Palisades, an 800 megawatt nuclear power plant, is the only remaining active nuclear plant under Consumers' ownership.

When? The sale is expected to be complete by the end of April.

What will happen with the land? Under the proposed agreement, Entergy will own and operate the dry fuel storage area at the Big Rock site until Yucca Mountain in Nevada accepts and stores spent fuel from commercial nuclear plants. Consumers will maintain ownership of the remaining 435 acres that make up the Big Rock property valued at around $20 million.

Who is Entergy? Entergy Corporation is the second largest generator of nuclear power in the United States.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY
PUBLIC NOTICE
APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

Did you KNOW? STUMPED

Courier readers were stumped by this installment of 'Did you know?' which asked where W.J. Orser, the Artistic Tailor, was located on Bridge Street?

W. J. Orser was located in the 300 block of Bridge Street where East Park is now. It would have been directly across the street from Momentum and Whitney's.

New team tackles jail air debacle

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' March 19 meeting to determine the next steps necessary to address issues with the jail's HVAC system began with a letter from Sheriff George T. Lasater, transferring maintenance head, Tom Meggison, and ended with the appointment of an overseer for the rectification process.

Lasater stated it was prudent, in the face of Meggison's impending July 30 retirement and the possibility of new equipment and procedures to be installed and introduced, to train a long-term replacement and send Meggison to work his final months at the county building.

"I'm just an advisor for the board and for the prosecutor's office at this time," said county mechanical/plumbing inspector and project overseer, Robert Hilton, a day after the special meeting. "I'm giving them technical advice on how to move forward."

Beginning Friday, March 23, Sears will clean the jail's air ducts. In the following days, Flood Professionals will clean the jail's walls, carpet and furniture.

"I have gotten with the new maintenance person (Rick VanLoo) and he's working with the prosecutor's office and they're getting a maintenance program together for checking filters and contacting the control people to check the computer systems that run the rooftop units," Hilton said. "We're meeting with them hopefully next week to go through and make all corrections to get the system up and running."

He added, "Right now everybody is on the same page."

While several entities involved with the jail's 2001 addition and a subsequent HVAC study were invited to the special meeting, only representatives from Landmark Design Group and Haggard's Plumbing & Heating appeared.

District Two Commissioner, Chris Christensen, voiced his frustrations to fellow commissioners and representatives from Landmark, Bob VanPutten and Morgan Landon and a field supervisor from Haggard's, Tim Rainey.

"There's a lot of ball dropping that's been going on," he said. "We need to move forward at this point. Somebody has to be the general on

For now, beacons for Charlevoix businesses won't include internally lit signs.

On Monday, March 19 Charlevoix City Council unanimously passed a revised sign ordinance banning internally lit signs outside the central business district.

"They rejected it for what they felt were good reasons.

Father, son team farewell

The Charlevoix High School Rayder basketball team ended its successful season on March 22, losing 67-54 to Saginaw Nouvel Catholic Central in the Class C semifinals at the Breslin Center on the campus of Michigan State University. (Left) Ty Haske, playing in his last game as a Rayder under the direction of his father, head coach Keith Haske, scored seven points and played relentless defense. The two shared a hug following the loss. For the full story on the semifinal heartbreaker, see page 32.

Channel swimmers to face fines

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Thrill seekers were trumped by Charlevoix City Council members waving the safety and liability flag on March 20.

At the public hearing that night, city council voted unanimously to pass a law banning swimming in the Pine River Channel in spite of letters and comments made encouraging them not to. Police officers will now be able to ticket and fine swimmers in the Pine River Channel.

this project."

While Landon appreciated Christensen's concerns, he said the commissioners need not make a mountain out of a molehill.

"I don't think this is the kind of thing where you need 24-hour representation," he said. "As I see it, you need somebody like (Hilton), like (Jarema), whoever you want to have do it, maintain a checklist of what's being done by who and when so you know you're making forward progress."

Landon told the commissioners it is common to tweak HVAC systems upon installation.

"There is both art and science that goes into these systems," he said. "You go through these things in a step by step manner. You try to eliminate this problem and you try to eliminate that problem. Commercial HVAC systems are not simple systems. There's a lot of moving parts, a lot of interaction among different systems within the building. It's frequently a challenge to get them to work the way they ought to."

> "There's a lot of ball dropping that's been going on. We need to move forward at this point."
> Chris Christensen
> DISTRICT TWO CHARLEVOIX COUNTY COMMISSIONER

Landon said he is confident the system will be adequate to heat and cool the jail when it is up and running properly.

"You never say never, but we don't have any expectations that the building will not function if the systems are operating properly," he said.

However, VanPutten added, no matter how effective or efficient an HVAC system is, individual comfort levels could always be an issue.

"We could have two identical people — same sex, age, weight — one will be hot (and) one will be cold," he said. "Until we figure out a way to give everyone personal control over their temperature, we'll always have that."

Hilton will give his first progress report at the 9:30 a.m., Wednesday, April 11 meeting.

Rhoades Engineering, authors of the cited, Rhoades report of May 30, 2006, refused to attend without pay.

In the report, Rhoades recommended replacing any faulty roof mounted exhaust fans, rooftop units and all associated ductwork, reinstall makeup air unit number three, fix roof leaks and replace all ceiling tiles, replace carpet in certain areas and clean furniture and walls.

While several of the recommendations have been followed, Jarema said it would be extreme at this point in time to replace large, expensive pieces of machinery.

"Every option is going to be on the table once we (get) the system we have functioning properly, optimally," he said. "Then we will be able to determine whether the sizes of those are correct or if we need bigger units or supplemental units."

Meggison, a 20-year county employee, spent seven of those years working at the jail. He did not return calls regarding his transfer by press time.

Sept. 6, 2001 Eight employees of the Charlevoix County Jail responded to a form distributed by Charlevoix County Sheriff, George T. Lasater and former head of jail maintenance, Tom Meggison, asking any employees who thought they might have health conditions caused by the jail to list them.

Sept. 10, 2001 Meggison forwarded employee symptoms to the designer of the jail's addition, Landmark Design Group, and stated he would send an estimate for duct cleaning to Landmark as soon as one was available.

July 14, 2005 Environmental Testing & Consulting Inc., stated airborne mold samples did not warrant corrective action but suggested fresh air exchange be increased in areas with high carbon dioxide levels and clean ductwork if necessary.

May 30, 2006 Rhoades Engineering Company LLC's study of the Jail's HVAC system suggested replacing defective exhaust fans, replacing roof top HVAC units and related ductwork and cleaning furniture and walls.

Nov. 14, 2006 Environmental Testing stated "No hazardous constituents," existed in dust samples taken at the jail.

March 19 A special board meeting began with Lasater announcing Meggison's transfer to the county building in light of Meggison's impending July 30 retirement and likely new procedures and equipment which may be forthcoming.

Healthy choice: Eat outside of the box

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Choosing what to eat is a relatively new problem for humans.

For nearly all of the our history we ate whatever we could find. In more modern times food choices are nearly endless. Just visit any food market and measure the choices not in numbers, but in acres. As with all choices, it is possible to make good ones or bad ones. The epidemic of overweight Americans suggests that in this country and at this time, we aren't handling the choices too well.

It is not that we are short of advice. Books and articles about diet form a large fraction of available reading material, both on and off the Internet. We are advised to eat less protein or more protein, to avoid fats all together or to make them a major part of our diet, to load up on carbs or cut down on carbs. What is a person to do?

Michael Pollan, who has written well and wisely about gardens, tulips and what we eat, has provided an extremely useful primer in the New York Times Magazine of Jan. 28. He suggests that you do not need a college degree in nutrition or biochemistry to eat well. In fact, too much information from nutritional science may be as bad for you as a diet lacking sufficient fiber or high in saturated animal fat. His major piece of advice will not be popular with the makers of most of the items on grocer's shelves, nor will it rest well on the ears of much of the nutritional science establishment. We do not eat nutrients like proteins, antioxidants or minerals, he claims, rather we eat food, or at least we could.

According to Pollan, the journalists who endlessly report on the latest nutritional studies are equally at fault, since they mostly hype the most recent trends or ideas about diet. He suggests that what to eat is remarkably simple if we look at the history of what humans have been eating during most of our evolutionary past.

MiKE AND iKE

It all boils down to three simple rules in only seven words. "Eat food. Not too much. Mostly plants." He makes a compelling, not too lengthy or complex case for his rules.

The definition of "food" is critical. It does not usually come in a box, for example. And real food has no health claims printed on it. The plants in the definition should consist of fewer seeds and grains and more leaves, roots and berries. "Don't eat anything your great-grandmother would not have recognized as food," is another significant piece of advice.

It was particularly notable to me that he includes the admonition to cook our own food, and, if possible, keep a food garden as part of the path to a healthier population. If I plan to have my homegrown potatoes in the root cellar last until spring, I am likely to eat fewer of them over the winter months. And the added exercise involved in caring for a garden is a beneficial plus.

During my years as a professor of biology, people asked what I thought about nutrition, and while my answer never developed to the comprehensiveness of Mr. Pollan's advice, it still seems sound to me. When asked what was best as a diet, I would suggest that a person eat as many different things, plant and animal, as possible, and they should be eaten as near to alive as possible. Such advice requires you to recognize that vegetables are alive until they are cooked or frozen. The dead vegetables are the soft, slimy ones you throw out of the refrigerator. Maybe if we applied the same rules to food generally that we apply to fresh fish, we would do better.

I had a friend of many years whose father always grew a vegetable garden. My friend reported that his father would set a pot of water boiling on the stove. Then he would go to the garden, pick the fresh ears of corn and run to the house to drop them in the boiling water. That may sound a little extreme, but it makes the point.

What to eat will remain a problem for us as long as we live surrounded by easily available, inexpensive, processed substances that Mr. Pollan would not include in his category of food. The simplest advice possible? Eat stuff that does not come in a box.

Finally, enjoying what is eaten may have more to do with health than any amount of information about the food's nutrient content. Eat, drink and be merry is still good advice.

New Courier feature highlights locals

What's his story anyway?

JUST A THOUGHT

Julie Witthoeft

The same guy delivered lunch to the Courier for over a year.

For a while the office not so unusual food connoisseur/staff writer was on a sub sandwich kick which soon became known as the "Gohs classic" at Village Inn Pizza — a turkey sub, no cheese, no mayo, toasted bread, mustard on the side. I on the other hand am a pizza junky. I like pizza any way but with fruit — pineapple pizza lovers are truly a breed all their own.

But does this pizza delivery man who we count on almost every day to bring us lunch like pineapple pizza? Does he like pizza at all? What's his name anyway?

This got us thinking about all the people we interact with daily that we really know nothing about.

As inquisitive, nosy journalists we decided this just won't do. From the person who bags your groceries to the one that delivers your mail, there are dozens of anonymous average Joes out there that serve important roles in our community and have great stories to tell.

Their lives are full of love, loss and adventure. In an effort to truly bring you closer to your neighbors, the Courier staff is dedicating a feature entitled, "10 things you never knew about..." to this sea of untapped information. The format is simple, 10 straightforward questions and 10 word for word answers. The section will run the fourth Wednesday of the month on the Courier's Community page.

Kicking things off this week is the Courier's favorite pizza delivery man, Matt Kondrat, who manages Village Inn Pizza. We quickly learned Kondrat has interests and aspirations beyond sauce and dough.

If there is someone in your life you think would be a perfect fit for "10 things you never knew," let us know, they could be anonymous no more.

To nominate a person for "10 things you never knew," shoot an e-mail to news@charlevoixcourier.com.

SAVE MONEY, COMBINE POSITIONS

Editor:

It is not too late for the Charlevoix School Board to make a sound financial decision that is necessary to balance the budget. The current board president, Bill Trubilowicz stated that a new superintendent must be hired before July 1 when the current superintendent (Jim Cooper) leaves. After a little research I feel this timeline was created by Mr. Trubilowicz so that a new superintendent would be chosen before he also leaves office in July.

I raised the following question at the community forum to Mark Eckhardt, the superintendent of the Char-Em Intermediate School District. If the board fails to hire a new superintendent by July 1 is it not true that Char-Em could make arrangements to be our temporary superintendent for up to one year? He answered, "Yes, this could be arranged." Recently among all the budget cuts being made at the state level, Gov. Jennifer Granholm, stated that it will be necessary for schools to become more creative and try to share expenses to cut cost. She even mentioned that school districts that reduce spending will be rewarded by the state.

What I am trying to say is that we have a rare opportunity to slow down the hiring process of a new superintendent. I strongly feel that as a temporary solution we should explore hiring a combination superintendent/high school principal. This would save the school over $100,000 per year. If funding becomes available in the future I would support adding a permanent principal at the high school.

Charlevoix Public Schools have a top notch business administrator who is able to handle all of the day-to-day financial dealings and year-to-year budgeting for the school. Not too long ago, this job was handled by the superintendent and his secretary. The high school currently has an excellent leader in the vice-principal who would fit in very well with a combination superintendent/principal. I feel very strongly that this arrangement can work well with our current enrollment. This rare opportunity should not be overlooked with the economy lagging in Michigan.

To put this all in perspective, it will be August at best before the schools learn how much revenue per student will be allocated by the state. The school is also unsure if the total student count will be up or down. Tell me, is this any way to run a business? I say, let's not get the cart before the horse and sit back and see what happens later. By slowing down the process of hiring a superintendent, our business manager can put together a responsible budget that can keep our school financially sound.

I feel it is totally irresponsible to be hiring high priced administrators before we can be sure that our existing staff will not be threatened with layoffs. Please help slow down this process as our current board president will be leaving in July and the rest of the board will be left to deal with the consequences.

DOES PROSECUTOR HAVE CONFLICT?

Editor:

In the March 7 edition of the Charlevoix Courier, prosecuting attorney John Jarema stated that, "I have found nothing that says anything was installed improperly." He also said "Those are the specs that we bargained for."

The Charlevoix County Commissioners hired Rhoades Engineering Company to study the problems at the Charlevoix County Jail. The report is dated May 30, 2006. Included in this study was an evaluation of the existing HVAC system. In this report on page 3, III. F. I quote: "Environmental Balance Co. report states: Some RTU's System's Airflow Quantities: Jail Control Room's RTU-5 airflow is at 69% of design. Sheriff's N.W. Admin. Office's RTU-11 airflow is at 79% of design. Sheriff's Detectives & N.E. Office's RTU-12 airflow is at 78% of design. Some Individual Room Airflow Quantities: Control Room #110 airflow is at 70% of design. Receptionist Room #108 airflow is at 50% of design. Squad Room #131 airflow is at 42% of design. Sheriff Office #137 airflow is at 80% of design.

Under section IV. Construction Documents and Installed HVAC Systems it states, "Approximately 30% to 40% HVAC ductwork distribution systems installation are not installed as shown on construction documents."

"Specifications require air handling systems airflow quantities to be adjusted to plus or minus 5% to 10% of design. Some room airflow quantities are 60% to 42% of design. Deficiencies are noted on Test & Balance Report."

At my last commission meeting I recommended that the county hire Rhoades Engineering Company to oversee the necessary changes required at the jail. John Jarema is a prosecutor, not an engineer.

Judging by his statements in the Courier, he does not understand the extent of the problem, even though he has the report. He claims the county got what they asked for. The above report disputes that. How can John Jarema say "Those are the specs that we bargained for."

When the County Commission first asked the prosecutor to become involved, I asked him if he had a conflict of interest. Based on his statements and the actual report, you can draw your own conclusion.

CHANNEL SWIMMING DISAPPOINTING

Editor:

The other night I attended my first Charlevoix City Council meeting to voice my opinion on the banning of jumping from the pier, a favored summer pastime for many young and young at heart in Charlevoix. It was an enlightening, albeit disappointing experience.

From the gist of the discussion, I gathered that the primary reason for the ban was a request from the police chief (Gerard Doan) and a seconded opinion from (First Ward) councilman (Lyle) Gennett, who, as a fireman, had once had to assist in rescuing trained scuba divers from the ravaging currents of the Pine River during a winter dive. When questioned, the mayor and several council members hinted that they might have participated in this fun, healthy summertime activity. They also mentioned some stitches a swimmer needed some time ago but the specifics were sketchy at best.

At the risk of sounding skeptical, cynical, negative or even bitter, and also at the risk of incurring retribution, I would like to point out some observations as a resident of Charlevoix for only the past five years.

I have witnessed our police force chase speeders at night with their headlights out. I learned that when you dial 911 to report this, my business cell phone reverts to the city it came from and the Traverse City sheriff couldn't do anything but take the report. I have witnessed our police force do "Starsky and Hutch" wheel spinning burnouts and U-turns on Bridge Street during morning commutes to catch speeders. The latest practice of driveway hiding and darting into evening traffic by our law enforcement officers is almost comical.

I live in the (short of the Holiday parking lot) most patrolled neighborhood I have ever seen. Upwards of 20 patrols per day are not uncommon, less than one block from our chief's home on a quiet side street. I have witnessed officers being rude when questioned by citizens and ultimately defensive of any criticism, constructive or otherwise. I fear that now we have empowered these same officers with yet another tool to harass our young and young at heart visitors.

The actions and attitude of our council was seemingly geared toward keeping Charlevoix the ultimately quiet retirement community it is becoming. But our largely absent population (at least during the winter months) needs young families to provide the services they require. Young families, unfortunately, come with "baggage" like children who like to have fun. Young families need long-term reasonable wage jobs and affordable housing — issues that council should be addressing. Did council even ask the city attorney if "Swim at your own risk" signs might mitigate what I suspect was the driving force behind this new ordinance, that being the ever-ugly liability and litigation concerns? I doubt it.

My 14-year-old son and I jump from the pier occasionally and boat regularly. I have never seen the regular pier jumpers interfere with boat traffic. I have never seen them be overly rowdy. I have never seen them do anything but be helpful to each other in climbing out and helping each other be as safe as possible to avoid collisions. They know how to have fun properly, but apparently our law enforcement and city council don't trust them do what they themselves did when they were young.

One note of appeasement was sounded during the miscellaneous business portion of the meeting when it was suggested that they might consider dredging the end of the Ferry beach pier so kids could jump off there. Guestimated cost might be "as little as $10,000." When I considered that, I wondered how "asinine" (as the mayor called it) my statement that we might consider hiring a lifeguard for the pier jumpers rather than an officer to patrol for potential perpetrators was. $10,000 might fund a lifeguard for a couple of summers, and dredging might not last long.

Cool City? Charlevoix's right to that title went out with the ravaging "currents" of the Pine River along with the St. Patrick's Day green dye we enjoyed so many years ago. As for the aforementioned incident resulting in stitches, I once used a too sharp knife to cut some Cracker Barrel cheese and received six stitches in my thumb. Perhaps council should pass an ordinance against sharp cheddar.

SLEEP AS IMPORTANT AS DIET AND EXERCISE

Editor:

An estimated 47 million American adults may be putting themselves at risk for injury as well as health and behavior problems because they aren't meeting their minimum sleep needs in order to be fully alert the next day, according to polls by the National Sleep Foundation.

What are "minimum sleep needs?" Sleep experts agree that most adults need between seven and nine hours of sleep on average each night in order to function most effectively the next day. Lack of sleep can have an impact on cognition, performance and state of mind.

National Sleep Foundation's 2005 Sleep in America poll found that about one-half of America's adults say that on most nights they get a good night's sleep. People who sleep well, in general, are happier and healthier. But when sleep is poor or inadequate, people feel tired or fatigued, their social and intimate relationships suffer, work productivity is negatively affected, and they make our roads more dangerous by driving while sleepy or less alert.

Sleep is as important as proper nutrition and exercise for good health. Sleep deprivation in America affects people of all ages, from children to older adults. Sleep deprivation is a choice. And if it's a choice, then many of us can make a healthier choice — to get the amount of sleep we need tonight for a better tomorrow.

This is National Sleep Awareness Week, the perfect time to make that commitment.

10 things you never knew about Matt Kondrat

Bringing you closer to your neighbors ...

1. Why make Charlevoix your home?

Most of my family lives in Detroit, but my immediate family is in Boyne Falls. I love the area. It's quiet, not like Petoskey, and has a heck of a lot nicer downtown. I have a son and my girlfriend has a 3-year-old. As a place for kids to grow up, you can't beat it.

2. Who has been your biggest influence?

My biggest influence is my dad. We both love the same things and every weekend I go down there (Boyne Falls) and we're always working on cars and listening to music — he plays a mean air guitar and he is a champion pool player. From day one everything I like to do is because of him.

3. What really makes you mad?

The same song played on the radio all day at work. I'll throw a shoe at the radio if I have to.

4. Where do you see yourself in five years, in other words, what are your aspirations?

I plan on staying there (Village Inn Pizza) for a while. I just had a son last year, so that motivates me to stick with it as long as I'm making money, but I would like to get my degree for (auto) mechanics.

5. What do you do for fun in Charlevoix?

I go to the Flight Deck to play pool and go bowling. I go to the movies once in awhile but I work too much during the week to do much of anything.

6. What is your biggest vice?

Playing guitar is just the ultimate. I've been playing for about three years — everything from Staind to Lynyrd Skynyrd.

7. If you had a magic wand and could change one thing about yourself or your world, what would it be?

I don't know, I have it pretty good. My son is excellent, my girlfriend is great. I guess I'd love to have a house here in town. My car doesn't bother me and with material things I don't ask for a lot, but a nice house would be great.

8. What is your favorite food?

Definitely homemade lasagna that I make — boil the noodles, brown the beef, make the sauce — it takes about two hours.

9. If you could meet anyone for an hour lunch, who would it be?

Jimmy Paige from Led Zeppelin. I just love watching him play.

10. What's something few people know about you?

I like the movie "Titanic." Whenever I see it on TV or at the movie store, I just have to watch it.

Historic baptism

On March 18, Brayden Greensky was baptized at Greensky Hill United Methodist Indian Mission Church in Charlevoix. He is the son of Amanda and Ray Greensky, grandson of Leslee and Woody Pearson of Charlevoix, Steve and Laura May of Petoskey, and Jacob and Lowanna Greensky of Minnesota. Brayden is a direct descendent of Peter Greensky, a Chippewa missionary to his people who built the Greensky Hill church in the 1850s. Brayden was baptized in the same log structure his ancestors built long ago.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Editor:

Everyone has a reason why they want things to be a certain way. They see things in the world and they think they should be different. Some shake their heads and go about their business. Some call the police or some government agency related to the problem and demand change or correction of the problem. Some take matters in their own hands and try addressing the problem at its core. (my personal favorite).

I guess everyone thinks that if the problem bothers them it is important and that we should all band together to remedy it. This problem is what we will call the cause. There are many causes out there too numerous to mention. In Charlevoix there are channel jumpers, jay walkers, dogs, cats and even one mountain lion that I know of, snowmobiles, the list goes on. If the leader of the cause can convince enough people to rally behind the cause they can affect a change. The problem with affecting change is expensive, due to the legislation of writing laws, creating another problem for the police and the inevitable court costs. The second problem is it never stops, give them an inch and they take a mile. If you don't believe me, try keeping track of how many new laws are already on the books.

I do not want to drag this out but those rules people have made me crazy. I have jumped off diving boards (remember them), lit real firecrackers, used my table saw without the blade guard or ear protection, and tubed down Mt. McSauha without a safety helmet and somehow lived to write this letter.

All I can say is if we continue to try controlling every little thing that causes some people distress, the effect will be less and less of the freedom that we hold so dear.

The Cool City won't be that cool if it isn't any fun.

BRING ON COOL

Editor:

It was very interesting to see the Cool Cities downtown blueprint for Charlevoix. It reminded me of another city my family visits frequently, South Miami Beach, Fla. Ocean Drive in South Beach has much in common with Bridge Street in Charlevoix. Both communities are very seasonal with a park on a body of water on one side of the street and restaurants and businesses on the other side. Fifteen years ago Ocean Drive was struggling with empty storefronts and old tired art deco hotels with very low occupancy. One of the things the city did was permit the restaurants to put tables out on the sidewalk in the public right-of-way. Soon several restaurants opened using small kitchens in store fronts or in the hotels. Most of the tables were out on the sidewalk so the restaurants had little or no overhead and could pull back in the slower summer months.

Today the 10 block stretch of Ocean Drive is packed with outdoor restaurants and almost all of the hotels have gone through extensive remodeling and renovation. There are so many people in the winter that you have to walk slowly on one side of the street to work your way through all the diners. Nobody minds because it is a place to see and be seen. On special occasions, like New Year's Eve and the Superbowl, they close off the street and push the traffic one block over onto Collins Avenue. The restaurants put more tables out into the street to handle the additional people.

The Cool Cities report mentioned one potential problem. "By attracting more people to the area though, traffic and parking will become even worse." Fifteen years ago traffic was not a problem on Ocean Drive. Now it is one of the area's major concerns.

A HEARTFELT THANK YOU

Editor:

Eight weeks ago a boy named Boddy came into the world. This little bundle of love was so anxious that he was born at 24 weeks. When Michelle's water broke and the doctors told us she would probably deliver within two to three days, we were more than a little concerned. We had no idea what to expect. The thing that we could never have imagined was the love that poured down on us from the community, friends and everyone who heard Boddy's story.

Within days, Terry (Left) and all our friends from the Villager were planning a benefit dinner which turned out as standing room only. The local lodge D-480 at the cement plant had a raffle; the Knights of Columbus; the Men's Monday Night Bowlers; St. Mary School, all gave contributions.

We have received phone calls, cards and letters from people continuously and we can't thank all of you enough. People ask about Boddy every day and I never tire of keeping you all informed. Michelle and I could never have gotten through these last eight weeks without all the support financially and spiritually, from our great friends and family.

We are both looking forward to bringing Boddy home to this loving community.

Boddy has a care page. For updates and pictures visit Boddy Whitley at www.carepages.com/ServeCarePage.

Thanks again for all the love and support.

County dishes out $275,000 to settle Rozema lawsuit

BY FRED GRAY
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Former Charlevoix County employee Jacqueline Rozema settled for $275,000 — which will come out of county coffers — in her second successful suit against the county, according to court documents obtained by the Petoskey News-Review through a Freedom of Information Act request.

Last May, a jury awarded Rozema and her colleague Sandra Ward over $1 million in a suit they filed against the county and their one-time employer, former county prosecutor Mary Beth Kur.

In her second suit against the county settled last month, Rozema claimed at least $400,000 in medical benefits she alleged had been denied her when she was "constructively discharged" by Kur.

The amount of the settlement was not publicly disclosed until Wednesday, March 21 when a request for court documents was granted.

The settlement provides that Rozema release the county from further liability and not disclose the terms of the settlement to anyone other than tax advisers. The same section describes the terms of the agreement as "confidential" but nowhere in the agreement is there a parallel statement preventing the county from disclosing the terms.

Rozema claimed that prior to resigning, she had been assured that she was entitled to, and would receive, retirement health benefits for herself and her husband for life upon retirement.

She claimed that two days after the May 2006 jury award, the county terminated her health benefits.

Rozema claimed the denial of health benefits was a violation of the Michigan Whistleblowers' Protection Act, which was the basis for the suit she and Ward had filed against the county and Kur.

At the time of filing, county clerk Jane Brannon said Rozema was not entitled to the health benefits. Brannon said that in order to retain retiree health benefits Rozema would have to draw a pension, but she was not eligible to retire because she did not have enough years of service credit.

In May 2005, a six-member jury found that Kur had "constructively discharged" Rozema and Ward through abusive behavior that created intolerable working conditions in the office.

County board chair Shirley Roloff, who with Brannon signed the settlement agreement on behalf of the county on Feb. 5, 2007, told the Petoskey News-Review earlier this month that the county's attorney in the case, Jan Hildenbrand of a Southfield law firm, had advised her not to disclose the terms of settlement.

Repeated efforts to reach Hildenbrand for comment were unsuccessful.

Roloff said even though she had signed the papers, she found the secrecy requirement to be "outrageous" and put the current county commissioners in a bad situation.

"It's not fair to them," she said. "They have to answer to the people of the county for this."

Former board chair Vic Patrick, who had negotiated on behalf of the county until his term expired at the end of last year, said it was the attorneys for both sides and the judge who wanted the final settlement amount kept secret.

"And I don't know why," he said.

Roloff said last Wednesday she regretted not having read the final settlement document more closely.

"I didn't read it. I only glanced through it," she said.

Speaking of the amounts of awards the county has made in lawsuits over the years, Roloff said:

"We've made some drastic mistakes. I hope we have learned by some of them. I wish this case never had happened."

She said the next thing on her to-do list is partnering with a new labor attorney for the county.

"We need someone closer by, but we need a good one," she said.

Free drug testing

John Jarema (right), Charlevoix County Prosecutor, is shown presenting a check to Scott Kelly, executive director of BASES, that will allow families of Charlevoix County students to have drug tests done at no cost. If parents are concerned that their son or daughter may be doing drugs, they can now access a free, confidential drug test at BASES. The tests are limited to those teens who are not already mandated to have drug testing through court or school. The funds for this free drug test come from fees collected in Charlevoix County for drinking and driving related offenses. The drug testing is done confidentialy and no results or identities are shared with anyone other than the family. Contact BASES at (231) 547-1144 for more information.

A healing ride

Young Charlevoix Area Hospital patient, Zoe Haney and her mom, Kallie Haney, spent many hours tooling around the halls in the hospital's new Radio Flyer red wagon that was donated by the Starlight Starbright Foundation. Starlight Starbright helps seriously ill children cope during their illness. They donate playroom and fun centers so kids can play games, chat with friends and even do their homework from their hospital bed, as well as distribute hundreds of thousands of books and toys every year.

St. Mary School announces new fall 3-year-old program

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Parents of Charlevoix's youngest students will have a new education option this fall.

Charlevoix St. Mary School will introduce a new preschool program for 3-year-old students.

According to St. Mary School principal, Keisha Veryser, the decision to initiate the program followed requests from interested parents. She said it's a natural fit for the school which currently offers curriculum for students age 4 through sixth-grade.

"The programs piggy back each other like building blocks. It's an easy flow," she said.

The 3-year-old preschool morning program will run from 9 to 11:45 a.m. in the school's Marion Room, a classroom, and will follow the school schedule. Three and five-day options are available. It is open to 10 students — six of whom have already registered. A teacher is expected to be hired in May.

The classroom curriculum will be based on a progress report system the school uses and will include counting, gross motor skill development, early literacy and social studies learning, among other elements.

"One thing about keeping the class size small is the kids can learn at their own level," Veryser said.

Keisha Veryser

The 4-year-old, five-day program follows the same morning schedule and is currently at capacity. Afternoon sessions may be added to both the three and 4-year-old programs if enough interest is generated. The afternoon session would likely meet from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

The school also offers extended care until 5:30 p.m. for students in both preschool classrooms. The cost is $3 per hour, per student.

Enrollment for the 2007-2008 school year is currently underway. The school's capacity is 120 students. There are 76 enrolled this year and the school is expected to expand to 94 students next year.

The school will host a free enrollment breakfast from 10 to 11:30 a.m. on April 22 in the school's family center, located at 1005 Bridge St. in Charlevoix. Staff members will be on hand to answer questions and offer tours and parents and alumni will speak about their St. Mary experience.

For more information, call (231) 547-9441.

What? Charlevoix St. Mary School will introduce a preschool program for 3-year-old students.

When? Classes will meet for three or five-day sessions from 9 to 11:45 a.m. starting in fall 2007.

Cost? Three-day program is $1,086 per year for St. Mary Church parishioners and $1,352 for non-parishioners; five-day program is $1,810 per year for St. Mary Church parishioners and $2,262 for non-parishioners. (The five-day fee schedule also applies to the four-year-old program).

How to learn more? The school will host a free enrollment breakfast from 10 to 11:30 a.m. on April 22 in the family center, located at 1005 Bridge St. in Charlevoix.

New gym teacher signs on at Northwest Academy

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Chris Way

Northwest Academy of Charlevoix welcomed a new physical education instructor last week.

Wife and mother of four, Chris Way, formerly of Brighton, moved to Charlevoix in August 2006.

"I came in late in the year, but I'm not going to let that deter me from any goals I've got for the kids and the program," she said. "With the lower elementary kids I'm going to concentrate on motor skills, and we are hopefully going to run a water safety unit."

She added, "I want to introduce the kids to fitness as a way of life."

In addition to the possibility of swimming classes, Way hopes to offer volleyball for sixth and seventh graders in the future.

"For the upper grades, we want to concentrate on individual fitness for life," she said.

For nearly 20 years Way has worked on and off as a coach, phys-ed and art teacher.

"I have coached basketball, volleyball and swimming," she said. "I have been at Michigan Tech University for three years in the PE department and I designed their aerobic classes and was their head volleyball coach.

Way went to school at Ferris State University where she played basketball and softball before transferring to Central Michigan University where she graduated with a physical education degree and a minor in art and coaching.

Way has worked with elementary students and directed a swimming program in Brighton which qualifies her to teach swimming and water safety.

And, while she said it's too early to tell, one of the best parts of her new job is the small class size.

"The smallness in numbers is going to allow me to do some things that you can't do in a public school with larger numbers of students," she said. "I'll be able to individualize activities to meet the needs of students kind of like a personal trainer if you will for the students."

She added, "It's going to be refreshing to be able to focus on kids individually."

Way, who comes from a family of educators had a father who was a coach and athletic director.

"Naturally I went that route. But, back then, sports for girls (were) at a minimum," she said. "There weren't near the caliber of programs we offer girls here."

She added, "There was a natural draw for me to be physical and competitive, but I was in a minority being athletic as a girl."

A major reason for choosing her career path was because she saw a need for women teaching athletics and promoting fitness for all children, male and female.

"I guess I just have a love for teaching fitness for life. These are skills they will be able to take with them when the graduate," Way said. "An appreciation and love of physical exercise will help them continue to make fitness a part of their lifestyle instead of just a game they once played."

Beaver Island Fire Department receives $125,000 new tanker grant

Beaver Island Fire Department fire chief, Tim McDonough, stands by the department's new water tender purchased this month using a $125,000 grant.

On March 20, CRC Insurance Services Inc. and Fireman's Fund Insurance Company awarded a $125,000 grant to the Beaver Island Fire Department for the purchase of a new water tender.

Representatives of the Beaver Island Fire Department joined those from CRC Insurance Services and Fireman's Fund at a special public event on March 20 at the fire department where the water tender was presented.

A tender is a large truck that carries a 3,000 gallon water tank. With the remote location of the island and the lack of fire hydrants supplying water, the department relies on a tender for adequate water during a fire.

Beaver Island fire chief, Tim McDonough, said his department's previous tender was so old and full of leaks, it was nearly inoperable. Last summer, during a fire, his crew struggled to put out the flames because of a lack of water.

"This new water tender is critical to ensure our ability to put out fires on this island, not only during the winter, but especially during the summer when our population balloons to several thousands of people," said McDonough. "Without this donation, it would have been nearly impossible to raise the kind of money needed to buy a new truck."

"I grew up visiting this island nearly every summer when I was a child and wanted to give back for all the fond memories I have of the wonderful people who live there," said Tim Turner, president of CRC Insurance Services. "Because of limited budgets, small fire departments like Beaver Island are often unable to purchase the equipment and tools they need. We hope this vehicle will ensure the safety of everyone who lives on and visits the island."

The grant package is part of a nationwide program called Fireman's Fund Heritage (SM) which is funded by Firemen's Fund Insurance Company. The program is designed to provide needed equipment, training and educational tools to local fire departments.

New deputy joins sheriff's department

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Aaron Westrick Jr.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Deputy, Aaron Westrick Jr., 22 of Boyne City recently joined the department to replace deputy Jim Pettis, who is scheduled to retire this month.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff, George T. Lasater, of the nearly 12 applicants and six interviewees for the position, Westrick was chosen for several reasons.

"It's always been my feeling that I try to hire locally if at all possible and he is a local Charlevoix County lad, so that was in his favor," Lasater said. "His background proved excellent and he had good recommendations from the college he went to. And, he did very well in the interview process."

He added, "His training officer gives him high marks and he's not afraid to ask questions if he's unsure about a procedure. I think on a scale of one to 10 he'll be a 10."

Westrick said he has yearned to be a policeman since he was a kid.

"My dad has been a police officer my entire life and it always sounded like a good thing to be doing," he said. "I just like getting out and talking to people in the area and you don't exactly know what you're going to see everyday and that makes it exciting."

He added, "It's a job with good times, bad times, funny times and sad times. It's a very dynamic job."

Westrick, who recently received his bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Lake Superior State University, is enjoying his first job in law enforcement.

"It feels good to police the area where I grew up and know people," said the former Boyne City Middle and High School graduate. "It feels great. I've been waiting to do this for years. I put myself through school and put my right foot forward in the academy and I'm finally doing the best thing I could be doing right now."

Westrick hopes to be the best road deputy he can be before possibly moving up to the detective division and eventually narcotics enforcement.

"I'm happy to be here (and) proud to be working for this community," he said. "I look forward to serving Charlevoix County."

Members of the Charlevoix County Drug Death Team were deputized by Charlevoix County Sheriff, George T. Lasater, on Friday, March 16 at the sheriff's department. Members of the team, pictured above (from left) are detective corporal Chuck Vondra, detective lieutenant Mike Wheat, Boyne City patrolman Todd McGuire, deputy chief of Charlevoix Police Scott Hankins, Chief of East Jordan Police Dan Reece and Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema. The team will investigate drug related deaths across Charlevoix County. The Drug Death Team is the first team of its kind in the State of Michigan. Not shown is detective sergeant Gwen White-Erickson of the Michigan State Police.

After 49 years in the same location at 408 Bridge St., the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce building was torn down on Friday, March 23. The chamber is now open for business at 109 Mason St. The new chamber building is nearly five-and-a-half times the size of the old one. Of the $10 million marina and East Park project, the East Park renovation being steered by Hallmark Construction of Traverse City will cost about $7.2 million. Demolition of existing buildings including the chamber, the Clarence Odmark Pavilion commonly called the "bandshell," the portable bathroom trailer and the fish pond has taken place. The complete project also includes construction of a new performance pavilion and harbormaster's facility as well as site work, landscaping and underground excavation.

Phase 1 of the East Park and marina renovation project includes the seawall replacement, removal of the 17 existing piers, which at the furthest point extend 75-feet into Round Lake, installation of new sheet pile running the length of the park, 850-feet, and other miscellaneous work. The targeted completion date for Phase 1 is near the end of April. Installation of the new docks, Phase 2, is underway simultaneously. It includes installation of a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220-feet into Round Lake at the furthest point. Docks which were fabricated this winter are currently being installed (above) once ice conditions allow in the spring. Utilities are expected to be hooked up and operational near the end of June. The total cost for Phases 1 and 2 is $3.8 million.

Lack of funds delays road repairs until 2011 or 2012

Sheriff George Thomas Lasater advises that Boyne City-Charlevoix Road (C-56) has deteriorated in various sections of the roadway and citizens traveling the roadway should drive according to conditions.

This roadway is very unforgiving and the sheriff's office encourages drivers to use "due care and caution."

The Charlevoix County Road Commission employees are working almost daily to fill potholes and are making every effort to make C-56 as safe as possible.

The sheriff has contacted Charlevoix County Road Commission manager, Pat Harmon, and he advises that due to a lack of state and federal funding for road construction, Boyne City-Charlevoix Road may not see any funding for reconstruction until 2011 or 2012.

Sheriff Lasater was further advised that the defeated road millage in 2006 may appear once again at the 2008 general election.

Official Notice

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
ORDINANCE NO. 720 OF 2007

AN ORDINANCE TO REPEAL CHAPTER 99 OF TITLE VIII AND TO AMEND CHAPTER 51 of TITLE V OF THE CODE OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX BY INCORPORATING THE REGULATION OF SIGNS INTO THE CITY'S ZONING ORDINANCE AND TO RENUMBER CHAPTER 52.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

Section 1. Repeal of Chapter 99 of Title VIII

Chapter 99 of Title VII of the Charlevoix City Code is hereby repealed in its entirety.

Section 2. Chapter 51 of Title V is hereby amended as follows:

A. The following definitions in sections 5.5 and 5.11 regarding signs are hereby repealed in their entirety:

5.5(7) Billboard
5.11(2) Sign
5.11(3) Sign area.

B. Section 5.11(1a) Shrubs is hereby renumbered as 5.11(2). The text remains the same.

C. Section 5.11 (3) Sign related definitions is hereby added and shall read as follows;

5.11 (3) Sign related definitions

(a) "Awning": A shelter, constructed on a supporting framework, projecting from and supported by the exterior wall of a building.

(b) "Awning Sign": A sign painted, printed, attached flat against, or integrated within the surface of an awning.

(c) "Banner": A sign made of a non-rigid material; however, not including pennants or flags.

(d) "Billboard-Highway Advertising Sign": An off-premises sign owned by a person, corporation or other legal entity that engages in the business of utilizing and/or selling the space on that sign for advertising. See "Off-Premises Sign."

(e) "Building Elevation": All of that part of a building facade(s) which would be included in an elevational view rendering of the building drawn parallel to and for the entire length of a lot line.

(f) "Business Center Sign": An on-premises sign which identifies or gives direction to a business complex or group of contiguous stores which may contain the names of the individual stores, businesses, institutions, or other organizations located within the complex or group. See 5.11(3)(y)

(g) "Canopy (Building)": A rigid structure covered with fabric, metal, or other material and supported by a building at one or more points or extremities and by columns, posts, or other forms of support not a part of the building.

(h) "Canopy (Freestanding)": A rigid structure covered with fabric, metal, or other material and supported by columns, posts, or other forms of support not a part of a building.

(i) "Canopy Sign": A sign affixed or applied to or a part of a canopy.

(j) "Construction Sign": An on-premises sign erected during a construction project which identifies the project, the owner or developer of the site, the architect, engineer, contractor and subcontractors working on the project, and any funding sources for the project, but which does not act to advertise a product or service.

(k) "Directional Sign": An on-premises sign which directs visitors or customers to a particular land use. See 5.11(3)(y)

(l) "Flag": A sign made of non-rigid material having a distinctive size, color, and design used as a symbol or emblem.

(m) "Flashing Sign": Any illuminated sign on which the artificial light is not at all times stationary or constant in intensity and color.

(n) "Ground Sign": A sign, the height of which does not exceed eight (8) feet, supported by one (1) or more uprights, poles, braces, or some other structure, placed in the ground surface and not attached to any building.

(o) "Home Occupation Sign": A non-illuminated, on-premises sign announcing a home occupation or professional service. See 5.11(3)(y)

(p) "Identification Sign": An on-premises sign that contains the name and/or street address of the business or residents operating or residing on the premises where located. An identification sign shall contain no other advertisement display, except that the identification sign for a business may identify the type of business being conducted on the premises.

(q) "Illuminated Sign": A sign that includes artificial light by either emission, reflection, or refraction.

(r) "Informational Sign": A non-advertising sign used to identify architectural features of a land use such as building entrances, drop boxes, restrooms, handicapped ramps, and similar features. Informational signs on fuel pumps.

(s) "Ingress-Egress Sign": A directional sign located adjacent to the entrance or exit drives of a development to identify the points of vehicular ingress and egress.

(t) "Internally Lighted Sign: A sign having an internal lighting source which allows light to be visible through the sign face.

(u) Marquee: A permanent roof-like structure or canopy of rigid materials supported by and extending from the facade of a building.

(v) "Marquee Sign": Any sign attached to or supported by a marquee.

(w) "Non-Commercial Speech": Legal speech, in written form, by an individual or group of individuals expressing thoughts, ideas, opinions, etc. to the public.

(x) "Off-Premises Sign": A sign which contains a message related to a business or profession conducted on or to a commodity, service or activity sold or offered for sale on property other than the premises where such sign is located.

(y) "On-Premises Sign": A sign which contains a message related to a business or profession or to a commodity, service, or activity sold or offered for sale on the property where such sign is located.

(z) "Pennant": A small, often triangular, flag used in multiples as a device to call attention to a land use or activity.

(aa) "Political Sign": A sign relating to the election of a person to public office, to a political party, or to a proposition to be voted on at a scheduled election.

(ab) "Portable Sign": A freestanding sign, usually having a changeable message, not permanently anchored or secured to either a building or the ground, or a sign mounted on a trailer or other vehicle when supporting the sign is the principle use of the vehicle.

(ac) "Projecting Sign": A sign which is affixed to any building or structure other than a marquee or canopy and projects in such a way that the sign face is not parallel to the wall to which it is attached.

(ad) "Pylon Sign": An elevated sign supported by one (1) or more bearing columns.

(ae) "Real Estate Development Sign": A sign placed on the premises of a subdivision or other real estate development to indicate the proposed start of the development project or to inform the public that property within the development is available.

(af) "Real Estate Sign": A sign containing the message that the real estate on which the sign is located (including buildings) is for sale, lease, or rent, together with information identifying the owner or agent.

(ag) "Roof Sign": Any sign or any part of a sign which is erected on or as a part of the roof of a building.

(ah) "Sign": An exterior display surface or display device, including associated structures, foundation and erection supports when a part of the sign containing elements organized, related, and composed to form a unit upon which is displayed any words, letters, figures, emblems, symbols, designs, or trademarks by which any message or image is afforded public visibility from out-of-doors on behalf of and for the benefit of any product, place, activity, individual, firm, corporation, institution, profession, association, business, or organization.

The use of any word, numeral, letter model, banner, flag, pennant, insignia, device, design or trademark which is affixed to, painted, or represented upon a building, structure, or parts thereof, piece of land or natural object, and which is used as or is in the nature of an announcement, direction or advertisement by attracting attention to an object, place, activity, person, product, institution, organization or business.

(ai) "Sign Face": That portion of a sign excluding its base, foundation, and erection supports on which identifications, descriptions, illustrations, displays or devices are placed pertaining to a product, use, occupancy, function, service, or activity.

(aj) "Temporary Sign": A sign, banner or advertising display, with or without a structural frame, intended for a limited period of display, including displays for holidays or public events.

(ak) "TOD Sign" - TODS: Michigan Tourist Oriented Directional Sign Program sign.

(al) "Wall Sign": A sign which is attached directly to or painted upon a building wall, the exposed face of which is essentially in a plane parallel to the building wall or structure.

Articles VII-XIII, Sections 5.221-5.263 of Chapter 51 are hereby redesignated as Articles VIII-XIV, Sections 5.251-5.293 of Chapter 51. The text shall be unchanged. Any cross references referring to these sections shall also be renumbered to provide accurate cross-referencing.

A new Article VI is hereby added to Chapter 51 of Title V and shall read as follows:

ARTICLE VI. SIGN REGULATIONS

5.216 PURPOSE

The purpose of this article is to regulate outdoor signs, designed to be visible to the public, in a manner which does not restrict the content thereof while:

(1) Recognizing the mass communications needs of both businesses and other parties.

(2) Protecting property values and neighborhood character.

(3) Creating a more attractive business climate.

(4) Promoting pedestrian and traffic safety by reducing sign distractions, obstructions, and other hazards.

(5) Promoting pleasing community environmental aesthetic...

5.217 PROHIBITED SIGNS

ALL ZONE DISTRICTS: The following signs shall not be allowed in any district:

(1) Signs which are not consistent with the standards of this chapter.

(2) Signs which are not clean, i.e. are covered with materials that obscure the message, in whole or in part. Signs that are not in good repair, i.e. having broken foundation, base, or support structures, lighting fixtures, etc., and/or having a faded appearance.

(3) Signs that are not securely affixed to a substantial structure that will hold the sign in a fixed position under normal weather conditions.

(4) Signs that are attached to any natural growth, such as trees, shrubs, or other natural foliage.

(5) Signs, which by reason of their location, shape, size, or color appear to regulate, warn, or direct the movement of traffic on public thoroughfares or interfere with or resemble an official traffic sign, signal, or device.

(6) Signs other than utility company signs affixed to power utility poles or other utility structures or fixtures.

(7) Signs located so as to interfere with the view necessary for motorists to proceed safely through intersections or to enter onto or exit from public streets or private roads. (See Section 5.185. Intersection Visibility)

(8) External neon signs other than in the C-1, CBD, or M-H Districts where the wording specifically states "Open," "Closed," "Vacancy," or "No Vacancy." These specific signs shall be no larger than two (2) square feet.

(9) The following miscellaneous signs are prohibited:

(a) Commercial advertising flags

(b) All types of banners, pennants, streamers, and airborne devices attached to the ground or buildings ("Over Highway Banners" are allowed only by permit from the City Manager and MDOT.)

(c) Portable signs

(d) Roof signs

(e) Signs in public rights-of-way other than those allowed by the City Highway Banner Program.

(10) Billboard-Highway Advertising Signs

(11) Internally Lighted Signs.

5.218 SIGNS EXCLUDED FROM PERMITS

The following signs are permitted without a Sign Permit, but shall conform to the applicable requirements of this chapter and the applicable building codes.

(1) One (1) identification sign not exceeding three (3) square feet in sign face area used to identify a residential non-commercial use.

(2) Signs not exceeding two-and-one-half (2.5) square feet in sign face area on mailboxes or newspaper tubes, or posted on private property relating to private parking or warning the public against trespassing or danger from animals.

(3) Signs erected by or on behalf of or pursuant to the authorization of a governmental body, including legal notices, identification and informational signs, historical markers, traffic, directional, and regulatory signs, public displays for holidays and public events.

(4) Official signs of a noncommercial nature erected by public utilities.

(5) Flags or insignia of any governmental or nonprofit organization when not displayed in connection with a commercial promotion or as an advertising device.

(6) Integral decorative or architectural features of buildings or works of art, so long as such features or works do not contain letters, trademarks, moving parts or lights.

(7) Signs directing and guiding traffic on private property that do not exceed four (4) square feet each and that bear no advertising matter.

(8) Informational signs not exceeding one-and-one-half (1.5) square foot in sign face area.

(9) Street name signs located at street intersections.

(10) Non-commercial speech signs placed on private property, outside of any street right-of-way, not exceeding four square feet in sign face.

(11) External neon signs no larger than two (2) square feet in sign face area in the C-1, CBD, or M-H Districts which specifically state "Open," "Closed," "Vacancy," or "No Vacancy."

(12) Public signs or signs sanctioned by a public body on public land are not subject to this chapter.

5.219 CERTAIN TEMPORARY SIGNS - PERMIT EXEMPTIONS AND ADDITIONAL EXEMPTIONS

The following signs, related to temporary land uses, are permitted without a Sign Permit. However, such signs shall conform to the requirements set forth herein as well as all other applicable requirements of this chapter.

(1) Construction Signs. One (1) construction sign is permitted along each street frontage upon which the property faces. In the place of one large sign, a maximum of four (4) individual smaller signs may be erected on the site, upon the condition that each smaller sign shall not exceed four (4) square feet in sign face area per sign.

(2) Political Signs. Political signs are allowed in connection with elections or political campaigns. Such signs shall be removed within three (3) days following the election or conclusion of the campaign. No such sign may exceed eight (8) square feet in sign face area or be placed in any public street right-of-way.

(3) Real Estate Development Signs. One (1) real estate development sign is permitted for each street frontage upon which the property faces. Such sign(s) may be present only for the duration of the development's construction.

(4) Real Estate Signs. One (1) real estate listing sign is permitted for each street frontage upon which the property faces. Such sign(s) shall be removed within ten (10) days after sale, lease, or rental.

(5) Temporary Signs.

(a) Special temporary events. One (1) sign not exceeding twenty-four (24) square feet in sign face area indicating a special temporary event such as a carnival, circus, festival, or similar event, is permitted on the lot where the activity is to take place. Such signs may be erected not sooner than one (1) month before the event and must be removed not later than three (3) days after the event.

(b) Yard sales and similar events. Signs for yard sales or other similar temporary activities, not covered in the foregoing categories, are permitted. Not more than one (1) sign may be located on any lot, no sign may exceed four (4) square feet in surface area, signs shall be erected not more than three (3) days prior to the event and shall be removed immediately following the event.

(c) Other temporary signs. Temporary signs not listed in Section 5.219 shall be regarded and treated in all respects as permanent signs.

5.220 NUMBER AND SQUARE FOOTAGE OF SIGNS REQUIRING A PERMIT

(1) Not more than one (1) sign as regulated in Section 5.223 (Table of Use Districts) may be used along or on any single building elevation per principal use.

The total accumulated square footage of all signs related to any single principal use may not exceed one hundred fifty (150) percent of the allowed sign area of the primary (first) sign, i.e., ground, projecting, pylon, etc., as specified in Section 5.223, Table of Use Districts. Secondary signs, if a type differing from the primary, shall be sized in proportion to the allowed sign area as set forth in Section 5.223 for the differing sign.

Example: If the primary sign is a wall sign and the second sign selected is a ground sign, the second sign shall be fifty (50) percent of the area allowed for a ground sign.

(2) Business Center Sign. Not withstanding Section 5.220(1), in the case of a shopping center or other integrated group of stores or commercial buildings one (1) free-standing business center sign may be erected. The maximum area for such sign face shall be equal to one-half (0.5) square foot of sign face area for each foot of building frontage, or sixty (60) square feet, whichever is less.

(3) For the purpose of determining the number of signs, where graphic material is displayed in a random manner without organized relationship of elements, each element shall be considered a single sign. A number of small signs randomly placed on a wall cannot be construed to be a single sign.

(4) A two-sided or multi-sided sign shall be regarded as one (1) sign so long as:

(a) The interior angle of a "V" type sign does not exceed thirty (30) degrees and the two (2) sides are at no point separated by a distance that exceeds five (5) feet; and

(b) The distance between the backs of each face of a double faced (back-to-back) sign does not exceed three (3) feet.

5.221 COMPUTATION OF SIGN AREA

(1) The sign face area of a sign shall be computed by including the entire area within a single, continuous perimeter of a circle, triangle, rectangle, or parallelogram enclosing the extreme limits of the writing, representation, emblem, or other display, together with any material or color forming an integral part of the background of the display or used to differentiate the sign from the backdrop or structure against which it is placed, but not including any supporting framework or bracing that is clearly incidental to the display itself.

(2) If the sign consists of more than one (1) section or module, all of the area, including that between sections or modules, shall be included in the computation of the sign face area.

(3) Subject to the provisions of Section 5.220(4), the sign face area of two-sided, multi-sided, or three-dimensional signs shall be computed by including the total of all sides designed to attract attention or communicate information that can be seen at any one time by a person from one vantage point.

5:222 HEIGHT, SETBACK, AND PROJECTION REQUIREMENTS

(1) No sign may extend above any parapet or be placed upon any roof surface, except that for purposes of this chapter, roof surfaces constructed at an angle of seventy-five (75) degrees or more from horizontal shall be regarded as wall space. This subsection shall not apply to displays, including lighting, erected in connection with the observation of holidays on the roofs of residential structures.

(2) No wall sign attached to a building may project more than twelve (12) inches from the building wall. In those instances, where a wall sign is affixed to the wall of the structure, which lies on a right-of-way line, the bottom of the wall sign may be no closer than ten (10) feet from the ground.

(3) No part of a pylon sign may exceed a height of twenty (20) feet, measured from ground level.

(4) No part of a ground sign may exceed a height of eight (8) feet, measured from ground level.

(5) No part of a ground or pylon sign may be closer than four (4) feet to the right-of-way line.

(6) No part of a projecting sign may extend more than eight (8) feet over private property or a public right-of-way nor be less than ten (10) feet from ground level.

(7) Except for awning signs hanging entirely over private property, no part of an awning sign may be closer than ten (10) feet from ground level.

5.224 AUTOMOBILE GASOLINE SERVICE STATIONS

(1) Automobile gasoline service stations, including any business selling gasoline, in addition to the signs allowed by Section 5.220, may display one (1) other sign, with a sign face not exceeding eighteen (18) square feet, for the purpose of advertising the price of gasoline or other accessory products sold on the premises, including information regarding accepted credit cards. Signs on pump canopies may be considered secondary to a station's primary sign should the primary sign, for example, be a pylon sign.

(2) Directional signs or lettering displayed over individual entrances or service bays, shall be permitted, provided they consist only of the words, "washing," "lubrication," "repairs," "mechanic on duty," or similar words directly relating to motor vehicle services offered on the premises. Not more than one (1) such sign, per bay, shall be permitted and each sign shall not exceed four (4) square feet in total sign face.

5.225 SIGN ILLUMINATION AND LIGHTING

(1) All electrical wiring to the sign shall be placed underground.

(2) SEQ CHAPTER \h \r 1Signs must be lighted indirectly and not internally. Indirect lighting shall be directed down onto the sign face and shielded so that it illuminates only the sign face and does not shine directly into a public right-of-way or residential premises.

(3) No sign may contain or be illuminated by flashing or intermittent lights or lights of changing degrees of intensity.

5.226 NONCONFORMING SIGNS

(1) Subject to the remaining restrictions of this Section, nonconforming signs that were otherwise lawful on the effective date of this chapter may be continued, repaired, and maintained as is necessary to keep in a sound condition.

(2) No person may engage in any activity that causes an increase in the extent of nonconformity of a nonconforming sign. In addition, no person may add illumination.

(3) A nonconforming sign may not be moved or replaced except to bring the sign into greater conformity with this chapter.

(4) If a nonconforming sign is destroyed to the extent it is impractical to be restored using a majority of its existing major components, it may not thereafter be repaired, reconstructed, or replaced except in conformity with all the provisions of this chapter, and the remnants of the former sign structure shall be cleared from the land.

(5) The message of a nonconforming sign may be changed so long as this does not create any new non-conformities.

5.227 PERMIT REQUIRED FOR SIGNS

(1) Except as otherwise provided in Sections 5.218 (Signs Excluded from Permits) and 5.219 (Certain Temporary Signs-Permit Exceptions and Additional Exemptions), no sign may be constructed, erected, moved, enlarged, illuminated or otherwise altered unless a Sign Permit has been issued in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. Repainting or changing the message of a sign shall not in and of itself be considered an alteration.

(2) Application for a sign permit shall be submitted to the Zoning Administrator on appropriate forms supplied by his/her office. Said application shall contain the following information:

(a) Name, address, and telephone number of applicant.

(b) Written permission of property owner on which the sign will be located.

(c) Type of sign as defined in this chapter.

(d) Scaled drawing showing sign size, height, type of support (if applicable), zone district in which the sign will be located, location of sign on property including front and side yard setback distances and any other information required herein.

(e) Street address of the property upon which the sign will be located.

(f) The name of the sign contractor, who shall erect the sign and/or sign structure.

(3) No permit shall be issued for the erection of any sign or signs until such sign(s) have been reviewed and approved by the Zoning Administrator and without first having paid a permit fee as established by the City Council.

(4) Any person aggrieved by a decision of the Zoning Administrator may appeal that decision to the Zoning Board of Appeals following the procedures of the City of Charlevoix Zoning Ordinance, as amended, for appeals to the Zoning Board of Appeals. Any such appeal shall be filed within thirty (30) days from the date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. During the appeal, the Zoning Board of Appeals shall conduct a de novo hearing of the matter and to that end shall have all powers of the Zoning Administrator. In rendering its decision, the Zoning Board of Appeals shall receive and consider evidence and data relevant to the case and shall issue its decision in writing within a reasonable time after receiving all evidence and data in the case. The decision of the Zoning Board of Appeals shall then be sent promptly to the Applicant, to the person who filed the appeal (if different than the Applicant), and to the Zoning Administrator.

5.228 SIGN VARIANCES

(1) The Zoning Board of Appeals shall have the power to authorize, upon appeal, specific variances from the various requirements specified in this chapter and to extend the term to continue nonconforming signs otherwise provided for herein.

(2) Application for a variance as provided for herein shall be submitted to the Zoning Administrator on a form supplied for such purpose accompanied with an application fee as established by the City Council, and shall be processed in the following manner:

(a) The Zoning Administrator shall forward the application and supporting data to the Zoning Board of Appeals.

(b) The Zoning Board of Appeals shall hold a public hearing or hearings on the subject application. The notice of public hearing shall be posted not less than seven (7) days in advance, in writing, by first class mail to such property owners or occupants located within one hundred (100) feet of the property which is the subject of the application. After a public hearing, the Zoning Board of Appeals may grant, grant with conditions, or deny the requested variance. The decision shall be in writing, shall be based on facts presented at the public hearing, and shall specify any conditions imposed.

(c) The Board shall have the power to authorize upon an appeal specific variances from the requirements of this chapter when the applicant establishes that all of the following general standards and all of the applicable special findings apply.

(d) General Standards

(1) The need for the requested variance is due to unique circumstances or physical conditions of the property involved and is not due to the applicant's personal or economic situation.

(2) The need for the variance is not a result of a self-created hardship by the property owner.

(3) The requested variance is the minimum variance necessary to grant substantial relief to the applicant while at the same time minimizing any adverse impacts to other property owners in the general neighborhood.

(e) Special Findings

(1) To obtain a variance from the requirements of this chapter the applicant must establish that strict compliance with its provisions will render conformity unnecessarily burdensome.

5.229 UNSAFE SIGNS

(1) No person, corporation, business organization, or other legal entity shall own or maintain any sign or advertising device that is structurally unsafe. For purposes of this section, the term "structurally unsafe" shall mean being in a state of disrepair or being designed and/or constructed so as to pose a likely threat of a total or partial collapse.

(2) The Zoning Administrator and other City officials shall have the right to inspect signs and advertising devices to determine whether they are structurally unsafe. The Zoning Administrator and other City officials may exercise this right of inspection by consent of the owner of the sign or advertising device and the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located or by administrative or criminal search warrant.

(3) If the Zoning Administrator or other City official finds that a sign or advertising device is structurally unsafe, he or she shall serve on the owner of the sign or advertising device and the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located a written notice which specifies all of the following:

(a) The location of the sign or advertising device that is structurally unsafe.

(b) The nature of the unsafe condition.

(c) The date, no less than twenty (20) days after the written notice was served, before which the owner of the sign or advertising device or the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located shall remedy the unsafe condition.

(d) A statement that if the owner of the sign or advertising device or the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located fails to remedy the unsafe condition within the time specified in the written notice, the City may enter onto the property to remedy the unsafe condition and charge the costs of such action, including reasonable attorney fees, to the owner of the sign or advertising device and/or the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located.

(e) A statement that the owner of the sign or advertising device and the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located has the right before the expiration of the deadline contained in the written notice to request a hearing before the City Council regarding whether the sign or advertising device is structurally unsafe.

The service required by this subsection shall be personal service or service by certified mail, restricted delivery, return receipt requested. For purposes of this section, the phase "remedy the unsafe condition" shall mean repairing the sign or advertising device so that it does not pose a serious threat of a total or partial collapse or removing the sign or advertising device from the property.

(4) If the owner of the sign or advertising device or the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located requests a hearing before the City Council as provided in this section, the City shall take no action to remedy the unsafe condition until, after notice and hearing, the City Council finds that the sign or advertising device is structurally unsafe. A notice of the time, date, and place of the hearing before the City Council shall be served on the owner of the sign or advertising device and on the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located no less than fourteen (14) days before the scheduled hearing. The service of this notice may be made by first class mail. The owner of the sign or advertising device or the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located may appeal an adverse decision by City Council to the circuit court as provided by law.

(5) In exercising its right under this section to remedy the unsafe condition, either with or without a hearing before the City Council, the City shall remove the sign or advertising device from the property if the repairs necessary to remedy the unsafe condition exceeds fifty (50) percent of the value of the sign or advertising device.

(6) The costs of remedying the unsafe condition by the City, including reasonable attorney fees, may be collected in a lawsuit against the owner of the sign or advertising device or the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located.

5.230 ABATEMENT OF DANGEROUS SIGNS

(1) To protect the health, safety, and general welfare of the inhabitants of the City of Charlevoix, the City Manager is hereby authorized and empowered to order city officials to enter onto private property to remove, repair, or otherwise make safe any dangerous sign or advertising device without notice to the owner of the sign or advertising device or the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located. For purposes of this section, the phrase "dangerous sign or advertising device" means a sign or advertising device that is in such a state of disrepair or has such a design and/or construction flaw that it poses an imminent threat of total or partial collapse such that following the procedures of Section 5.229 would result in a substantial likelihood of injury to persons or property.

(2) If the City Manager exercises the authority granted in subsection (1) above, he or she shall cause a written notice of such action to be served on the entity who benefits from the sign or advertising device and on the owner of the property on which the sign or advertising device is located as soon as possible after the action is taken. The service required by this subsection shall be by personal service or by first class mail. Service shall be deemed completed when the notice is mailed. Acceptance of the certified mail is not required.

(3) The costs incurred by the City in removing, repairing, or otherwise making a dangerous sign or advertising device safe under this section, including reasonable attorney fees, may be collected in a lawsuit against the owner of the sign or advertising device or the owner of the property on which the a sign or advertising device is located.

5.231 INTERPRETATION

If these regulations relating to signs conflict with any other City ordinance, then, the provisions of this Article shall control.

Section 3. Chapter 52 of Title V is renumbered.

Sections 5.270-5.273 of Chapter 52 of Title V are hereby renumbered as Sections 5.300-5.303. The text remains the same. Any cross references relating to these sections shall also be renumbered to provide accurate cross-referencing.

Section 4. SEVERANCE CLAUSE

All sections of this ordinance shall be deemed to be severable and should any Section, paragraph, or provision hereof be declared by the courts to be unconstitutional or invalid, such holdings shall not affect the validity of this chapter, as a whole or any part thereof, other than the part so declared to be unconstitutional or invalid.

Section 5. Effective Date.

This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its enactment by the City Council.

ADOPTED this19th day of March, 2007.

Downtown Development Authority plan revision underway

Revisions under consideration:

Designated bike route

Extend landscaping to State Street and the Pine River Channel

Maximize use of public property

Provide recommendations regarding development of private property

BY LOUISE NELLE
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority is updating its downtown plan, created in 1982, considering aesthetic changes as well as ways to develop public property.

"Basically, our purpose is to get prepared for the next 20 years," said Charlevoix city planner, Gerry Harsch. "Since 1982, there has been a lot of land acquired by the DDA, and part of the plan is to identify public improvements needed."

The Downtown Development Authority's plan joins two other plans focused on Charlevoix's downtown. Others include that of the Charlevoix Planning Commission, and HyettPalma's downtown blueprint as part of the Cool Cities project.

Unlike the other two, Harsch said the Downtown Development Authority's plan does not target marketing strategies and instead targets physical aspects and infrastructure.

Harsch added, "The DDA's plan has nothing to do with the Cool Cities blueprint. We just had the opportunity to (update) it now."

Presented in the plan are illustrations regarding the Downtown Development Authority's future vision of the public and private sectors.

Overall, the Downtown Development Authority proposes designating a downtown bike route, extending landscaping to State Street and the Pine River Channel, maximizing the use of downtown public property and providing recommendations regarding the development of downtown private property.

Public property remains the Downtown Development Authority's main focus. Most of the public land has been set aside for parking and the authority is brainstorming ways to maximize its use.

Harsch said the Downtown Development Authority has been considering HyettPalma's suggestion for mixed-used property and sub-level parking. Combined public and private projects in the private sector are one option the Downtown Development Authority is considering.

For example, the city could move parking to the private sector based on an agreement with a private developer that the city would own the underlying property and the developer would own the air rights. As a result, parking would remain on public property and upper floors would remain private.

However, Downtown Development Authority members raised concerns such as cost, lot size and water level. Members agreed that certain lots are not large enough to provide adequate sub-level parking because of the space required for descending ramps and maneuvering. Also, the water level could place restrictions on the ability to supply sub-level parking.

While the Downtown Development Authority continues to revise the downtown plan, members said they would like to see concept drawings showing how sub-level parking would look beneath a private structure.

An honorable performance

Charlevoix eighth-grade band students were selected to perform in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association District 2 Honors Band. On Friday, March 9 there were 127 musicians from 23 schools practicing together at Boyne City High School to rehearse for a concert that same night. They spent the day working with guest conductor David Mumma from Portage West Middle School and performed several pieces for a full audience that evening. Students pictured above are Nataleigh Musser (clarinet), Gabby Bloomer (alto saxophone), Logan Kline (tuba), Jake Lemanski (trumpet), Kayla Eggers (trumpet) and Shaun Couture (baritone saxophone).

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Pneumonia vaccine recommended for those over 65

Public Health officials are encouraging most people over 65 to schedule an appointment for the vaccine that prevents infections of the lungs (pneumonia), blood (bacteremia) and covering of the brain (meningitis) if they have not already received one.

The adult pneumonia shot is available at physicians' offices and through the local health department.

"Pneumococcal disease is a serious illness. It kills more people in the U.S. each year than all other vaccine-preventable diseases combined," said Joshua Meyerson, MD, medical director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "Preventing pneumococcal disease in adults is even more important now than in the past because it has become resistant to antibiotics, making treating infections like pneumonia and meningitis very difficult."

Although anyone can get pneumococcal disease, some people are at greater risk, including people 65 and older, very young children and people with special health problems like alcoholism, heart or lung disease, kidney failure, diabetes, HIV infection or certain types of cancer.

One dose usually provides lifetime protection for adult pneumococcal disease. However, under some circumstances, a second dose may be given. A second dose is recommended for people 65 and older who got their first shot under 65, or if five or more years have passed since that dose. A second dose is also recommended for people who have certain health problems. If people have questions about whether or not they should get an adult pneumococcal shot, they should call their health care provider or local health department office, Meyerson said.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is the local health department for Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego counties. To schedule an appointment for pneumococcal vaccine, call (800) 432-4121.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

The City of Charlevoix City Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on Monday, April 9, 2007 at 6:00 p.m. in the second floor Council Chambers at 210 State Street, City Hall, Charlevoix, MI to discuss proposed amendments to Chapter 51, Zoning and Planning of the City Code. Below is a list of the proposed amendments.

- Amend Section 5.82 (23) - to include a new sub-section (d) "Clustered Housing Developments".
- Amend Section 5.200 - Building Heights, to allow building heights to be averaged in all zone districts and establish conditions to permit institutional buildings in residential and commercial zones to exceed district limitations and permit principal and accessory buildings in the Industrial zone district to be up to 50% higher than allowed in Section 5.200 (1).
- Definition for "Height of Building, Overall" - Section 5.7 (7) (a).
- Amend Section 5.7 (15) (b), definition of Building Roof, to permit turrets and similar architectural features located up to 5% of the total roof area to be up to 15% higher than the permitted building height.

A complete copy of the proposed language is available at the City Planner/Zoning Administrator's Office.

Interested citizens can make comments at the public hearing or written comments may be sent to the City Planning Office, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan

Updated sanitary codes are in effect

Following near unanimous approval by the members of county boards of commissioners from Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties, revised sanitary codes have taken effect in the four counties.

The District Sanitary Code for Antrim, Charlevoix and Otsego counties and the District Sanitary Code for Emmet County reflects advances in waste treatment technology, according to Scott Kendzierski, Director of Environmental Health Services for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

"The major changes to the new sanitary codes include septic system options that were not available when the codes were written many years ago, such as pressure distribution systems and advanced treatment systems. Using these innovative technologies can provide a very high level of treatment, making some properties that would have been considered 'unbuildable' in the past, developable under the new regulations."

Some of the old sanitary codes had been in effect for over 40 years — Antrim/Otsego code since 1966, Charlevoix code since 1984 and Emmet code since 2002.

The new sanitary codes also provide for improved designs that extend life expectancy of septic systems.

"One of the greatest risks to our environment is failing septic systems," Kendzierski said. "We've developed both construction and performance standards for systems based on the environmental sensitivity of the site where a septic system is proposed. These standards are based on best management practices for wastewater treatment and demonstration of performance."

The new sanitary codes are the result of three years of study and review. The health department convened a Septage Waste Advisory Committee early in 2003. Among the committee's recommendations was the inclusion of standards for the installation and maintenance of advanced treatment systems in the revised sanitary regulations for the four-county health district.

"It is a balanced regulation, permitting waterfront properties for development while at the same time, protecting our water resources."

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is the local health department for Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. For more information about the sanitary codes, visit www.nwhealth.org.

United Way funding applications available

Char-Em United Way's 2007 agency funding applications are now available.

Non-profit agencies which provide programs and services meeting the health and human service needs of Charlevoix and Emmet County residents are encouraged to apply.

Applications can be requested by contacting United Way at (231) 487-1006 or charemuw@sbcglobal.net. A complete application packet will be sent by mail or e-mailed within a few days. Completed applications are due to United Way on April 2.

"We are very excited to announce this year's funding availability," said Martha Lancaster, United Way Executive Director. "In 2006 we awarded $78,500 to 22 agencies in grants ranging from $250 to $7,600. This year we anticipate being able to provide even more funding, as the response to our increased campaign goal has been very generous. We are still accepting contributions, and all donations received through the end of April will be awarded in this allocation cycle."

United Way staff and board members will review the submitted applications. Those agencies whose requests meet United Way's guidelines will then be contacted to make a presentation to United Way's Citizens' Review Panel in mid April. The Citizens' Review Panel reviews the requests for funding, hears the presentations, seeks additional information, and makes recommendations to the United Way Board of Directors. The board of directors will meet in early May to consider the recommendations of the panel and make funding decisions.

For more information about Char-Em United Way or the funding allocation, call (231) 487-1006.

Local leaders join entrepreneurial community initiative

Teams of area leaders from Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City have been selected to participate in a new program led by Michigan State University (MSU) Extension that is aimed at building community capacity around entrepreneurship.

The groups are three of nine teams selected on the basis of their proposed economic goals, vision, composition and organization, as well as their communities' readiness, resources and unique ability to become models for other Michigan communities.

"What makes Creating Entrepreneurial Communities unique is that most programs like this focus on attracting new businesses," says Barb Fails, assistant director of the MSU Product Center and one of the program's organizers. "This program encourages communities to look for entrepreneurial talent within their own area, then to provide the tools, resources and access to others so the whole community becomes more entrepreneurial."

Other teams participating in the program are from South Haven, Ionia, Marine City, Meridian Township, Huron Shores, Newaygo and St. Clair County.

For more information about the Creating Entrepreneurial Communities pilot program, visit the MSU Product Center Web site at http://www.product-center.msu.edu/ed.htm.

Charlevoix cardiology practice changes name

The doctors and staff of the Petoskey Cardiology office located at 14730 Park Avenue, Building C in Charlevoix have announced a new name for the practice — Michigan Heart and Vascular Specialists, PC — and a renewed focus to providing patients with the latest technological advances and state-of-the-art, quality care.

"Our new name truly reflects our renewed energy and fresh, collaborative approach to the practice of cardiology," said Larry Gold, CEO of Michigan Heart and Vascular Specialists, PC. "As Michigan Heart and Vascular Specialists, we are committed to expanding our full range of services and promoting a heart healthy community."

As northern Michigan's largest and most comprehensive heart and vascular center, Michigan Heart and Vascular Specialists, PC is a patient-focused practice dedicated to the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of cardiovascular diseases. As specialists in diseases of the heart, arterial and venous systems, the doctors and staff of Michigan Heart and Vascular Specialists, PC are committed to working closely with patients to provide them with an expert team of cardiovascular specialists, advanced treatments and innovative technology.

The practice features state-of-the-art facilities and nationally accredited echocardiography and nuclear cardiology labs, with seven regional offices located in Alpena, Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Gaylord, Newberry, St. Ignace and Rogers City.

Who were they? Petoskey Cardiology
Who are they? Michigan Heart and Vascular Specialists, PC
What do they do? A heart and vascular center dedicated to the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of cardiovascular diseases.
Where are they located? 14730 Park Avenue, Building C in Charlevoix.

Lighthouse school, hospital foundation awarded Great Lakes Energy People Fund grants

Of the $60,600 awarded, $6,500 stays in Charlevoix and Beaver Island

Grants totaling $60,600 from the Great Lakes Energy People Fund were awarded in 2006 to local community organizations.

The People Fund is supported solely by Great Lakes Energy customers who allow their electric company to round up their bill each month to the next dollar.

In 2006, the rounded-up amounts totaled nearly $127,000 that was collected and distributed to help charitable causes throughout Great Lakes Energy's 26 county service area, which stretches from Kalamazoo to the Mackinac Straits.

"We would like to thank all our customers who participated last year in our billing round-up program for the People Fund," said Great Lakes Energy president/CEO Steve Boeckman. "Because of their generosity, many worthwhile organizations in their own communities were helped."

In the Charlevoix area, People Fund grants were awarded last year to the following organizations:

Beaver Island Lighthouse School: $2,500 toward construction of a wood shop at the school.

Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation: $4,000 for a wheelchair lift in the Boyne Rehabilitation Center.

The 2006 People Fund Annual Report is available by contacting Great Lakes Energy at 1-888-485-2537.

Rayders fall in Class C semifinal 67-54

BY ALLEN TELGENHOF

Charlevoix High School boys' basketball coach Keith Haske answers post-game questions at a press conference following the team's loss to Saginaw Nouvel Catholic Central in the Class C semifinals on March 22 at the Breslin Center on the campus of Michigan State University. Sitting at either side are tearful all-stater Mitch Crandall and Tyler Haske.

It was a bittersweet ending to the 2006-2007 season for the Rayders as Charlevoix fell to Saginaw Nouvel Catholic Central in the Class C semifinals, 67-54 on March 22 at the Breslin Center on the campus of Michigan State University.

The Rayders, who finished their season 23-4, saw two of last year's top three scorers transfer prior to the start of the season, seeming to hurt any chances for another Breslin visit.

But the remaining players and their coaches never wavered.

"My expectations don't change from year-to-year," coach Keith Haske said. "What we had this year was very special with 14 kids deciding 'I'm going to give of myself for the betterment of the team.' The guys got the point where 'whatever it takes' was their attitude and that's special."

Nouvel fell in the state finals to Bath, 65-60. Ironically, the Rayders lost to Bath in their first trip to the semis under Haske in 1999 by a score of 72-58.

This was Charlevoix's fourth trip to the Breslin in the past nine years — tied with Kalamazoo Christian and Saginaw for second-most in any class, trailing only Wyoming Tri-Unity Christian's five.

The Rayders' six quarterfinal appearances in that same period are tied with Kalamazoo Christian and Wyoming Tri-Unity Christian for the most in the state in any class.

Charlevoix's fourth trip to the Final Four in the past nine years is tied for second (tied with Kalamazoo Christian and Saginaw) behind Wyoming Tri-Unity with five.

The Rayders had their chances against Nouvel as they led 48-47 with 7:10 to play in the game. The Panthers held Charlevoix scoreless for nearly four minutes though as they took a 55-48 lead.

Austin Wilhelm scored four straight points on a tip-in and two free throws to cut the lead to three, at 55-52 with 3:10 left. On the ensuing play, Nouvel's all-stater Tim Ryan missed but teammate John McColgan scored on a putback.

After a Charlevoix time-out, Justin Friske's jumper rolled just off the rim, and Nouvel took advantage with a successful free throw attempt followed by a wide-open lay-up to push the lead back to 60-52 with only 1:39 to go.

In the game's final seven minutes, Nouvel's Ryan scored nine points while Charlevoix's first team all-state senior Mitch Crandall was held scoreless.

"We knew Crandall had been having a good game up to that point and we needed to limit his touches," Nouvel coach Warren Wood said. "We changed our defense on him and let the other four guys shoot the ball."

Crandall led the Rayders in scoring with 16 points, also pulling down six rebounds. Sophomore Justin Friske had nine points and six rebounds. Wilhelm finished with eight points.

Ty Haske, playing in his last game as a Rayder, scored seven points and played relentless defense.

"It was really cool (to finish his career playing at the Breslin for his father)," Ty Haske said. "I was down here years ago as the manager (when the Rayders played). I always wanted to play here."

Other Charlevoix standouts on defense were Darren Munson, Dan Swenor and Kyle Jones who combined to guard Ryan, who finished with 25 points.

Charlevoix was only 18 for 51 from the field, for a 35.3 percent rate, including 3 for 16 (18.8 percent) from the three-point line. Nouvel shot 44.7 percent from the field and 33.3 percent from three-point range.

"If we shot the ball like we usually do, maybe it's a different outcome," coach Haske said. "Our depth has worn teams down all year long and we thought it was going to happen (in the semis)."

Charlevoix earned the trip to the Breslin by defeating Houghton on March 20 in a thriller, 57-56.

Ty Haske again used his magical touch at the free throw line to lead the Rayders, sinking two shots with 12.7 seconds left in the game to seal the win.

Haske had earlier put Charlevoix ahead to stay, at 48-47 with a three-point play with five minutes left in the game. In the late third quarter and early fourth, the Rayders had gone 7:26 without a point, while Houghton turned a 43-37 deficit into a 47-43 lead with 5:30 left in the game.

Justin Friske scored nine points in the pivotal fourth quarter en route to the win. He finished with a game-high 17. Trevor Mays scored eight and Wilhelm added seven.

Charlevoix players lead Petoskey hockey team to championship

Pictured above are members of the Petoskey Area Hockey Association's BB Midget team who recently earned a tournament championship. The team is comprised of boys from Petoskey, Boyne City and Charlevoix. They are (back, from left) coach John Miller, Alex Molter, Dwayne Aulgur, Chris Loyselle, Ryan Ruggles, Travis Gunderson, Isaac Krey, Justin Stolt, Anthony Waugh, coach Bob Molter (center, from left) John Miller, Russ Williams, Evan Keller, Scot Suttliff and goalie Nick Ferree.

Teamwork, communication and determination took the Petoskey Area Hockey Association's BB Midget team to a tournament championship on the weekend of March 9 in Alpena.

The team dropped the first game to Royal Oak 2-4. Russell Williams scored unassisted and John Miller scored off a Travis Gunderson pass. Nick Ferree was in goal.

They ruled the next game, beating Alpena 5-1. Justin Stolt netted the first goal with a pass from John Miller. Miller, assisted by Gunderson, scored the next three, earning Miller a hat trick and Gunderson a play maker. Alex Molter took a Scott Sutliff pass for the last goal. Ferree made 17 saves while Petoskey put 27 shots on net.

Gaylord edged out Petoskey in the third game 2-3. Isaac Krey blasted one in from the blue line and Miller scored the other. Evan Keller assisted on both goals. Ferree was between the pipes.

The semi final game was a rematch with Gaylord. Petoskey controlled the fast paced, end-to-end game to win 6-3. Ryan Ruggles and Miller each scored twice, Anthony Waugh and Isaac Krey netted the others. Chris Loyselle and Waugh gave two assists, Russell Williams, Miller, Gunderson, and Krey, had one apiece. Ferree was in goal.

The championship game was with Royal Oak, who went in undefeated in the tourney. The first period went scoreless, then Petoskey broke loose and scored six times in the second period. Williams and Miller each netted two, and Molter and Ruggles the others. Assists came from Williams, Loyselle, Gunderson, Anthony Waugh and Keller. Goaltender Ferree took the win.

The team is comprised of boys from Petoskey, Boyne City and Charlevoix. They are coached by John Miller and Bob Molter. The team also won the league championship and the banner will be displayed at Griffin Arena.

Football players place at Power Lifting Championships

Several members of the Charlevoix High School football team competed in the Upper Peninsula State Power Lifting Championships on March 17.

Charlevoix placed fifth as a team and had several players receive medals. The event consisted of the dead lift, parallel squat and the bench press. Once again Charlevoix top lifter was Ray Jones with a combined lifting total of 1,220 pounds which included a 500 pound dead lift. Cliff Jones had a great day with a 985 pound total.

Charlevoix also had two state champions in their weight classes at the event. Clayton Mitchell won the 123 pound class and Josh Wolletz won the 132 pound class.

Others that placed were Trevor Cole fourth, Justin Klooster fifth, Bill Ivan sixth, Drew Largent sixth, Jake Rankl sixth, Ian Gauthier seventh, Drew Klooster eighth, Hunter Boss thirteenth.

Commissioners explore new avenues for lighting signs

SIGNS

Now, we want to rethink internal lighting. The interesting thing is it can be used, if used properly. We have to create a proper method to create an internally lit sign that looks like a carved sign," said John Hess, chairman of the City of Charlevoix Planning Commission.

Hess and city planner, Gerry Harsch, are exploring opportunities with internal lighting that address city council's aesthetic concerns and meet the objectives of business owners.

In early February, Harsch was directed by council to remove provisions for internally lit signs outside the central business district from the sign ordinance revision. Resident complaints were focused on internally lit signs threatening Charlevoix's small town feel and their aesthetically displeasing look.

"I can understand what they are concerned with. We will go back and find a type of sign that will be internally lit but has the look of the old-fashioned carved sign. If that doesn't work out, we won't have internally lit signs in certain areas of the city," Hess said.

The proposal to allow internally lit signs was proposed by the planning commission due to concerns with glare from up-lighting and other unsightly measures businesses take to light their signs.

Businesses who want to push for an internally lit sign in spite of the ordinance can request a variance through the City of Charlevoix Board of Appeals.

Other revisions to the ordinance which were adopted include a ban on billboards in the City of Charlevoix and provisions for Tourist Oriented Directional (TOD) signs to announce businesses off the main drag.

The program included in the proposed sign ordinance revision is sanctioned by the Michigan Department of Transportation. Now that city council has sanctioned the program through its sign ordinance, businesses can apply to the state for a sign.

Harsch said those that have expressed interest include Castle Farms and the Belvedere Golf Club. Both would have signs on U.S. 31 directing motorists to their locations.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
FERRY AVENUE RAMP AND DOCK EXTENSION

Contract No. 062766

Sealed Proposals will be received by the City of Charlevoix, Michigan at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, 49720, at 1:30 P.M., prevailing local time on April 16, 2007, and then publicly opened and read aloud, for the construction of Contract No 062766

The work generally consists of constructing a 40' wide x 30' long extension of the existing boat launching facility at Ferry beach in Charlevoix Michigan. A steel frame is being connected to fifteen H-piles that will support ten 12" thick concrete planks. Also a skid dock with decking four feet wide and 30 foot long will be constructed and placed at the boat launching facility.

Federal Labor Standards Provisions apply to this project.

The Drawings and Specifications under which the work is to be done will be on file after March 26, 2007 and may be examined at the Office of the City Manager, City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, 49720, phone (231)547-3270, and at the office of Performance Engineers, Inc., located at 406 Petoskey Avenue, in Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, phone (231)547-2121.

Drawings and Specifications may be obtained from Performance Engineers by submitting a fee of Twenty Five Dollars ($25.00) per set. The purchaser must supply the telephone number, fax number, and street address of the individual or firm to whom addenda (if any) can be directed.

A certified check or bidder's bond for a sum not less than five percent (5%) of the amount of the proposal will be required with each proposal.

The right is reserved by the Owner to accept any Proposal, to reject any Proposal, and to waive irregularities in Proposals.

No bids may be withdrawn after the above date and time for receiving bids for a period of thirty (30) days.

Residents argue council overdid it with channel swimming reg

SWIM

Charlevoix resident John McNabb, who described himself as a swimmer, boater and father, told city council, "I think we go too far when we try to regulate everything."

"The tradition (jumping from the pier into the channel) goes back years and years in this town."

He went on to suggest that instead of instating a new law for police to enforce that the city assign a lifeguard to the area and allow pier jumping during designated hours.

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. balked at the idea.

"It's not a safe situation. To put a lifeguard in jeopardy I think is asinine," Carlson said. "There have to be rules. It's a situation where someone can get hurt. And we need to fix the problem before something happens. I don't think it's taking that much away from someone."

Council members did try to throw adrenaline junkies a bone by asking city staff whether the lake bottom off the pier at Ferry Beach could be dredged and the pier which has been closed for years due to low lake levels reopened for swimmers.

Staff members did not have a concrete answer as to the cost and potential liability involved with reopening the Ferry Beach pier and are expected to report back to council.

City council's decision to pass the Pine River Channel swimming ordinance was based on a recommendation from city police chief, Gerard Doan.

Doan feared someone would be injured jumping too shallow, jumping out in front of a boat or slipping on the pier. He said a strong current runs through the rock-lined channel and the dangerous situation is further degraded by declining water depths.

He added that over the years the number of complaints coming through city hall regarding pier jumpers swimming in the channel has increased and the activity has strained lifeguards at nearby Michigan Beach whose attention is regularly turned from the swimming area to the channel.

Under the ordinance, Charlevoix officers are authorized to patrol the area and fine swimmers $50 for a first time offense, $75 the second time and $100 for third and subsequent offenses.

The city will post signs at Michigan Beach warning swimmers that the channel is off limits. The ordinance was modeled around the law that bans skateboards, bikers and in-line skaters from riding on sidewalks in the city.

Prior attempts to address channel swimming and pier jumping were quashed by complications with pier ownership. The South Pier is owned and maintained by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The key this time is the city ban on swimming in the channel, not jumping from the pier.

In a previous interview, representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Grand Haven office, have said the Corps will not be involved in the enforcement effort because they don't have the authority or manpower to tackle a project like this. But the Corps backs the city's effort.

> "I think we go too far when we try to regulate everything. The tradition (jumping from the pier into the channel) goes back years and years in this town."

What happened? Charlevoix City Council voted unanimously to pass an ordinance banning swimming in the Pine River Channel.

When? March 20

What does it mean? Police officers will now be able to ticket and fine swimmers in the Pine River Channel.

What fines will be handed down to violators? Under the ordinance, Charlevoix officers are authorized to patrol the area and fine swimmers $50 for a first time offense, $75 the second time and $100 for third and subsequent offenses.

Charlevoix Elementary School principal Dick Swenor is cheered on by one of the top readers from this year's March is Reading Month competition. Students read to earn minutes towards a paw print. When a paw print was earned, it was placed on the school wall, on a pre-measured route to one of the 27 check-in points of the Iditarod. The top readers from each grade received a dog sled ride compliments of the peppy principal dressed as everybody's favorite canine sleuth, Scooby Doo.

Library fights newly revised tax status

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Charlevoix Public Library director Valerie Meyerson is preparing to go toe-to-toe with the Michigan Tax Tribunal.

As of Dec. 31, 2006 the classification for the former library property at 109 Clinton St. was changed from tax-exempt to commercial.

"We put it back on the tax roll because (as of Dec. 31, 2006, tax day) it's not being used for library or public purposes," said Betsy Mason, assistant equalization director for Charlevoix County and City of Charlevoix assessor.

The nearly 6,500-square-foot building in question has been vacant since the Charlevoix Public Library relocated in fall 2006 to 220 West Clinton St. and is currently on the market.

The reclassification means the property which used to have no assessed value will be taxed using a commercial, non-homestead rate for the 2007 tax season.

Mason said the building was measured and an assessed taxable value of $247,700 was assigned to it as well as a true cash value of $495,350. Based on the 2006 millage rate the library will have to fork over an estimated $12,448 a year in taxes for the unused building.

While Mason claims each year she contracts with the City of Charlevoix to review properties for classification and value, Meyerson questions how the library property is any different than the former Charlevoix Middle School property or the city-owned building at 109 Mason St. where the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce now operates.

The former middle school, which is now the renovated library, was vacant and tax exempt for two years. And the new chamber site was unused with the exception of short-term use by city employees since the Charlevoix

Norwood Township resident Wayne Wynkoop will request special use permits to mine his property at a Norwood Township Planning Commission meeting April 12.

To mine or not to mine

Wayne Wynkoop's limestone mine will once again be the subject of scrutiny during the 6:30 p.m., Thursday, April 12 meeting of the Norwood Township Planning Commission.

Now that nearly two months have passed since a Traverse City judge told Wynkoop to cease sand and gravel extraction on his property, Wynkoop has requested special use permits on five parcels of land to extract, process and transport materials from the property.

"I just want to get this behind me so my family and I can move forward," Wynkoop said.

When asked whether he will attend the meeting, Wynkoop said, "I'm still deciding that one."

According to Norwood Township Planning Commission chairman, Tom Mielke, the original public hearing scheduled for March 27 was

Change may cost library $13,000

LIBRARY

Downtown Development Authority bought it in 1986.

"We didn't feel it was within the exemption as a public library — it's not being used as a public library and it's not open to the public," Mason said.

But Meyerson argues the library falls under the same exemption as government entities including the city and school district.

"There's a statute that says if your property is not being used for the reason your organization exists it can be taxed. That's for a non-profit library but we are a district library, that's how we were formed and she (Mason) doesn't understand that," Meyerson said. "We are a governmental entity. We are a district library. We are a tax collecting agency. How can you use tax dollars to pay taxes. We are formed legally as a district library — a governmental entity of the State of Michigan the same way the school district and city are."

This reclassification and taxation shift which Meyerson was notified of in a letter sent by the City of Charlevoix Board of Review at the end of February not only raised her eyebrows but also gained the attention of representatives of Charlevoix Public Schools who may also have to foot a portion of the library tax bill.

Shawn Biddle, business manager for Charlevoix Public Schools, and school board president Bill Trubilowicz joined Meyerson and library board members Mary Ann Chew, Cynthia Posmus and Yvonne Wendt at the Board of Review meeting on March 13 to express their angst over the reclassification and to request a reversal.

Then, on March 28 Meyerson received the board's response stating the reversal was denied.

"I'm shocked that they didn't change it. We are a governmental entity. We brought all these statutes as to why we are tax exempt and they didn't care. It's absolutely ridiculous," she said. "This is a waste of taxpayers' dollars. Now I have to go to the Michigan Tax Tribunal with an attorney — that's more tax dollars."

Meyerson is currently researching the appeal process to the Michigan Tax Tribunal in Lansing. She plans to use a property specialist from the library's law firm to represent the library's interest. She estimated the attorney's hourly rate at $150-$200.

If this appeal fails, she said the library will have to come up with the money somehow.

"We'll have to get the money from somewhere. It comes right out of our budget. I don't know if that means cutting services, less computers, we can provide. I don't know yet," she said.

What happened? As of Dec. 31, 2006 the assessor for the City of Charlevoix changed the classification for the former library property at 109 Clinton St. from tax-exempt to commercial.

What's being disputed? The assessor claims the property was put back on the tax roll because it's not being used for library or public purposes. But library officials argue the library falls under the same exemption as government entities including the city and school district.

What does it mean? The reclassification means the property which used to have no assessed value will be taxed using a commercial, non-homestead rate for the 2007 tax season. An approximate cost for the year is $12,448

Gohs delves into the politics of paddling

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

Not to gloat, but the wife and I are repeatedly told how lucky we are to have such well behaved kids. However, instead of basking in the compliment, I'm insulted by people who dismiss the structure, attention, reward and punishment employed to produce kids possessing good manners and respect.

Then again, if lazy parents convince themselves good kids are the result of Leprechaun magic, they are absolved of their dereliction of duty.

Self adulation aside, this feared child fighter from way back was disheartened to hear of recent efforts to ban spanking in California. Now, before you call Child Protective Services to haul me away, I'm advocating corporal punishment, not child abuse.

A roomful of eggheads could argue the emotional and physical damage of slapping the hand of a youngster reaching for the stove, but it cannot be compared to snuffing cigarettes on your child because daddy didn't hug you enough — one is punishment, one is abuse.

"I think it's pretty hard to argue you need to beat a child 3 years old or younger," said 22nd District California State Assemblywoman, Sally Lieber, author of the Child Abuse and Infant/Toddler Protection Bill, in a Mercury News article by Mike Zapler. "Is it OK to whip a 1-year-old or a 6-month-old or a newborn?"

Lieber's original proposal made spanking kids 3 and under a misdemeanor punishable by a $1,000 fine and/or a year in jail. Due to a lack of support, Lieber altered the bill to allow spanking, but outlaw shaking, hitting the head or using sticks, belts, electric cords and other implements on kids.

When I asked the assemblywoman the difference between responsible parents smacking a child's bottom for running toward a highway and one who forces their kid to drink bleach out of craziness, she told me of a man who beat his girlfriend's daughter to death after what he said began as an attitude adjustment. I got the distinct feeling from Lieber that any parent who spanks their child could find themselves suddenly flailing a dead body.

Remember, in the government's eye, the citizenry consists of codependent morons hell-bent on self-destruction and in dire need of policing.

I find it ironic, though more morbid than funny, that Lieber is childless, and according to the League of Women Voters of California, "strongly pro-choice."

Kill your unborn child, but for safety's sake, don't spank it once born.

So why was Gohs wasting the company dime on long-distance to discover a southwestern politician feels all physical punishment is abuse?

In case you haven't noticed, Michigan legislators are nearly as hyperactive and arbitrary in action as those of the Golden State, so I figure it won't be long before a Great Lakes' senator decides slapping a 4-year-old's bottom is the same as drop-kicking a newborn.

The new version of Lieber's bill will go to committee soon and could be up for a final vote by August. While I agree the use of implements is unnecessary when doling a spanking, I fear that ultimate goal of outlawing all forms of physical punishment.

For now, a majority of states including Michigan support reasonable force, though there is a de facto ban on spanking since so many parents think it illegal.

The term, "Reasonable force" was penned with a wink and a nudge for a reason. After all, defend spanking and face condemnation by Generation Touchy-Feely, those anti-punitive punks convinced ignoring bad behavior will end wars, stop violence and give ordinary tap water just the right hint of lemon-lime.

One needn't be stranded with Piggy and Ralph to know, left alone, children will not choose courtesy and obedience. Children must learn a healthy fear of the illegal and dangerous that is so vital to the human animal's survival and success in modern society.

Lieber and the other ghouls feasting on the parental rights corpse say children are the only people in society who legally receive physical punishment. They must be unfamiliar with war, prison, the death penalty and "Make My Day" laws.

The world is a dirty dangerous place where limits must be learned. Our prisons overflow with the mistreated, in part, because there are so many inadequate parents. So we jail adults for thievery or euthanize them for murder because many of them grew up without balance.

On one matter I agree with my opponents, let us teach our kids to be productive members of society — to fail one is to fail the other. But in the end, child abuse is already illegal and though corporal punishment is far from a cure-all, for many, spanking is an important tool in the child rearing repertoire, outlawing it will do nothing to stop people who cut, burn, starve or molest their kids.

If you don't want to spank your child, don't. But continue applying the "One Rotten Apple" solution to society's problems and it won't be long before the government dictates what food, clothing, entertainment and amount of time families spend together is legal — or not.

Make lasting memories this Easter Sunday

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

It was April 1993, the last time I would spend Easter with mom.

We packed ourselves into the maroon colored, wood paneled van. A bright red cooler filled with ice and assorted sandwiches sat in the back of the vehicle for snacks on the long trip to Florida. Our two girls were in middle school back then, and their thoughts were filled with getting the perfect tan and visiting Planet Hollywood. I, on the other hand, found my thoughts drifting back to an earlier time and place when Easter meant something very different.

For my sister and me, Easter meant wearing dresses that mom sewed together with love and care only a mother could possess. She would diligently work through many evenings cutting patterns purchased from a small shop down the street or she would expertly design her own. While listening to the old Singer sewing machine whirring in the background, my eyes were glazed over watching the Ed Sullivan Show on our black and white Zenith. Mom would finish up the dresses, hemming them by hand. The final touch — adding delicate lace or satin ribbon to the hems and necklines. She had a talent for creating and designing clothes that made us look and feel like we'd walked off the pages of Life magazine.

. Easter also meant that we no longer had to give up chocolate and other assorted candy as Lent was over. The excitement of finding our Easter baskets carefully hidden behind a living room curtain were quickly diminished when we were reminded not to taste any of our goodies, as we would be leaving soon for church. In order to receive communion we needed to fast before receiving the sacrament. As a child I wondered who came up with the idea of not eating anything one hour before taking communion. I thought it was just a rule parents made to keep their kids clean before going to church. Thank goodness the Catholic church has found it in its heart to become flexible with the many rules that kids found difficult to follow.

After church, still donned in our new Easter bonnets and matching gloves, we gaily skipped about with our baskets while dad took out the old movie camera to record a bit of history that day. Easter also meant cousins, aunts, uncles and grandpar-

LETTERS to the editor

LETTER RESPONSE

Editor:

As I read the letter from Bo Boss in last week's Courier (entitled, "Save money, combine positions," printed on page 5 of the March 28 edition) suggesting that I have some personal agenda in the superintendent search, I was struck by one glaring fact — he never spoke to me about the issue or the timetable for hiring a superintendent before writing to the paper. If he had taken the time to call me or attend a school board meeting to talk to me, here is what I would have told him.

To claim that the superintendent search is my personal agenda ignores the other six school board members who have an equal vote in setting the timeline and the search plan. The July 1 target for hiring a new superintendent is based on two facts — wanting to ensure a smooth transition from superintendent (Jim) Cooper and making sure that we have the best possible pool of candidates for our next superintendent. What we learned last year with the departure of Dr. (John) Sturock is that waiting until June to start looking left us with a small group of picked-over candidates. Charlevoix is competing with 23 other districts in the state that are currently looking for superintendents and we want a first round draft choice.

The superintendent/principal model for school administration appears to work effectively in only a handful of small school districts across the state. Charlevoix has more students in our high school than most of districts, someone who is a skilled negotiator and is a leader in the community as well as at the schools. Few candidates that have this level of experience would consider filling the dual roles.

Schools are a people driven business. Charlevoix Public Schools has 130 employees that support roughly 1,300 students with an annual operating budget of $12 million. The dual role concept would provide theoretical savings by not filling the superintendent or principal position. The salary that either one of these positions draws is less than 1 percent of that budget. We could miss hiring the top quality superintendent that the district needs to guide us in the future for a less than 1 percent financial gain.

I agree with Mr. Boss in that we have top-notch business manager, Shawn Biddle. Shawn is very capable of developing the financial plans that we need. She needs a strong superintendent to provide the framework of the school operation during the budgeting process and then again, to implement those plans. There has always been strong superintendent/business manager team to manage the schools — think back to the Gordon VanWieren/Rich Kelly days.

Everyone knows that Michigan is in a financial crisis right now and that it will not be cured overnight. The threat of financial uncertainty in school funding and staff layoffs will not go away until the state finds its way out of trouble. We cannot operate our schools with a part-time superintendent for some unknown period of time and the constitutional question before the court as it regards religious rights afforded to the citizens of the United States by the First Amendment and the practice of polygamy by a religious sect in the following excerpt:

"The inquiry is not as to the power of Congress to prescribe criminal laws for the territories, but as to the guilt of one who knowingly violates a law which has been properly enacted, if he entertains a religious belief that the law is wrong. Congress cannot pass a law for the government of the territories which shall prohibit the free exercise of religion. The First Amendment to the Constitution expressly forbids such legislation. Religious freedom is guaranteed everywhere throughout the United States, so far as congressional interference is concerned. The question to be determined is, whether the law now under consideration comes within this prohibition. The word 'religion' is not defined in the Constitution. We must go elsewhere, therefore, to ascertain its meaning, and no more appropriately we think, than to the history of the times in the midst of which the provision was adopted. The pre-ents would be caravanning over to our modest home to take part in the feast that mom had spent hours preparing. After eating until we thought we would burst, she then brought out the piéce de résistance — a cake made to look like a white rabbit. I'll always remember the bunny rabbit ears made from the white, dry cleaner cardboard that kept my dad's shirts nicely pressed. Mom had used round cake pans to bake this wonderful delicacy, and sliced the slightly cooled cake in two to form the body — the remaining cake formed his head. To this day, it's a pattern still gracing the magazines that women purchase from their local grocery store. The fluffy white frosting and handfuls of flavorful coconut made the rabbit come to life. The final display of black string licorice for the whiskers gave the rabbit its authentic look. As a small child I sat in awe of such a creation.

Years have passed, I am thinking back to those days as if they were yesterday. We're traveling down the road again to celebrate Easter, but this time it would be different. Mom had broken her back and the healing took its toll. She moved slower but still wanted to please us all by preparing food items and spending time listening to our girls share their latest escapades. I'll never forget those brief moments we shared. That trip would be our last — mom passed away from a massive stroke two months later.

Our girls are grown now with families of their own. If I could visit their memory banks it would be fun to see what they have kept from our many years traveling to Florida during their Easter vacation. Though their childhood memories and mine are vastly different, the important thing is that we took the time create them. The best thing about memories is that no one can take them away from you, they become endearing as we age and sometimes they are all we have left.

Library invites book lovers to 'Read all about it' author event

Anne-Marie Oomen

'House of Fields'

Anne-Marie Oomen, author of "House of Fields," will pay a special visit to the Charlevoix Public Library at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 17, for an evening of first-rate storytelling, book signing and question-and-answer time with guests.

Oomen is visiting the Charlevoix library as part of the Library of Michigan's 2007 "Michigan Notable Authors Tour." This year, 18 authors whose engaging works were chosen as 2007 Michigan Notable Books selections will visit nearly 70 libraries throughout the state. The Charlevoix library is located at 220 West Clinton St. in Charlevoix. For details about this author event, call (231) 237-7340 or visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

Oomen writes haunting lyrical stories of farm, fields and family. With rural culture as its heart, her first nonfiction collection, "Pulling Down the Barn," a Michigan Notable Book, is now in its second printing. "House of Fields" and "Un-coded Woman" as well as two books of poetry, "Seasons of the Sleeping Bear" and "Moniker" all offer insight into country living at its quirkiest and most tender. She has written and produced several plays. She serves as chair of creative writing at Interlochen Arts Academy where she is faculty editor for the Interlochen Review. She and her husband live in Empire.

Charlevoix native, fourth generation farmer wins 2007 Marge Karker Scholarship

Charlevoix native, Isaac Matchett, pictured above on his family farm In Marion Township with his father, Tim Matchett, has been named the recipient of Michigan Farm Bureau's 2007 Marge Karker Scholarship. He is a freshman at Michigan State University, studying livestock management and plans to work on the family sheep farm after graduation.

Isaac Matchett of Charlevoix has been named the recipient of Michigan Farm Bureau's 2007 Marge Karker Scholarship.

Matchett, 19, is a freshman at Michigan State University, studying livestock management.

"After college, I plan to work with my dad on the family sheep farm," Matchett, who will be the fourth generation to tend the herd, said. "My goal is to become a full-time farmer, producing lamb and buying and selling feeds."

Prior to attending Michigan State University, Matchett was an active student at Charlevoix High School, where he graduated in 2006 with a 3.8 grade-point average. There he earned achievement awards in construction, robotics, management support and accounting, and was a member of the National Honor Society. He also earned his academic letter and competed in both cross country and track and field.

Throughout high school Matchett worked on his family's 275-acre, 160-head sheep operation near Charlevoix. He also pitched in on some neighboring operations, shearing sheep and doing other farm chores.

The son of Timothy and Linda Matchett is also involved in his county Farm Bureau organization as the Young Farmer representative to the board of directors.

The $1,500 Marge Karker Scholarship is awarded annually to a student enrolled in a two-year, agriculture-related program at Michigan State University. He was honored at the Agriculture and Natural Resources Award program, March 16 at the Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

Calling all egg hunters

The 16th Annual Easter Egg Hunt will take place at 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 7 in Bridge Park in downtown Charlevoix. Prior to the Egg Hunt, Stafford's Weathervane restaurant will host the annual Easter Bunny Luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Children may have a free photo taken with the Easter Bunny, compliments of Charlevoix Camera. Following the luncheon and photographs, the Easter bunny will hop down to Bridge Park, located above the Beaver Island Boat Company, for the Easter Egg Hunt compliments of Northwestern Bank. Don't forget to bring a basket to hold your child's share of the 6,000 prize-filled eggs. Prior to the egg hunt, the children ages 2 to 10 will be divided into four age categories. For more information, contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office at (231) 547-2101.

DEATH NOTICE

Robert Houtman: Died March 31, 2007

Robert Houtman, 72, of Williston, Fla., passed away March 31. A memorial service will be held at a later date.

OBITUARIES

Ada Kelly, 100, of Charlevoix, beloved mother-in-law and grandmother, died Tuesday March 27 at Boulder Park Terrace.

She was born Feb. 2, 1907, in Clarksburg, W.Va., daughter of James Richardson and Eliza Jane Partridge, originally from West Bromwich, England. Ada lived most of her childhood and young adulthood in Cleveland, Ohio where her father worked for the steel mills.

Ada met and married her husband, Paul Ahem Kelly in Cleveland where they both worked for The Cleveland Press. They later moved to Columbus, Ohio where Paul eventually became owner of a successful advertising agency. The Kelly's of Columbus, Ohio, also became known for their loyalty to the Ohio State University Buckeyes. That affiliation was Ada's trademark as years went by, and her family is certain that she has entered through the pearly gates to the tune of the Ohio State University fight song. Ada worked for 25 years at the Ohio State Medical Association while in Columbus. In her leisure, she enjoyed sports, playing golf and cards, reading, baking cookies and participating in family activities.

Ada resided with her son's family in Charlevoix for the past 15 years. She has been a resident of Boulder Park Terrace for a year-and-a-half. She was preceded in death by her husband, Paul A. Kelly of Columbus, Ohio, two daughters, Patricia Anne and Rosemary Kelly of Columbus, Ohio, and a son, Richard A. Kelly of Charlevoix. Ada is survived by a daughter-in-law, Anne Kelly of Charlevoix; five grandchildren, R. Scott Kelly (Anu) of Washington, D.C., Amy Ellen Kelly (Chris) Warner of Fenton, Jennifer Anne (Michael) Guglielmi of San Carlos, Calif., Laura Elizabeth (Brian) Kelly of Charlevoix, Patricia Jill Kelly of Charlevoix; and eight great-grandchildren.

There will be a memorial Mass offered for Ada at Charlevoix St. Mary Church at a future date, still to be determined. She will be buried at St. Joseph's Cemetery in Columbus, Ohio.

Gerald 'J.T.' Boulton:

July 27, 1945 - March 30, 2007

Gerald Eugene "J.T." Boulton, 61, died Friday, March 30 at his apartment in Charlevoix.

Rite of Christian Burial took place on Tuesday, April 3 at St. Mary Catholic Church in Charlevoix. Fr. Jerry Hunko officiated. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

J.T. was born on July 27, 1945 in Charlevoix, the son of Eugene Karison and Mary K. McSawby Boulton. He has lived in Charlevoix his entire life. He was a member of the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians.

He is survived by his mother, Mary K. Washagesic of Charlevoix; two sisters, Janice (Duane) Newstead of Alanson and Donna Washagesic of Charlevoix; one brother, Robert Washagesic of Charlevoix; as well as several nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by two sisters, Deanna Belcher and Glenda Cantu; and one brother, Richard Boulton.

Visitation was on Monday, April 2 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Memorials may be given to Charlevoix County Humane Society.

LETTERS

cise point of the inquiry is, what is religious freedom which has been guaranteed."

The principle historical documents presented by Chief Justice Waite in his opinion to reveal the thinking at the time the Bill of Rights as ratified (1791) comes from two sources: "The Virginia Act For Establishing Religious freedom," written by Thomas Jefferson in 1785, and Jefferson's letter to the Danbury Baptist Association which was written in 1802.

The Virginia Act passed by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Virginia in 1786 made it perfectly clear that there was to be a "true distinction between what properly belongs to the church and what to the state."

"...that to suffer the civil magistrate to intrude his powers into the field of (religious) opinion, and to restrain the profession or propagation of (religious) principles on supposition of their ill tendency, is a dangerous fallacy which at once destroys all religious liberty, 'it is declared' that it is time enough for the rightful purpose of civil government for its officers to interfere when (religious) principles break out into overt acts against peace and good order."

In the following excerpt from Jefferson's Danbury letter he reiterates the same clear-cut distinction he made in the Virginia Act:

"Believing with you that religion is a matter which lies solely between man and his God; that he owes account to none other for his faith or his worship; that the legislative powers of the government reach (religious) actions only, and not opinions..."

Mr. Gohs and his fellow travelers at the Charlevoix Courier may have foolishly chosen not to agree with Chief Justice Waite's Constitutional analysis of where the appropriate legislative boundary lines may be drawn through the First Amendment to protect the citizenry from the oftentimes murderous application of religious doctrine, but nevertheless to sensible clear thinking people Chief Justice Waite's opinion was well argued and the correct reading of Thomas Jefferson's and the other founding fathers' intent.

WHAT NEXT IN NORWOOD?

Editor:

In a long line of apparent indiscretions and glaring conflict of interest maneuvers, Mr. (Wayne) Wynkoop, Norwood Township supervisor, is at it again.

Most recently, an emergency meeting was held, at the very awkward weekday time of 8 a.m. to discuss budget issues regarding proposed pay raises for certain township officials. Also noteworthy, on March 19 pay raises were approved for the members of the planning commission and the zoning administrator.

Conveniently, this meeting was held just weeks prior to Mr. Wynkoop's plan to present his new improved limestone quarry proposal, to the very same planning commission.

It should be noted, Mr. Wynkoop currently has a court ordered injunction prohibiting current or future use of his land for any commercial use, revoked only with a court order.

As time goes by, it is becoming more apparent that the current issues in Norwood Township are less about the rights of land ownership, but rather center around misuse and abuse of political power for personal and financial gains, an overt neglect of local zoning, nearby neighbors and the township as a whole, and finally, a viscous cycle of "an old boys' network" gone bad.

Sadly, it appears that the Norwood Township governmental bodies, all appointed by Mr. Wynkoop, are quickly losing their credibility, or at the least their decisions rendered, need to be reviewed with the highest scrutiny, and possibly held in question in a higher court of check and balance.

But hey, they must be doing something right, for the whole gang just received a nice pay raise, including, a self-nominated raise for the township supervisor himself, Mr. Wynkoop.

In Norwood, we need to save our community and our hard earned tax dollars. A change is desperately needed.

HOW TO BE THE MVP

Editor:

It was a fantastic year for boys' high school basketball. I took my 10-year-old son to most of the games including the recent one at the Michigan State University Breslin Center. I would like to congratulate all the players for an outstanding season filled with tremendous teamwork. You never knew from one night to the next which boys were going to end up scoring the points. It seemed like there were at least two starting teams.

But there was one player who I told my son is probably the most valuable player. He didn't start on the first team and he didn't start on the second team. But in some ways he played more than any other player on the court.

I do not know any players personally but was always taken how this player was continuously motivating the rest of the team to victory. He was there when they went on the court yelling with enthusiasm. He was there when his fellow players came off the court with words of encouragement. He was there at each time out going from player to player pumping each of them up.

I remember the first time I saw him take the court at the end of the game. His teammates and the students roared with cheers. The roars turned into hysterics as he shot a three-pointer and it was all net. Each game my son and I would watch this young man "play the game" of basketball with his team. It takes a spark to make a flame and a little wind to make it a roaring fire. I told my son that this young man is the spark and the wind that keeps the fire burning. That is why I think number 11 should be considered the MVP of the 2007 Charlevoix High School basketball season.

Do you know what your kids are watching?

KIDS CORNER

Benjamin Gohs

Whether viewed at the theater or home, kids love movies. Many a Saturday evening I join the wife and kids for some new or classic picture, but nothing makes me madder than a movie that goes from PG to NC-17 in some lame attempt to reach adults in the audience.

And, while Dr. Spock I ain't, I don't appreciate my 11-year-old daughter seeing Pinocchio in a thong in "Shrek 2," Wolverine dry humping Jean Gray in "X-Men III," or hearing a robot talking about getting a Brazilian wax in the movie "Robots."

Before you call me a prude, Google "define: Brazilian wax" and ask yourself why an X-rated procedure is referenced in a movie obviously aimed at kids.

The Motion Picture Association of America (MPAA) instated a voluntary and unenforceable rating system since 1968. The MPAA ratings board is an anonymous group of parents who view, discuss and then vote on what they feel a movie should be rated.

A recent study for the Harvard School of Public Health on changes in movie ratings from 1992 to 2003 claims more and more objectionable material has made its way into lower rating classifications.

"Age-based ratings alone do not provide good information about the depiction of violence, sex, profanity, and other content, and the criteria for rating movies became less stringent over the last decade," stated study authors Kimberly M. Thompson, Sc.D and Fumie Yokota, Ph.D.

Disney's 2002 film "The Rookie" is a good example of what some are calling "Ratings creep." Though G-rated, the movie contains the depiction of alcohol and cigarette use, a woman grabbing her husband's butt and minor profanity. The Motion Picture Association of America Web site contradicts itself by stating G-rated movies contain no bad language, sexuality or drug use.

A movie rated PG-13 may contain nudity, drug use, gore, rape and foul language, leading some to believe today's PG-13 is the new R rating.

Movies and DVDs have brief and often vague explanations for why they received a given rating, but that is of little comfort when halfway through a kids' movie you are mortified by a reference or scene which the Motion Picture Association of America board didn't find offensive.

To this end, some have called for movie makers to be fined or regulated by the government. While I wouldn't go that far, I would like to know what I'm about to let my kids watch.

Lucky for concerned parents there are several Web sites including: www.kids-in-mind.com, www.pluggedinonline.com and www.screenit.com which can help.

Each site offers detailed information on thousands of old and new movies including types of profanity, instances of nudity, drug use and much more.

All three sites are fast, effective and free ways to check out a movie without investing two hours of your life or spending money on tickets and DVDs.

While all three sites were helpful, I spent most of my time at www.screenit.com, a site run by a husband and wife team tired of not knowing what they were about to let their kids watch.

Let's say you are unsure whether "The Last Mimzy" (PG) is right for your youngster. The Screenit.com crew detailed the following and more: alcohol/drugs-none, blood/gore-minor, guns/weapons-mild, sex/nudity-mild, smoking-none, violence-mild.

Critics of concerned parents say your kids will be exposed to junk in the media regardless of what you do, and that may be true, but just because your children have the potential to be hit by a car while on the sidewalk doesn't mean you should push them into traffic.

For more information on the Motion Picture Association of America visit www.mpaa.org.

Movie ratings at a glance

From the Motion Picture Association of America's Web site www.mpaa.org, what ratings mean:

G — General Audiences: Though not automatically a kids' movie, a G-rated film contains no themes, language, nudity, sex or violence that would offend parents of young children.

PG — Parental Guidance Suggested: A film the Motion Picture Association of America warns should be examined by parents before allowing kids to watch. PG-rated films may contain profanity, violence, brief nudity or other elements not suitable for children, but not drug use.

PG-13 — Parental Guidance Suggested for children under 13: A PG-13 movie is supposed to be even more of a warning to parents. The Motion Picture Association of America says the PG-13 rating, "leaps beyond the boundaries of the PG rating in theme, violence, nudity, sensuality, language, or other contents, but does not quite fit within the restricted R category. Any drug use content will initially require at least a PG-13 rating."

R — Restricted: Children 17 and under must be accompanied by a parent or guardian due to the depiction including strong language, violence, nudity, drug abuse, rape, gore and more.

NC-17 — No one 17 or under admitted. The NC-17 rating is an R-rated movie with much more apparently objectionable material.

'Must reads' from library director Valerie Meyerson

The following is a list of age specific books selected by Charlevoix Public Library director Valerie Meyerson for April reading.

JOANNA HARRISON, "DEAR BEAR"
PRE-K TO FIRST-GRADE

Katie is afraid of what might be under the stairs. She's sure it's a bear. Katie's mom suggests she write a letter to the bear and what follows is a gentle correspondence encouraged by Katie's parents reaching a lovely ending. Read it one-on-one or to a group to explore creative ways to face your fears.

JILL DAVIS, "OPEN YOUR EYES"
MIDDLE SCHOOL AND UP

Well-known children's authors including Lois Lowry, Harry Mazer and Jean Fritz, share personal stories of living and traveling in other countries "opening their eyes" to the world. An Army brat is given a precious gift by a poor Tokyo shop keeper. A missionary kid growing up in China is awestruck to come home to America – a country she had only heard about. The African-American daughter of a U.S. senator hosts an exchange student from South Africa and both are forever changed. Their stories give us a greater appreciation for the world and perspective for home, wherever that may be.

Beaver Island's lone scout reaches out

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Danny LaFreniere shows off a few of the dozens of hats he made. LaFreniere, who was inspired by a friend of his who is currently fighting breast cancer, hopes the hats will keep the heads of chemotherapy patients warm while they fight for their lives.

Beaver Island's lone Boy Scout, Danny LaFreniere, measured, cut and sewed enough material to make nearly 70 hats which he later had hand delivered to the oncology clinics of both Northern Michigan Hospital and Charlevoix Area Hospital.

If you ever doubt the kind of positive influence one person can have on complete strangers, take heart.

One Beaver Island Boy Scout of Troop 200, in fact the only Beaver Island Boy Scout of Troop 200, has touched the lives of at least 60 people suffering from a terrible illness. But you wouldn't know it to hear his humble take on things.

"I did this for the people that were going through chemotherapy," 13-year-old scout Danny LaFreniere said. "So, I sewed some hats together and sent them over (to the mainland)."

Danny made 64 fleece skullcaps over the course of several weeks.

"I just really wanted to do this," he said. "My grandma bought some (of the materials) and she sent it to my mom."

Danny was inspired by his friend Liz Lanier who has been fighting breast cancer since October 2006.

"I've known Danny for about four years," Lanier said. "I think what he's doing is very touching."

She added, "We gave one (hat) to a man receiving chemotherapy right next to me and he loved it."

Lanier said one person can truly make a difference in the lives of others.

"I don't remember thinking outside of the box at 13 like that," she said. "When they find out he's (Danny) only 13, it's really something else."

She added, "I have two hats and I believe most of them in Petoskey (Northern Michigan Hospital) are gone already. They have a hat tree and when I went there last, there was only one left."

Danny's hats went to the oncology clinics of both Northern Michigan Hospital and Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Despite being the lone scout on the island, Danny makes his presence known.

"He's a pretty famous kid in his own right over here," said Danny's mom, Jacque LaFreniere. "I'm pretty proud of him. He's a good kid."

She added, "This was supposed to be a six-hour service project for his star rank, though we probably spent that or more."

While Danny has no fellow scouts to share his contribution to people suffering with cancer, Jacque said Danny isn't really alone.

"Danny has role models in his cousins who are both Eagle Scouts and that's kind of what he is aiming at," Jacque said. "I think he's doing really good. He's got a good goal to become an Eagle Scout and I think he has the stick-to-itiveness to hang on 'til he gets the status he wants."

Development authority names Carey director

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

A Charlevoix native has been given the opportunity to shape his hometown's future.

On April 1, Keith Carey, 31, was officially hired as the new executive director of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority.

"I'm excited to be official. It's been a tenuous few weeks in no man's land," said Carey, whose Cool Cities coordinator contract with the City of Charlevoix expired at the end of March. "Folks are expecting the project (Cool Cities) to continue but I didn't have the authority to start implementation."

His Cool Cities contract was approved in November 2006 for $3,500 a month for three to six months. His new contract provides a salary of $42;800 a year plus full medical benefits.

"We have a lot of projects going and a lot of things we want to do. We need someone there (at city hall) more than the board that meets once or twice a month. He's done a great job and we are happy to have him on board," said Hugh Mason, chairman of the Downtown Development Authority.

Keith Carey

Carey, who coordinated the development of a market study of the downtown area, and of a five-year economic enhancement action strategy through the Michigan Economic Development Corporation's Cool Cities Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns grant, said he now has the clout he needs as a true city employee at the department head level to bring elements of the plan to fruition.

"It seems to me, the DDA would like to see as many first-year HyettPalma recommendations as possible," Carey said of his immediate priorities.

These first-year recommendations were developed by consultants with the firm, HyettPalma, who formulated the Cool Cities Blueprint market study and action strategy. The main elements of the first-year plan are listed in the graphic at right.

According to representatives of the Downtown Development Authority, Carey's main focus will be to implement the blueprint, coordinate downtown activities, act as a mediator between businesses and city government and explore funding opportunities.

"At this point, the sky's the limit. We have a to-do list, significant goals and a great downtown that still needs some improvements," he said. "I want to do something that gets people excited about downtown Charlevoix from a shopper's, business owner's and visitor's perspective."

His plans including a hefty marketing element focused specifically on downtown Charlevoix that will incorporate development of a Web site aimed at promoting what exists and attracting potential new business opportunities.

Carey is a 1997 graduate of Alma College with a degree in history and a double minor in political science and communications.

He moved back to Charlevoix in the fall of 2006 from the Lansing area where he lived for 10 years. While in Lansing, he spent over four years as chief legislative aid for former Republican State Representative Scott Shackleton. He also worked for three years as a lobbyist for the National Federation for Independent Business, a small business advocacy group.

While his career in Lansing was rewarding, Carey said after the birth of his son, Camden, 1, he and his wife Heather felt the need to settle in a place well-suited to raising children and Charlevoix was their choice.

Carey is the son of Bill and Judy Carey of Charlevoix and is a 1993 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Carey can be contacted by calling the Charlevoix city manager's office at city hall, (231) 547-3270.

What happended?

On April 1, Keith Carey was officially hired as the new executive director of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority.

Blueprint first-year action plan initiatives:

Hire a downtown coordinator

Install way finding sign system

Fully link downtown with the Little Traverse Wheelway

Place bike racks throughout downtown

Reintroduce ice rink into East Park plan

Remove parking meters

Introduce two-hour parking time limit and license tag monitoring system

Balance transient and shopper's dock slips

Encourage maximum amount of outdoor seating at food establishments

DDA debates message meters send

City officials debate benefit of removing Bridge Street parking meters

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

File photo

Whether or not the City of Charlevoix will follow the consulting firm HyettPalma's recommendation to remove parking meters on Bridge Street is a topic of debate. Meters are traditionally in place by Memorial Day, May 28.

HyettPalma's golden rule for success of the Downtown Blueprint marketing plan for Charlevoix is to follow the plan but one of the first recommendations considered was met with opposition.

On March 26, Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority discussed the consulting firm's recommendation to remove parking meters from Bridge Street this year and enforce a two-hour parking limit similar to that which exists on side streets including the 100 block of Mason Street.

Downtown Development Authority executive director, Keith Carey, said the concept behind meter removal is, "Throwing out the proverbial welcome mat."

City police chief Gerard Doan was in attendance and discouraged the authority from supporting Bridge Street meter removal.

"The idea with the meters is they keep people moving. Pull the meters and I have an enforcement issue," Doan said.

Enforcement of non-metered, regulated parking is currently accomplished on side streets by meter readers who chalk tires and check the markings.

While enforcement is one concern, Downtown Development Authority member, Kirby Dipert, who also owns and operates retail stores on Bridge Street, said another is employees of businesses and downtown residents parking there.

"We want Bridge Street spaces to turn," he said.

While the city faces possible Bridge Street squatters if a decision is made to remove the meters, they also grapple with a potential loss of revenue. In 2006 parking violations, including payments for expired meter fines, generated $21,446. The meter readers cost the city $17,600. The $3,846 balance is directed to the city's general fund. The projected revenue this year is estimated at $21,500 and expenses at $17,600.

Fines for meter violations are $2. After 24 hours the fine spikes to $10 and to $20 after 72 hours.

Interim city manager and treasurer Rick Brandi said revenue from Bridge Street meter violations is not "a big percentage" of the total parking violation revenue pie.

"I wouldn't say all of that $21,000 would go away," he said.

The meters are generally put in place before Memorial Day, May 28 and are no longer enforced after Labor Day, Sept. 3.

No official decision was reached by the Downtown Development Authority. The power to make this change lies in the hands of Charlevoix City Council. Carey said he does not know if the Downtown Development Authority will make an official recommendation to city council.

The next scheduled Downtown Development Authority meeting will take place at 5:30 p.m. on Monday, April 23 in city council chambers located on the second floor of Charlevoix City Hall.

Marina FLASHBACK

In an effort to remind readers of how the East Park and municipal marina property have evolved, the Courier has teamed up with the Charlevoix Historical Society to bring readers a photo history of the property. This will run weekly in a "Then and Now" format with a picture from the past and the current construction schedule.

THEN...

(Left) The port of Charlevoix began to boom in the late 19th century with the cutting through and enlargement of a navigable waterway from Lake Michigan into Round Lake. The town was now able to accommodate the largest lake vessels. Expanded dock space became an immediate priority. Soon the entire waterfront from the channel to Antrim Street became filled with wharfs, pilings and docks. The pilings were driven into the lake bed using machines mounted on barges like the one seen at left near today's East Park.

NOW...

Background

Phase 1 of the $10 million East Park and marina renovation project includes the seawall replacement, removal of the 17 existing piers, which at the furthest point extend 75-feet into Round Lake, installation of new sheet pile running the length of the park 850-feet, and other miscellaneous work. The targeted completion date for Phase 1 is near the end of April. Installation of the new docks, Phase 2, is underway simultaneously. It includes installation of a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220-feet into Round Lake at the furthest point. Docks which were fabricated this winter are currently being installed. Utilities are expected to he hooked up and operational near the end of June. The total cost for Phases 1 and 2 is $3.8 million.

Progress report week of March 26:

Continuation of installation of the floating dock systems.

Began installation of construction safety fencing along Bridge Street.

Tree protection installed.

Some underground work including water main installation for the new performance pavilion.

Upcoming events week of April 2:

Molon Excavating is making their connection at the seawall's southerly point with steel sheet pile.

Molon will continue to drive the sheet pile down to the final elevation.

This report was generated by Pat Elliott, City of Charlevoix Street Department superintendent. If you have any questions, please contact Elliott at (231) 547-3276.

Man accused of attempted robbery waives exam

Robert Wilks

A northern Michigan man accused of attempted armed robbery at a Charlevoix drug store in January has waived his preliminary examination in the case.

On March 20 Robert Jason Wilks, 25, of Bellaire waived the hearing and was bound over to circuit court to face trial on charges of attempted armed robbery and possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony. The charges are punishable by up to five years and two years in prison respectively.

The case is now slated for a Charlevoix County Circuit Court scheduling conference on April 13.

Wilks is accused of entering Central Drug Store, located at 301 Bridge St., at about 8:30 a.m. on Jan. 16 and writing a note which he allegedly used to demand painkillers from the pharmacist. Police said the pharmacist who reported seeing the handle of a pistol sticking out of the robber's waistband, refused the man's demand, after which the robber fled.

Preliminary examinations are hearings held in district court in felony cases during which the prosecutor must show probable cause that a crime was committed and that the defendant committed the crime.

A hoppin' good time

The students of Kids' Corner Preschool participated in their annual Easter Parade March 29 around downtown Charlevoix. Included in the event was their furry classmate, Captain Jack, a rabbit. The class instructor, Katie Reed led the charge. Kids' Corner Preschool meets at the First Congregational United Church of Christ.

Citizens Bank merges with Republic Bank

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix patrons of Citizens Bank recently became customers of the largest bank with its headquarters in Michigan.

According to Chris Cuffaro, community bank president of the Charlevoix branch, results of the completion of the Dec. 29, 2006 merger of Citizens and Republic Bank Corp. are 270 offices with 287 ATMs serving Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Indiana and Iowa.

"Republic brings with them the small business administration or SBA as we like to call it, with experience which may appeal to business owners," Cuffaro said. "Citizens Bank was recognized as the new market lender of the year for 2006 during the annual Michigan District SBA awards program. This award is given to the lender that demonstrates the greatest commitment to lending to veterans, minorities and women owned businesses."

He added, "Citizens Republic Bancorp is committed to growing relationships and continuing to provide great service and ensure a smooth integration process by implementing the best practices of both companies."

The Charlevoix branch currently has nine employees.

According to a press release from Citizens Republic Bancorp, the merger will allow Citizens Republic to provide a full complement of commercial, cash management, wealth management and specialty lending products and services to Republic customers as well as enhanced small business administration, commercial real estate and mortgage banking products and services for Citizens' customers.

"The transaction will improve financial returns by utilizing existing operating capacity to improve efficiency. Annual cost savings of $28 million, or 9 percent of the combined expense base, are expected, of which 70 percent are projected for 2007 and 100 percent for 2008 and thereafter," the release states. "Citizens Republic anticipates $87 million in pre-tax restructuring costs, comprised of personnel, facilities/branch, systems and other expenses."

The publicly traded Citizens Bank was established in Flint in 1871 and has always maintained its headquarters in Michigan.

"A handful of Flint business owners got together to start Citizens Bank and their first loan was to William Durant to start Fisher Body for $2,000," Cuffaro said. "So, we like to think Citizens Republic Bancorp is Michigan's bank."

Cuffaro said customers won't notice any significant changes at the Charlevoix office.

"For the small business community I'm really excited about it (the merger) because I'll have more opportunities to help local small business," he said. "This is two very good banks coming together. It's just going to be a very great opportunity for us as employees to bring some new services to the market place."

Maura Snabes earns exchange specialist certification

Maura Snabes

Maura A. Snabes, president and owner of Corporate Title Exchange Services, which is a Qualified Intermediary for 1031 tax-deferred exchanges, has become a Certified Exchange Specialist, after successfully completing the Federation of Exchange Accommodators certification exam.

Snabes is one of only seven Certified Exchange Specialists in the State of Michigan and is the only one in the northern Michigan area.

The exam is a comprehensive testing of all aspects of real estate and personal property tax-deferred exchanges. The Federation of Exchange Accommodators (FEA) is the only national trade association organized to represent professionals who conduct like-kind exchanges under Internal Revenue Code 1031.

Snabes and her partner, Jerome E. Jelinek, are both licensed attorneys and owners of Corporate Title Exchange Services. The company, established in 1995, is a member of the Federation of Exchange Accommodators and handles delayed and simultaneous forward, reverse, improvement and reverse improvement real estate and personal property exchanges.

Contact Maura Snabes at (231) 237-1100 visit 802 Bridge St. in Charlevoix or e-mail msnabes@corporatetitle.com.

Mediation training offered to volunteers and private groups

Northern Community Mediation will offer 40-hour general civil mediator training in Charlevoix on May 10, 11, 12, 17, 18 and 19.

This training is Michigan Supreme Court approved. Whether you're interested in becoming a community mediator, or are a business owner or human resources professional, this course is an excellent way to learn dispute resolution skills. Class size is limited. If you are interested, call Jane Millar at Northern Community Mediation, (231) 487-1771 for more information.

The training is free for those who become community mediators. The cost is $600 for those who do not become community mediators.

Rayders earn All-Lake Michigan recognition

Sixteen Charlevoix High School athletes earned recognition on the All-Lake Michigan Conference volleyball, boys' basketball and competitive cheer teams for the 2006-07 season.

The Rayders won both league championships in volleyball and basketball, and placed three players on the all-league basketball first-team, and four on the all-league volleyball first-team.

Mitch Crandall

Senior Mitch Crandall, the Rayders' leading scorer at 17.0 points per game in basketball and an Associated Press Class C first-team All-Stater, earned a spot on the all-league first-team along with teammates Ty Haske and Justin Friske.

Haske, the point guard, averaged 8.0 points and 6.0 assists in quarterbacking Rayders to the Class C state semifinals. Friske, a 6-foot-4 sophomore, emerged as a go-to post player in averaging 12.0 points and 7.0 rebounds per game.

Ty Haske

Two other Rayders, seniors Darron Munson and Trevor Mays, received honorable mention all-league.

The Rayders finished 13-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference, earning their first league title since 2002. They also won district and regional championships, and finished 23-4, falling to Saginaw Nouvel in a state semifinal at Michigan State University's Breslin Center.

Emily Heffling

Seniors Sasha Spencley, Emily Heffling and Bethany Pearson, and junior Aubrey Way, were named to the All-Lake Michigan Conference volleyball first-team.

Bethany Pearson

Way, one of the Rayders' two regular setters and an outside hitter, finished with 532 assists, 277 digs, 61 aces and 115 kills.

Spencley, a middle hitter/left-side defender and three-year varsity letter winner, finished the season with 200 kills, 89 blocks, 58 aces and 424 digs.

Pearson, also a middle hitter and also in her third year on the varsity, had a team-high 218 kills, 118 block solos, 128 block assists and 166 digs.

Aubrey Way

Heffling, the Rayders' libero, finished with 540 digs, served at 97 percent, and finished the season at 90 percent in serve reception.

Two other Rayders, seniors Ashlie Bradley and Zita Anderson, received honorable mention.

The Rayders finished 14-0 in the league, winning their third conference championship in four years, and were 41-12-1 overall.

Charlevoix's Kim Way and Ashley Price earned spots on the All-Lake Michigan competitive cheer first-team, while teammates Bailey Yenglin, Kara Cieselczyk and Janay

NorthStar91 travel soccer records undefeated season

NorthStar91 went undefeated to claim the under age 16 Premier Classic Division 2 Championship in the Michigan State Premier Soccer League this fall.

The team scored 34 points and only allowed two goals in 10 games. Members of the team also recently competed in the regional qualifying event in the National Indoor Championship League in Grand Rapids and qualified for the Nationals. Due to the high school female soccer season schedule, it is not possible for NorthStar91 to continue in the National Indoor Championship competition. NorthStar91 will reconvene following the high school female soccer season this spring to compete in regional tournaments and travel to Minnesota for the USA Cup.

NorthStar91, a travel soccer team, went undefeated to claim the under age 16 Premier Classic Division 2 Championship in the Michigan State Premier Soccer League. Charlevoix players include KC McCary. Tryouts for NorthStar91, as well as all other NorthStar teams, are held in late June and early July.

Next season, the team will again compete in the Michigan State Premier Soccer League moving up a division to Classic 1.

NorthStar91 team members are drawn from regionwide tryouts. This season's team includes players from four counties including Antrim, Charlevoix, Grand Traverse and Leelanau. Players include: Kelsey Bartosek (Traverse City), Maddisen Coil (Traverse City), Julie Doherty (Traverse City), Jessica Dugan (Traverse City), Helene Dryden (Traverse City), Kelsey Kuhn (Traverse City), KC McCary (Charlevoix), Kelyse McKeon (Elk Rapids), Carly Moore (Traverse City), Chelsea Moyer (Suttons Bay), Kali Moyer (Suttons Bay), Marian Schubert (Traverse City), Mikaela Smith (Traverse City), Natalie Sutherin (Traverse City), Carolyn Vlach (Traverse City), Kelly Wendels (Lake Ann), Chelsea White (Traverse City) and Lorin Zelinski (Traverse City) coach Steve Taylor (Glen Arbor).

Tryouts for NorthStar91, as well as all other NorthStar teams, are held in late June and early July. Visit www.northstarsoccer.org for more information.

Volunteers needed for Exceptional Riders program

Volunteers are needed for the Exceptional Riders Program.

The Exceptional Riders Program, at the Equestrian Center of Bay Harbor, is gearing up for its spring session. Classes will begin at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 17. Orientation for students and parents will take place at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 12. The spring session continues for eight consecutive Tuesdays.

Classes are open to the physically, mentally and emotionally challenged of all ages. Students are taught to ride a horse. A volunteer horse leader and, depending on the students' ability, one or two side walkers assist each student. Safety is emphasized, with each student wearing a helmet.

The Exceptional Riders Program finds when a person is on horseback they gain a new perspective. For some it is a more mobility, for others it is the challenge of controlling such a large and powerful animal.

The Exceptional Riders Program is a non-profit, tax-exempt charitable organization that is run by volunteers. Every session requires approximately 30 volunteers to lead horses, assist the students and help in the barn and class area.

There is no fee for these classes, but students need to arrange for their own transportation to the center.

For further information about the program or volunteering, call Barb Lane at (231) 347-3300. A volunteer training meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 10 at the Bay Harbor Equestrian Center. Riding experience is not necessary for volunteers.

Wayne Wynkoop pursues special use permit to mine his Norwood property

MINE

> NORWOOD TOWNSHIP MINING SPECIAL USE PERMIT APPLICANT

rescheduled because it was improperly noticed to the public.

"The notice didn't include the address of the property and there were four tax ID numbers listed when there should have been five," he said. "There's going to be a large crowd. Anybody in the township that is interested in this project should attend."

Commission members could decide the fate of Wynkoop's business as early as the evening of April 12.

"The applicant makes his case and presents his application and then we ask for comments from the public in support, then we ask for comments from the public against," Mielke said. "And then, after all the comments are done, the public hearing portion of the review process is closed."

Commission members will then compare the Norwood zoning ordinance with Wynkoop's request.

"All these findings of fact have to be in favor of the special use permit for it to be approved," Mielke said. "If we find out one of these things is not met, then the special use permit is not approved."

This next event in the Norwood mine saga follows the preliminary injunction imposed by Judge Thomas G. Power in January which overturned a Norwood Township Zoning Board of Appeals decision from May 2006 which had allowed Wynkoop to mine his property.

Powers cited what he felt was Wynkoop's willful abandonment of mining rights to the property when he signed a land contract which forbid him from mining the property until the property was paid for in full.

Norwood zoning states that abandoning rights for at least one year is sufficient to dissolve any previously held non-conforming uses of property.

The Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety lauded Powers' judgment as a win against what they call an environmental and safety issue.

Though Wynkoop is Norwood Township supervisor, Powers did not see a conflict of interest in Wynkoop's desire to apply for the right to mine his property.

The hearing will occur at the Norwood Township Hall, located at 19759 Lake St. in Norwood. For more information call (231) 237-9226.

The clinic will meet at 3:30 p.m. on April 16 for an orientation and registration session. Seven sessions will follow at 3:30 p.m. on April 23 and 30, May 7, 9, 14 and 21 and June 4.

To register, call (231) 547-8672 or e-mail potterm@cah.org.

APRIL 17
AUTHOR EVENT

Anne-Marie Oomen, author of "House of Fields," will pay a special visit to the Charlevoix Public Library at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 17, for an evening of first-rate storytelling, book signing and question-and-answer time with guests.

Oomen is visiting the Charlevoix library as part of the Library of Michigan's 2007 "Michigan Notable Authors Tour." This year, 18 authors whose engaging works were chosen as 2007 Michigan Notable Books selections will visit nearly 70 libraries throughout the state. The Charlevoix library is located at 220 West Clinton St. in Charlevoix. For details about this author event, call (231) 237-7340 or visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

APRIL 17
GRIEF SUPPORT

Loss of any kind is the focus of a series designed to help people cope.

A series of five weekly sessions for those coping with a loss will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on consecutive Tuesdays from April 17 through May 15 at St. Joseph Catholic Church, 207 Nichols St. in East Jordan.

The Grief Support program is sponsored by Hospice of Northwest Michigan, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, Charlevoix Area Hospital and North Country Community Mental Health. The program is designed to help those grow through grief and learn the five tasks of grief work.

The facilitators for this program are Rev. Nancy Rhode, hospice spiritual advisor and Margaret Lasater, bereavement coordinator. Anyone is invited who has suffered a loss or who is helping a loved one deal with a loss and who would benefit from the support of others.

Pre-register by calling the hospice office at (231) 582-8800. There is no charge for this program.

Where was this swimming, diving and promenade pavilion located?

Congratulations to Charlevoix resident Louis McKenzie who was drawn from a group of seven people who correctly identified the former location of this swimming, diving and promenade pavilion. The pavilion was located at the end of a dock that extended from Depot Beach. It was constructed mainly for use by the guests of the gigantic Inn Hotel that once sat on the bluff above the Depot at the east end of Dixon Avenue on Mercer Boulevard. McKenzie won a free three-month subscription to the Courier.

Coast Guard: No boat bound for Charlevoix

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix citizens in limbo over the possibility of a replacement ship for the decommissioned Acacia might not want to start holding their breath now.

According to Greg Fondran, United States Coast Guard (USCG) public information officer at the Cleveland office of public affairs, this part of northern Michigan won't likely see any additional Coast Guard assets.

"Right now there is not a plan for a specific cutter to go to Charlevoix," Fondran said. "This is actually the first season we've had with the new cutter Mackinaw and not having the Acacia, so we'll have to reevaluate and see if there is a pressing need to replace Acacia. But right now, there are no plans."

He added, "But, we're always looking to ensure we are staffed and manned to do the job whether ice-breaking or homeland security."

SANE busts down in county

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The 2006 Straights Area Narcotics Enforcement (SANE) task force's annual report shows a decrease of drug related complaints and arrests in Charlevoix County.

"It is important to remember that this is only a small sample of the investigations we worked on during the past year," stated Detective/Lieutenant Ken Mills, the SANE Unit Commander in his report. "The difficult economic times for our state have been felt by each of our communities. These difficult times have also affected SANE."

Despite their financial difficulties, SANE seized numerous drugs, amounts of cash and put drug dealers in prison.

During 2006, SANE saw 19 complaints, 23 arrests and 59 counts in Charlevoix County.

The 19 complaints in Charlevoix County were fewer than the 34 in Cheboygan County, the 55 in Chippewa County, the 39 in Emmet County and the 21 in Mackinac County, but more than the three in Luce, zero

No guarantee Coast Guard will replace Acacia

BOAT

Guard services," he said. "This winter we've had pretty good ice conditions to test our capability, and if it looks like something we need to look at further (as far as) a replacement cutter, that is something we would do."

Results on the Mackinaw's ability to maintain ice-breaking capabilities in the waters off northern Michigan were not available by press time.

"We're still doing ice breaking up in St. Mary's area, once we wind down from the season we'll get a better handle on that," Fondran said.

Nearly nine months ago, H.R. 889, the $8.1 billion bill passed through the House of Representatives by a vote of 413-0 was signed into law by President George W. Bush and is now known as Public Law 109-241.

When asked if Charlevoix could ever be expected to receive a replacement ship, U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak's press secretary, Alex Haurek said, "The Congressman will continue to press the Coast Guard to ensure it complies with Congress' clearly expressed intent of maintaining the same level of vessel capacity on the Great Lakes."

When asked how long the process may take, Haurek said, "As to the Coast Guard's timetable, I would need to refer you to the Coast Guard's public affairs office."

In a September 2006 interview referring to H.R. 889 Stupak had argued, "The congressional intent is a vessel. It wasn't service, it was a vessel — assets, things like that."

While it is true that section 210(b) of H.R. 889 states, "The secretary shall take all necessary measures to ensure that the Coast Guard maintains, at a minimum, its current vessel capacity for carrying out ice-breaking in the Arctic and Antarctic, Great Lakes, and New England regions, including the necessary funding for operation and maintenance of such vessels, until it has implemented the long-term re-capitalization of the Coast Guard polar icebreakers Polar Star, Polar Sea, and Healy," it doesn't specifically mention a ship going to Charlevoix.

Stupak had previously argued that Public Law 109-241 requires the Coast Guard to maintain current vessel capacity and that there was a notable difference between maintaining a level of service and maintaining vessel capacity.

Coast Guard officials have consistently expressed confidence in their ability to maintain the Great Lakes with the assets currently under their direction.

So far, a paid lobbyist, a mayor, Charlevoix citizens and state and federal representatives to name a few have toiled with no avail for a replacement of the cutter Acacia which was decommissioned on June 7, 2006 after more than 60 years of service.

While Charlevoix has never officially been told it won't be receiving a replacement ship for the decommissioned cutter Acacia seen above, United States Coast Guard officials have said there are no specific plans to bring a ship to Charlevoix's harbor.

Boss offers realistic approach to budget

EDITORIAL

There is, they say, a first time for everything. In that vein, the editorial department of the Charlevoix Courier would like to endorse a candidate for office, and though we generally avoid this as a practice, we cannot ignore our duty to promote the right person for the job, especially when that person embodies the pinnacle of passion for the education of our youth.

At a time when so many merely bemoan the dismal direction in which public education is headed, Charlevoix Public Schools board candidate and father of two Rayders, Bo Boss, has come up with some viable ideas.

Critics of Boss' plan to combine the high school principal position with the superintendent position say saving 1 percent of the schools' $12.2 million budget isn't worthwhile.

We say $120,000 or so would cover the starting salaries of three teachers, unlimited field trips or put a nice chunk of emergency cash in the rainy day fund — that's $1.2 million over 10 years.

Mon dieu, if nothing else, it would certainly bring back the French program.

We also like Boss' idea of selling the current administration building and moving the business manager and human resources director to the school with the principal/superintendent.

And while MDOT might not like it, sporting events would be much less hectic with a second outlet at the north side of the school's parking lot — we certainly have the money in the sinking fund for such a project.

Some opponents say Boss' ideas are too extreme. We say hard times call for radical plans by courageous individuals.

We can sit around with crossed arms, refusing to do little more than saying something needs to be done, but that won't stop the repo man from coming to town, and make no mistake, he is coming.

Detroit will soon close 34 school buildings for a savings of over $18 million a year — that's more than 90 school buildings scheduled for extinction between 2005 and 2009. We can only assume much of this would have been unnecessary if the proper steps to remain solvent would have been taken in previous years.

The bottom line is cheap foreign labor, lopsided trade agreements and greed have driven away the majority of what made this state successful in the last century.

Barring a gold rush in Norwood or the discovery of oil off the beaches of Lake Michigan, our economy will continue to flounder forcing class sizes to increase, offerings to shrink and pay-to-play to be the state norm.

The worst is yet to come, we'd better elect people who will make decisions based on what's right and not what's popular.

That's why on Tuesday, May 8, we're voting Bo Boss for school board member.

Bright idea: Direct light, achieve energy efficiency

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

One night a few weeks ago I walked around Charlevoix in a fog.

To some people who know me that may sound like a very common condition. But this was no mental fog, this was a real cloud on the ground moisture in the air fog — the sort of fog that creeps into Charlevoix from Lake Michigan when there is still some ice on the big lake.

I like to walk in the fog. It commonly provides a perspective lacking in more usual circumstances. In this case the new perspective was about light. When there is thick fog, it is impossible to see light. Not things illuminated by light, but the direction of the light itself. In fog the headlights of a car or truck can be seen to point up or down and it is possible to see just how far the lights of the vehicle penetrate the fog.

The most remarkable observation from my walk in the fog was the amount of light that we are sending into space, rather than to what might illuminate if properly directed. If an outdoor fixture sends half of its light into space rather than directly onto what it should illuminate, then part of the light is wasted. Space directed light may help to make us visible to some extraterrestrial observer or someone passing overhead in an airplane, but it does not help us see what we need to see in the darkness of night. Any outdoor light that does not focus on what it is supposed to illuminate is not only wasted light, it is, in a very real sense, wasted electricity, wasted energy and a contribution to global warming. Any person or municipality that has an outdoor fixture sending some light into the upper air, is wasting energy.

As an example, imagine this. If an outdoor fixture uses a 100 watt bulb and 50 percent of the light is sent off into the outer air, then only 50 watts are providing the light we need. And the other half of the cost in electricity and global warming is simply wasted. We could save half the cost of the electricity and atmospheric pollution leading to global warming if we had outdoor lighting that focused on putting light exactly where we need it.

I have been pleased to see that much of recent construction in Charlevoix has taken serious account of controlling the direction of light. Nonetheless, a walk in nighttime fog shows an enormous amount of light, and the electricity that generates it, is simply sent off into space as a total waste of electricity resulting in cost to the environment and the future. We can do better than that by deciding to put light more precisely where it is needed.

A vivid example of our waste of light is obvious on a night with low clouds when we can easily see the location of East Jordan or Boyne City by the sky-directed light reflecting off the bottom of the clouds. And East Jordan or Boyne City can see Charlevoix location just as easily. Proper and efficient outdoor lighting would eliminate most of that visible waste.

CAUTION:
MADE IN CHINA

Using more efficient compact fluorescent bulbs that give the same amount of light with less electricity is clearly an additional way we can all reduce the amount of wasted electricity and energy. Conservation is something we can all do, without big government intervention.

It may be that one of the best things we collectively could do would be to form an official and permanent commission installed by the city government that concerns itself with community-wide energy use. Local governments in more and more cities and towns around the country are developing agencies to consider how the community as a whole might better use electrical energy in outdoor and indoor lighting. A healthy regional competition to see which community could reduce its energy use the fastest would certainly be a possibility.

We could help save the world and in the process please all the astronomers who are concerned about the amount of stray light we put out into the night sky. Not only astronomers, but everyone will be pleased when energy use and cost are reduced. Starting locally seems to me a good idea.

AVOID QUICK FIX SPANKING

Editor:

Benjamin Gohs spoke to the "politics" of paddling in his column published April 4 (published on page 4, entitled "Gohs delves into the politics of paddling"). At stake is the welfare of our children, and of our society as a whole, since today's poorly-reared children are tomorrow's non-contributors, or worse. It is too important to be relegated to the political arena where popular opinion rules. Let's instead talk about the science of paddling.

Here's a quick summary of the results of a large body of research on the subject:

1. The only demonstrated benefit of corporal punishment of children is short-term compliance.
2. Physically punished children are more likely to commit crimes as adults.
3. People who commit violent crimes as adults were almost always subjected to severe corporal punishment as children.
4. The more a child is spanked, the more likely he is to assault siblings and other children.
5. The more a child is spanked, the more likely he is to be alcoholic, depressed, masochistic and suicidal as an adult.
6. Parents who use corporal punishment are more likely to physically assault each other.
7. Parents who abuse their children generally started with corporal punishment.

Not every person who was spanked grows up to be a criminal or depressed or suicidal. Not every parent who spanks ends up an abuser. But given its questionable benefit, and its harmful effects, a number of countries, including many of the European countries and Israel, have banned the use of corporal punishment by parents (nearly all countries ban its use in schools). New Zealand and Australia are considering doing the same. In many Asian countries it is legal, but frowned upon. And yes, California (with an economy that puts it among the top 10 countries of the world) is also considering banning it. The official policy of the American Academy of Pediatrics discourages its use, in part because stresses on parents may push them past punishment into abuse.

As Mr. Gohs points out, child-rearing requires considerable patience and commitment. Those of us who take it seriously know that the end game isn't good kids we can brag about, but good adults. It takes more effort and more time to use discipline (training by instruction and practice) than corporal punishment (infliction of pain to effect behavior change). We should commend and thank those parents who do the hard, slow work of parenting and eschew the quick fix called spanking.

LETTER RESPONSE

Editor:

As I read the letter from Bo Boss in last week's Courier (entitled, "Save money, combine positions," printed on page 5 of the March 28 edition) suggesting that I have some personal agenda in the superintendent search, I was struck by one glaring fact — he never spoke to me about the issue or the timetable for hiring a superintendent before writing to the paper. If he had taken the time to call me or attend a school board meeting to talk to me, here is what I would have told him.

To claim that the superintendent search is my personal agenda ignores the other six school board members who have an equal vote in setting the timeline and the search plan. The July 1 target for hiring a new superintendent is based on two facts — wanting to ensure a smooth transition from superintendent (Jim) Cooper and making sure that we have the best possible pool of candidates for our next superintendent. What we learned last year with the departure of Dr. (John) Sturock is that waiting until June to start looking left us with a small group of picked-over candidates. Charlevoix is competing with 23 other districts in the state that are currently looking for superintendents and we want a first round draft choice.

The superintendent/principal model for school administration appears to work effectively in only a handful of small school districts across the state. Charlevoix has more students in our high school than most of these districts have in the whole district. In my mind it would be difficult, if not impossible, for a person to maintain the independent oversight of all three schools, the relationships in the community and at the state level while staying involved in the day-to-day operation of the high school.

During our search process, the Char-Em Intermediate School District took time to interview the school staff and the community to gather their desires for an "ideal" superintendent. They gathered four pages of comments. One of the common themes running through the data was that the school community wanted an experienced superintendent who has shown the ability to turn around financially troubled districts, someone who is a skilled negotiator and is a leader in the community as well as at the schools. Few candidates that have this level of experience would consider filling the dual roles.

Schools are a people driven business. Charlevoix Public Schools has 130 employees that support roughly 1,300 students with an annual operating budget of $12 million. The dual role concept would provide theoretical savings by not filling the superintendent or principal position. The salary that either one of these positions draws is less than 1 percent of that budget. We could miss hiring the top quality superintendent that the district needs to guide us in the future for a less than 1 percent financial gain.

I agree with Mr. Boss in that we have top-notch business manager, Shawn Biddle. Shawn is very capable of developing the financial plans that we need. She needs a strong superintendent to provide the framework of the school operation during the budgeting process and then again, to implement those plans. There has always been strong superintendent/business manager team to manage the schools — think back to the Gordon VanWieren/Rich Kelly days.

Everyone knows that Michigan is in a financial crisis right now and that it will not be cured overnight. The threat of financial uncertainty in school funding and staff layoffs will not go away until the state finds its way out of trouble. We cannot operate our schools with a part-time superintendent for some unknown period of time and expect to deliver the quality of education that the families of Charlevoix deserve.

COURT OPINION MISINTERPRETED

Editor:

After reading Benjamin Gohs' thought provoking article entitled, "Protect polygamy from politics," I decided to deepen my understanding of the topic. Whereby I discovered that Mr. Gohs presented a less than honest appraisal of Chief Justice Morrison Waite's opinion and therefore the true intent of the founding fathers.

In Raynolds vs. United States (October, 1878, term), Chief Justice Waite outlined the constitutional question before the court as it regards religious rights afforded to the citizens of the United States by the First Amendment and the practice of polygamy by a religious sect in the following excerpt:

"The inquiry is not as to the power of Congress to prescribe criminal laws for the territories, but as to the guilt of one who knowingly violates a law which has been properly enacted, if he entertains a religious belief that the law is wrong. Congress cannot pass a law for the government of the territories which shall prohibit the free exercise of religion. The First Amendment to the Constitution expressly forbids such legislation. Religious freedom is guaranteed everywhere throughout the United States, so far as congressional interference is concerned. The question to be determined is, whether the law now under consideration comes within this prohibition. The word 'religion' is not defined in the Constitution. We must go elsewhere, therefore, to ascertain its meaning, and no more appropriately we think, than to the history of the times in the midst of which the provision was adopted. The precise point of the inquiry is, what is religious freedom which has been guaranteed."

The principle historical documents presented by Chief Justice Waite in his opinion to reveal the thinking at the time the Bill of Rights as ratified (1791) comes from two sources: "The Virginia Act For Establishing Religious freedom," written by Thomas Jefferson in 1785. And Jefferson's letter to the Danbury Baptist Association which was written in 1802.

The Virginia Act passed by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Virginia in 1786 made it perfectly clear that there was to be a "true distinction between what properly belongs to the church and what to the state."

"...that to suffer the civil magistrate to intrude his powers into the field of (religious) opinion, and to restrain the profession or propagation of (religious) principles on supposition of their ill tendency, is a dangerous fallacy which at once destroys all religious liberty, 'it is declared' that it is time enough for the rightful purpose of civil government for its officers to interfere when (religious) principles break out into overt acts against peace and good order."

In the following excerpt from Jefferson's Danbury letter he reiterates the same clear-cut distinction he made in the Virginia Act:

"Believing with you that religion is a matter which lies solely between man and his God; that he owes account to none other for his faith or his worship; that the legislative powers of the government reach (religious) actions only, and not opinions..."

Mr. Gohs and his fellow travelers at the Charlevoix Courier may have foolishly chosen not to agree with Chief Justice Waite's Constitutional analysis of where the appropriate legislative boundary lines may be drawn through the First Amendment to protect the citizenry from the oftentimes murderous application of religious doctrine, but nevertheless to sensible clear thinking people Chief Justice Waite's opinion was well argued and the correct reading of Thomas Jefferson's and the other founding fathers' intent.

Northwest Advanced Band takes top honors at festival

On Saturday, March 23, members of the Northwest Academy Advanced Band traveled to Manistee to participate in the State Solo and Ensemble Festival.

"The students performed at a very high level on Saturday and received high praises from the adjudicators for their performances," Northwest Academy director of bands, Gary Stutzman, said.

The following students received Superior ratings: Anna Kroon, clarinet solo in Proficiency II: clarinet choir, Anna Kroon, Evan Themm, Kelly Breathauer, Janiece Kroon, Emma Maynard, Phoebe Allport and Gary Toton; clarinet and tenor sax duet, Anna Kroon and Alanna Leslie: bass clarinet and baritone sax duet, Emma Maynard and Gary Toton.

The following students received Division II ratings: Gary Toton, baritone sax solo in Proficiency II; clarinet and tenor sax duet, Phoebe Allport and Alanna Leslie.

"The leadership that these students show day in and day out is one of the reasons the band programs at Northwest Academy have been so tremendously successful throughout the years," Stutzman said.

OBITUARY

Rose Waffle: Nov. 16, 1912 - April 7, 2007

Rose M. Waffle, 94, of Charlevoix died Saturday, April 7 at the Cambridge Care Center in Clawson.

Rose was born on Nov. 16, 1912 in Charlevoix, the daughter of James and Mammie (Pratt) O'Brien. She married Medrick F. Waffle on Oct. 25, 1930 in Hastings. He preceded her in death on May 14, 1985.

Rose had lived in Charlevoix all of her life except the last few years. She had lived in Clawson with her daughter and at the nearby nursing home.

Rose was a very active member of the Barnard Grange and the Charlevoix Senior Center. She loved to knit. She volunteered many hours making pies and afghans.

She is survived by her daughter, Fern (Donald) Keegstra of Clawson; three grandchildren, James Russell of Charlevoix, Dennis Keegstra of Center Line and Dawn (Randy) Truscott of Rochester Hills; great-grandchildren, Jamie (Ed) Bogart of Charlevoix, Devon Truscott of Rochester Hills, Mackenzie Truscott of Rochester Hills, Kyle Keegstra of Ohio, Lexie Keegstra of Ohio and Autumn Keegstra of Ohio. She was also preceded in death by one son, Robert Waffle on July 26, 1969; one grandson, Donald Keegstra in 1982; and three brothers, Ernie, Edward and James O'Brien.

Funeral services took place on Tuesday, April 10 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Pastor Chip Sauer of the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix officiated. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Memorials may be directed to the Charlevoix Senior Center, Barnard Grange or In-house Hospice, 24293 Telegraph #102, Southfield, MI 48034.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Editor:

A name can be very misleading if you don't check it out and one such name is the Federal Reserve that controls all our money. It is neither federal nor a reserve. It is run by about 10 international bankers who loan us our own money, charge us interest and control the quantities of fiat paper money in circulation that causes inflation and recession or a depression that usually takes a war to bring our economy back.

Another misleading name is Planned Parenthood that appears to be quite innocuous and one would guess that the organization would help new parents cope with the trials and tribulations of raising their children and possibly help them decide what size family they can afford. But Planned Parenthood is the single largest abortion provider in America — and receives more than $265 million in taxpayer funding every year. In addition to using this taxpayer money to help them abort larger numbers of babies every year, they also lobby Congress for pro-abortion causes, lobby against pro-life judges, and target their abortion agenda to children and young adults through expensive advertising campaigns. This taxpayer funding helps Planned Parenthood turn a profit of up to $125 million per year, enabling them to commit even more resources to performing abortions.

There is a bill in Congress, Senate 2206, that if passed, would cut off all taxpayer grants to abortion providers. This bill should be passed and sent to President Bush for his immediate signature. This is not a question of whether you are pro-abortion or pro-life, it's just a fact that it's immoral for pro-life taxpayers to be forced to support the work of Planned Parenthood regarding abortions.

If you have an opinion on the above, contact your representatives in Congress at (202) 224-3121 or the White House at (202) 456-1414 and express your views. As Americans, our voices do count, but only if we speak out.

PRACTICE POISON PREVENTION

Editor:

According to figures from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, there are approximately 2.2 million poison exposures reported by poison control centers annually. Of those exposures, six out of every 10 cases involved a child younger than six years of age.

In an effort to raise awareness of the dangers of accidental poisonings and to encourage people to take preventive measures, March 18-24 was designated as National Poison Prevention Week.

Because many poisonings involve common medications such as analgesics, cough and cold preparations and vitamins, pharmacists play an active role in poison prevention. Take time to ask your pharmacist about ways to store and take your medications to prevent a poisoning incident from occurring.

For example, don't take medicine in front of children. Since children often imitate the actions of adults, a child might decide to be just like you and swallow your medication. And when giving medicine to a child, never refer to it as candy. To children, candy is tasty and good to eat and they could mistake a pain-relieving tablet for a candy-coated chocolate.

If a medicine has changed color or smells funny, don't take it — the chemicals may have broken down into a new substance that can hurt instead of help you.

Be sure to take the time to ask your pharmacist about ways to poison proof your home for the safety of all in your household.

PUSH ASIAN CARP BARRIER BILL

Editor:

Asian carp are invasive species that escaped from southern fish farms and moved up the Mississippi and Illinois rivers. They dominate the rivers and now threaten to enter Lake Michigan and the rest of the Great Lakes. If they get into the lakes, these fish will take a chunk out of the food web and likely destroy the commercial and sport fishing industries.

The carp can be stopped by an electronic barrier proposed in a bill presently before Congress. Please get behind this bill and push. Show that you care about the Great Lakes. Urge our people in Congress to vote for the Great Lakes Asian Carp Barrier Act (S.336 and HR 553).

We can't afford to have the best electronic barrier money can buy up and running six months after the carp have entered Lake Michigan.

Registration underway for May 12 cancer walk

The 4-1-1

What: 2007 Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk

When: Walker registration and contribution forms are available now for the May 12 walk.

Where: The walk will leave from Bridge Park. Forms are available at Charlevoix County Chambers of Commerce, the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, Charlevoix Area Hospital, local health clubs and Prudential Preferred Properties' Charlevoix office.

Organizers of the 2007 Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk which will take place May 12 in Charlevoix urge community members and supporters to "Lend a hand."

The theme for the upcoming walk, "Lend a Hand — the Factor of Five" encourages walkers and supporters of the fight against breast cancer to find five people they know who are willing to "Lend a hand" towards the walk's success.

There are a number of ways to participate including collecting contributions using a walker registration form available at Charlevoix County Chambers of Commerce, the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, Charlevoix Area Hospital, local health clubs and Prudential Preferred Properties' Charlevoix office.

Individuals are welcome to come out and show support by walking or by creating a team of walkers.

The event will take place on Saturday, May 12. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and the walk will follow at 10 a.m. leaving from Bridge Park in Charlevoix. Walk routes ranging from 2.5 to 5 miles will be offered. Refreshments will be served in the park at the close of the event.

In the past, this walk has raised over $100,000 for breast cancer research, and cancer victims through hospice, Charlevoix Area Hospital and Camp Daggett scholarships.

Five years ago it was decided that the money raised by the walk would be dedicated to local cancer-related needs and has been directed to the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund, which operates under the umbrella of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

The fund was started with money given in memory of Judy Edger who died of breast cancer in 1999. Edger was an enthusiastic supporter of the Sue DeYoung walk during the last years of her life and her name was added to the walk following her death.

Proceeds from this year's event will benefit Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency's Breast and Cervical Cancer Screening Program and Hospice of Northwest Michigan.

Individuals can volunteer their time with the walk organization committee by contacting Amy Salatino at 547-7663 or Nicole Kurtz at 330-6060. Both Kurtz and Salatino are members of the Sigma Phi Sorority's Kappa Sigma Chapter which is assisting in organizing the event.

Those wishing to make a contribution may do so by sending a check to the Charlevoix County Community Fund (CCCF), P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727. Donors are asked to print Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund in the memo line.

Corporations and individuals can also direct their contributions to the endowment portion of the fund. By electing to do this, a donor is eligible for a 50 percent tax credit as well as a charitable deduction on their federal tax form for those who itemize deductions.

Marina FLASHBACK

In an effort to remind readers of how the East Park and municipal marina property have evolved, the Courier has teamed up with the Charlevoix Historical Society to bring readers a photo history of the property. This will run weekly in a "Then and Now" format with a picture from the past and the current construction schedule.

THEN...

NOW...

Background

Phase 1 of the $10 million East Park and marina renovation project includes the seawall replacement, removal of the 17 existing piers, which at the furthest point extend 75-feet into Round Lake, installation of new sheet pile running the length of the park 850-feet, and other miscellaneous work. The targeted completion date for Phase 1 is near the end of April. Installation of the new docks, Phase 2, is underway simultaneously. It includes installation of a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220-feet into Round Lake at the furthest point. Docks which were fabricated this winter are currently being installed. Utilities are expected to be hooked up and operational near the end of June. The total cost for Phases 1 and 2 is $3.8 million.

PROGRESS REPORT WEEK OF APRIL 2:

Molon Excavating made connection at the southerly point with steel sheet pile wall work on the marina seawall.

Continuation of installation of the floating dock systems.

Installation of construction safety fencing along Bridge Street.

UPCOMING EVENTS WEEK OF APRIL 9:

Continuing to install tieback wall.

Continuing to drive the sheet pile down to the final elevation.

Construction staking for the parking lot adjacent to Charlevoix Public Library and possible start of construction.

TEEN SCENE inside the halls

Glik's glimpse at spring fashion for teens

BY WENDY BUDNIK
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Glik's is geared towards the young and fun surf, skate customer.

This spring, hot items for young male customers are cargo shorts paired with a striped polo and plaid shorts with a screen tee.

For our young junior girl customer, our big must-have pieces are all over screen print tees with lace tanks underneath. These can be paired with popular Silver jeans. Plaid shorts are a hot buy for teen girls as well as summer dresses and Roxy and Hurley swimsuits.

Glik's newest item is the Lacoste line for men and women. Lacoste big sellers are a variety of polos as well as plaid and plain shorts.

With tops and bottoms covered in hot spring fashion, the footwear must-haves this spring include skateboarding shoes and flip flops.

Wendy Budnik is manager of Glik's Charlevoix located at 113 Bridge St. For more information about spring fashion for teens, call (231) 237-9183. This page will appear the second Wednesday of the month in the Charlevoix Courier.

Erica McIntire, 19, of Boyne City, who is a sales associate at the Glik's store in Petoskey, models hot summer fashion for teen girls. Decked from head to toe in Lacoste, her look includes white shorts paired with layered polo shirts and DC shoes, perfect for a Sunday afternoon on the golf course. This is Glik's first season carrying Lacoste. The Charlevoix location is the only store out of 52 to offer the brand.

Forum explores local impact of globalization

What: "Perspectives: Understanding through education" forum on globalization's impact on northern Michigan.
When: 6 p.m. on Thursday, April 19
Where: Charlevoix Public Library located at 220 West Clinton St. in Charlevoix.

Anyone interested in globalization's impact on northern Michigan should plan to attend a forum on that topic at 6 p.m. on Thursday, April 19 at the Charlevoix Public Library located at 220 West Clinton St. in Charlevoix.

The "Evening of Informed Discussion" is the second in a series of forums at the library entitled "Perspectives: Understanding through education" sponsored by North Central Michigan College, Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, Charlevoix State Bank, Charlevoix Public Library, Charlevoix Public Schools and the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

The keynote speaker at this free event is Alan Deardorff, Ph.D., a professor of economics and public policy at the University of Michigan, who will provide an overview of globalization, free trade, trade restrictions and explore the respective roles of government, business and labor groups in addressing the needs of workers whose careers have been disrupted.

Charlevoix High School government teacher, Annemarie Conway, will moderate a panel discussion by experts in the areas of labor, manufacturing and education.

Guest experts scheduled to appear include Neil Owen Leighton, Ph.D., professor emeritus at University of Michigan-Flint who has taught international relations, labor politics, foreign policy and has studied the trade union movement in the U.S. and South Africa, the economic impact of Flint auto plant closings and the GM sit-down strike of 1936 to 1937.

Tom Teske, general manager of East Jordan Iron Works Inc., which operates foundries and other plants in East Jordan, Denham Springs, La., Ardmore Okla., Youngstown, Ohio and St. Crepin, France, has testified before Congress and the International Trade Commission on issues related to jobs and free trade.

Cameron Brunet-Koch, Ph.D., the president of North Central Michigan College, will discuss the increase in laid-off Michiganders who turn to community colleges in search of new job skills.

Doors will open at 5:15 p.m. Audience participation is encouraged.

Hospice loss support group begins April 17

Loss of any kind is the focus of a series designed to help people cope.

A series of five weekly sessions for those coping with a loss will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on consecutive Tuesdays from April 17 through May 15 at St. Joseph Catholic Church, 207 Nichols St. in East Jordan.

The Grief Support program is sponsored by Hospice of Northwest Michigan, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, Charlevoix Area Hospital and North Country Community Mental Health. The program is designed to help those grow through grief and learn the five tasks of grief work.

The facilitators for this program are Rev. Nancy Rhode, hospice spiritual advisor and Margaret Lasater, bereavement coordinator. Anyone is invited who has suffered a loss or who is helping a loved one deal with a loss and who would benefit from the support of others.

Pre-register by calling the hospice office at (231) 582-8800. There is no charge for this program.

Little Traverse Conservancy offers electronic mapping of properties

The Little Traverse Conservancy recently announced a new in-house computer station that allows visitors to learn about the organization's 175 nature preserves.

Using a mapping program called Google Earth, visitors can now browse maps of the conservancy's service area and find information about every nature preserve protected by the conservancy since it was founded in 1972. Google Earth allows the viewer to see aerial images of the earth's surfaces close enough to distinguish ground cover and general topography. With the nature preserves, this allows the user to get a bird's eye view of a property before actually visiting it which is helpful when making a decision about which properties to visit.

"This new resource is available for people who don't have access to our Web site at home or who want to know about each nature preserve," said Tom Bailey, executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy. "Our Web site features the nature preserves we describe as most 'user friendly' whereas the Google Earth station tells something about even the smallest preserves."

This resource can also be used at home for those with high speed Internet access. A free version of Google Earth can be downloaded by visiting www.earth.google.com. Then go to the conservancy's Web site at www.landtrust.org and click on "Nature Preserves" for a download of the conservancy's Google Earth nature preserve.

More than 30 of these properties are featured on the conservancy's Web site, www.landtrust.org which includes maps, directions and photos of the properties.

For more information about the Little Traverse Conservancy, call (231) 347-0991.

Frank Ettawageshik, chairman of the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians, is caught reading Harper Lee's 1960 classic, "To Kill a Mockingbird," in preparation for the month-long community read. Also pictured is Rebecca Fisher, executive assistant to the tribal chairman.

Charlevoix Public Library is one of many northern Michigan libraries participating in the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians Big Read initiative.

The library offered patrons free copies of Harper Lee's 1960 classic, "To Kill a Mockingbird." The library's supply of books has run out.

The books were made available through a $20,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to promote reading American classics across the country.

Frank Ettawageshik, chairman of the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians, will discuss the novel's enduring themes of tolerance and justice on Friday, April 13 at the North Central Michigan College Luncheon Lecture Series.

Free books will be available at the event.

For more information, contact Melissa Claramunt, education director for the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians at (231) 242-1490 or visit www.NEABigRead.org.

PUBLIC NOTICE
If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?
Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Event packed National Library Week celebration

Courtesy photo

Chris Hauke (above), youth services supervisor at Charlevoix Public Library recently booked 2006 Grammy Award nominee Red Grammer to perform a concert on April 21 at the library. This is one of many events that will take place April 15-21 in recognition of National Library Week.

April 15-21 is National Library Week — a time to celebrate the contributions of libraries, librarians and library workers in schools, campuses and communities nationwide.

The Charlevoix Public Library is celebrating National Library Week by hosting different programs each day. The festivities begin with Michigan Notable author, Anne-Marie Oomen at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 17. The Oomen presentation will be followed by computer classes and story-hour sessions during the week. And the celebration will culminate with a concert by Emmy nominated children's musician, Red Grammer. Red Grammer will be performing at 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 21.

"Every day, libraries in big cities and small towns, colleges and universities, in schools and in businesses help transform their communities," said Mary Ann Chew, president of the Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees. "At our library, people of all backgrounds can come together for community meetings, lectures and programs, to do research with the assistance of a trained professional, to find homework help, to meet with friends, or even to check out a book."

First sponsored in 1958, National Library Week is a national observance sponsored by the American Library Association (ALA) and libraries across the country each April.

For more information, visit the Charlevoix Public Library at www.charlevoixlibrary.org or call (231) 547-2651.

The Charlevoix Library is open 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

National Library Week headline events at Charlevoix Public Library, 220 West Clinton St.

- Michigan Notable author, Anne-Marie Oomen at 6:30 p.m on Tuesday, April 17.
- A free concert by Emmy nominated children's musician, Red Grammer at 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 21. Doors open at 1:30 p.m. General admission seating

New bead store offers crafters a creative outlet

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Crafters of all ages have found a new local refuge.

In mid-March, Ellsworth resident and bead fanatic, Nicole Hallberg, opened Niki's Beads and Things at 1100 Bridge St., across from Dairy Queen.

Hallberg, 27, who is a full-time water meter reader in Petoskey, has spent seven years crafting bead jewelry and said she's ready to turn her hobby into a profession.

"It's a hobby, entrepreneurship. I love playing with beads," she said.

To make her bead dream a reality, she and her mother, Lori Hallberg, scouted locations. She said they chose Charlevoix because of its lack of existing crafting stores and its tourist draw.

With a store name determined, stocking the shelves was simple — beads. She sells everything from plastic to poly-clay, glass, ceramic, stone and crystal beads.

Stations are set up at the business where customers can craft necklaces, bracelets, earrings and more. She plans to schedule jewelry making classes this summer.

To diversify her offerings, she's added her own pre-made jewelry, as well as wine charms, soy candles made by Lisa Cunningham of Walloon Lake, unscented relaxation rice packs and handmade jewelry by Boyne City residents Jim and Sue Rostar.

Niki's Beads and Things is currently open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

For more information, or to schedule a jewelry making event, call Hallberg at (231) 237-9722.

Maiden voyage

The Beaver Island Boat Company's first voyage of the season on April 6 was fraught with high winds, snow and bone chilling temperatures. Much needed supplies were picked up from the mainland and taken back to Beaver Island. The Emerald Isle is the only boat up and running and will continue on a schedule of Monday, Wednesday and Friday until the end of April when her sister ship will be back to work.

Consumers Energy grants recognize Big Rock employees

Tim Petrosky

Kenneth Pallagi

The Consumers Energy Foundation has awarded$1,150 in grants to two community service organizations in Charlevoix and Emmet counties to recognize outstanding volunteerism by three utility employees.

The Volunteer Investment Program grants recognize Jim Wilhelm, an electric lineman apprentice at the Prudenville service center, Tim Petrosky, area manager and Kenneth E. Pallagi, radiation protection and environmental services, both at Big Rock Point, who performed a combined total of 130 hours of volunteer service over the past 12 months with the Char-Em United Way in Petoskey.

Petrosky served as board president and Pallagi served on the board of directors. A $500 grant will be used to support local nonprofit agencies.

Shifts in girls' sports seasons coming fall 2007

BY DAVID EGGERT, STEPHEN BELL AND STEVE FOLEY
ASSOCIATED PRESS AND PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS WRITERS

Shift in sports seasons at a glance

- Girls' basketball will move from fall to winter.
- Girls' volleyball will move from winter to fall.
- Golf, tennis and soccer seasons for boys and girls also will be altered, depending on when those sports are played in the Upper and Lower peninsulas. Starting in the 2007-08 school year, boys' golf and girls' tennis will move from fall to spring in the Lower Peninsula. Girls' golf and boys' tennis in the Lower Peninsula will move from spring to fall.
- The soccer seasons will stay the same in the Lower Peninsula, but boys' soccer will move from fall to spring and the girls from spring to fall in the Upper Peninsula.

After a nine-year fight, two moms from the Grand Rapids area won a legal victory Monday that will resonate with high school girl athletes in Michigan for years to come.

The U.S. Supreme Court, by refusing to hear an appeal, let stand a ruling that Michigan's prep sports scheduling discriminates against girls. Eight sports seasons will switch next school year as a result.

Girls' basketball will move from fall to winter and girls' volleyball from winter to fall. Golf, tennis and soccer seasons for boys and girls also will be altered, depending on when those sports are played in the Upper and Lower peninsulas.

"This is for all the young ladies in Michigan," said Diane Madsen, a Grand Rapids-area teacher and one of the original plaintiffs who filed a class-action lawsuit in 1998.

Madsen's three daughters have graduated high school since then. Still, she was thrilled by Monday's outcome.

"You can't discriminate based on gender, even though it may be convenient to do so," said Madsen, who sued with another mother, Jay Roberts-Eveland, in conjunction with their group, Communities for Equity.

"I'm excited," Pellston volleyball coach Tim McNitt said. "It evens things out, makes it a little more fair."

The high court's decision disappointed the Michigan High School Athletic Association, the governing body for high school sports, which said its scheduling helps girls and ensures their high sports participation rate in Michigan.

MHSAA Executive Director Jack Roberts listed a number of headaches that could result from the ruling but said he felt the worst for athletes who no longer can play multiple sports. Girls' tennis and soccer, for example — which now are played in the fall and spring — will both be played in the spring.

"Thousands of boys and girls will find that the combination of sport that they had in mind is not a combination that's going to be available to them," Roberts said.

Petoskey girls' basketball coach Nelson Greenier also sees a number of headaches that could arise from the ruling.

The first being coaching.

"It's going to be tough," Greenier said.. "(Traverse City West girls' basketball coach) Patti Tabaldi told me there are 28 coaches in our state that coach both boys and girls basketball. That's a large number of coaches doing both and it's going to make for a lot of coaching vacancies."

Greenier also worries about vacancies in the stands with girls' basketball competing with boys in the same season.

"I think at first girls' crowds will be affected," Greenier said. "It's going to be something tough all the way around and it's going to be different."

In 2001, U.S. District Judge Richard Enslen in Kalamazoo ruled that the scheduling policies violate the equal-protection clause of the 14th Amendment, the federal Title IX statute and Michigan civil rights law. He ordered a realigned sports schedule, but the case was tied up in appeals courts for more than five years.

Enslen said girls' sports often haven't been moved because of concerns about the inconvenience to boys' programs.

The suit especially sought to eliminate the practice in Michigan of scheduling the girls' basketball season in the fall and the girls' volleyball season in the winter. Because colleges and high schools in most other states flip-flop those two sports seasons, critics say Michigan's schedule limits the exposure of the state's female prep athletes and hurts their chances of winning sports scholarships.

Michigan is the only state where volleyball is a winter sport, and one of two to play girls' basketball outside of winter. Hawaii girls play in the spring.

McNitt said travel will be much easier with volleyball in the fall.

"We won't have to worry about Saturday tournaments being canceled because of the weather," he said. "Whether we're going to tournaments at Suttons Bay, Leland, Ferris, we won't have to go through the snow to get there."

New conference schedules for volleyball could also have an impact academically.

"With Thursday games, the girls have to get their homework assignments done for Friday," McNitt said. "On road trips to Forest Area, the girls all have their books cracked open. When the boys take that trip on Friday, they all have their headphones on."

Greenier said he preferred the girls' basketball season in the fall.

"We had our own tournament run at the end of the season and it was nice," Greenier said. "You could actually do your summer stuff right before the season and then jump right into the season. Now, that's different.

"I know it's going to affect AAU basketball for girls as well."

Greenier also worries about other aspects of the change including gym practice times, officials and non-conference scheduling.

"It's going to be tough to get used to and it'll be interesting to see what happens to some coaches that coach both, with officials and with smaller schools like Boyne Falls, Alanson and Harbor Light who'll have basically six teams trying to practice with one floor. I kind of feel bad for smaller schools like that.

"It's going to be an adjustment for the boys as well," added Greenier. "They may not have the same practice times they had this year."

The MHSAA, whose members include more than 1,500 public and private schools, says the purpose of having some different athletic seasons for boys and girls is to maximize opportunities for participation. Many coaches and administrators disagree that Michigan's schedule is discriminatory.

MHSAA loses battle over sports season shift

SPORTS

The MHSAA had vigorously fought the schedule switch, and worries some schools will struggle to find enough coaches, officials and gym availability to make the new setup work.

The case doesn't just affect volleyball and basketball.

Starting in the 2007-08 school year, boys' golf and girls' tennis will move from fall to spring in the Lower Peninsula. Girls' golf and boys' tennis in the Lower Peninsula will move from spring to fall.

The soccer seasons will stay the same in the Lower Peninsula, but boys' soccer will move from fall to spring and the girls from spring to fall in the Upper Peninsula.

At least one of those planned switches will face a legal challenge. Richard Friedman, a University of Michigan law professor, said Monday he will try to intervene on behalf of parents and a tennis coaches' association to keep the girls' tennis season in the fall. Friedman said the fall is considered preferable for tennis in Michigan because of better weather conditions.

Supporters of the season switch say it will help girls beyond sports. They say Michigan's prep scheduling has treated girls like second-class citizens — affecting their self-image and academics as well as their opportunities in athletics — without most people in the system even realizing it. They also argue the switch will help more Michigan girls be recruited for college sports.

"Unfortunately, the existing damage cannot be undone," said Neena Chaudhry of the Washington-based National Women's Law Center and one of the lead attorneys in the case. "But we can look forward. Future generations of Michigan high school girls who want to participate in athletics will get the equal opportunities for which they have long waited."

Roberts, whose group faces $1.4 million in legal bills and could be responsible for the plaintiffs' attorney fees, said schools don't want the changes. He argued it will be a struggle to maintain Michigan's high sports participation rate among high school girls. But he said schools must do their best to respond.

"The job just got harder," Roberts said. "But blame, pity and whining will not help now. Imagination and energy are what we need now."

Prosecutor: SANE drug busts down, use climbs

SANE

in Montmorency and equal to those complaints in Otsego.

The 23 drug related arrests in Charlevoix were fewer than the 43 in Cheboygan, 42 in Chippewa, 36 in Emmet, 27 in Otsego and more than the three in Luce, one in Montmorency and equal to those arrests made in Mackinac County.

"SANE conducted two search warrants in Charlevoix County, where marijuana and cash were seized," Mills stated in the report. "One of the search warrants in Charlevoix County uncovered an indoor marijuana grow operation."

While the number of complaints and arrests have dropped from the previous year, Charlevoix County law enforcement officials are seeing a steady increase in the sale and use of drugs and at least five drug related deaths over the past few years.

"Drugs are not declining, drugs are on the increase, but SANE targets the bigger fish or end line user," said Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney, John Jarema, so the increase in drug use in Charlevoix County may not be as evident in their report.

Some of the major charges levied across SANE's seven county coverage area in 2006 included 97 for delivery of crack or powdered cocaine, 17 for cocaine possession, 16 for habitual offender, 113 for maintaining a drug house, 93 for marijuana delivery, 43 for opium delivery, three for Methamphetamine delivery and nine for heroin delivery.

"We are seeing the comeback of heroin, we are seeing cocaine in stronger numbers, but the bulk of what we are seeing is prescription drug use — pills like Vicodin, methadone, OxyContin," Jarema said. "They are readily available on the street. In fact, I just spoke with Rep. (Kevin) Elsenheimer to push for legislation to mandate new laws that will stop doctor shopping."

Doctor shopping is when a person complains of symptoms and receives prescriptions from numerous doctors in a short time span with the intent of either abusing the drugs or selling them on the street.

"This is a huge problem," Jarema said. "The last two drug deaths (in Charlevoix County) were related to prescription drugs."

He added, "Age doesn't seem to be a factor, social status, financial status doesn't seem to be a factor either, it's totally across the board."

The complaint comparison of the last decade for SANE's seven county coverage area shows an increase from 120 in 1996 to 190 in 2006 with a spike of 294 in 2003. An arrest comparison over the last decade of the entire coverage area shows an increase from 122 in 1996 to 198 in 2006 with a spike of 226 in 2005. SANE task force's yearend balance comparison for all activity shows a decrease from $202,922 in 1996 to $146,275 in 2006.

The SANE task force consists of 12 employees including police, prosecutors and administrative staff.

For more information or to report concerns you may have about illegal activities involving drugs, call SANE toll free at (800) 621-8651.

Can a balanced Rayder baseball team put 20 years of trampled district championship hopes to rest?

Head coach Allen Telgenhof thinks so.

"We want our program to be about winning championships — the conference, districts, regionals and a state championship," he said. "Everyone is really ready to step up. I hear the guys talking about the final four in Battle Creek and setting the school record for wins. That's exciting."

With the help of assistant coaches, Kirk Heckendorn and Neil Friske and junior varsity coach, Brian Certa, Telgenhof is grooming a 2007 championship team.

Of the 13 players he said he has two senior leaders that will be the key to the season — pitchers Chris Waha and Danny Waldron.

"Chris (who returns this season after two years in California) has a chance to be the best pitcher in northern Michigan and Danny is a solid number two guy — these are men pitching," coach Telgenhof said.

While these two are the cornerstone of the Rayders' defensive outfit, if opponents get a hit off they have a powerful infield and outfield backing them up.

The infield includes two power players Jon Putman, a sophomore at shortstop and Cliff Jones, a junior at second base. The outfield is secured by experienced players Ty Telgenhof, R.J. Moore and Zach Scharenhroch.

Coach Telgenhof said the one place the team needs to make strides is at the plate and Certa has been working with players on hitting skills.

The number one challenge to the Rayder plight for the Lake Michigan Conference championship crown is rival East Jordan. The first Rayder-Red Devil showdown of the season will take place at 4:30 p.m. on April 17 on Charlevoix's diamond.

"We'll know early on where we stand in the conference based on how we do with them," Telgenhof said.

Other tough conference competitors include Traverse City St. Francis and Elk Rapids.

The Charlevoix High School softball team is planning to continue its climb to the top.

In 2006, the softball team ended the season 12-12 and in third place in the Lake Michigan Conference, the program's best record in 15 years.

"We want to build off what we accomplished last year. We want to bring a district title back to Charlevoix," said Tony Zimmerman, head coach of the varsity Rayder softball team.

The players Zimmerman feels are team leaders include senior, Sasha Spencley at shortstop, junior, Leah Kelly at second base, junior, Desi Faust on the mound and at first hase and sophomore Amber Hoffman, a pitcher.

"We are experienced but have some growing to do. It's just a matter of getting some playing time," Zimmerman, who is in his second season coaching the team, said.

While defensive play is one of the team's strengths, hitting skills are an area Zimmerman said needs polishing. Top hitters are Spencley, Faust and senior outfielder, Charisse Rogers. Assistant coach Ken Hoffman has been working with the team on offensive skills and strategy. Patrick Faust is a second assistant coach.

Hopes of clinching the conference title could be dashed by Kalkaska, Traverse City St. Francis and East Jordan — all of whom Zimmerman described as strong teams.

CHARLEVOIX HIGH SCHOOL BOYS' TRACK COACH

With just under 100 players competing, Charlevoix High School girls' and boys' track teams have their sights set on winning regionals and making an appearance at the team state finals.

The boys' track team is coming off back-to-back district and regional wins as well as strong showings at the team state finals where they finished fourth in 2005 and third in 2006.

"We have experience in our leadership and a lot of depth (56 players total). It will take a while to mold it but I think we'll be successful," said boys' track coach, Ken Plude, who has worked with the Rayder program since 1986.

Key players on the boys' team who helped carry them to regional championships in 2005 and 2006 include four seniors — Darron Munson, who specializes in sprints and short/middle distance running, Jacob Wimmer, who is a distance runner, Scott Plude, a hurdler, and Ray Jones, a thrower.

"We'll rely heavily on our senior leadership," Ken said.

Ken said his team's strongest showing will be in the mile and two mile relay events.

Standing in the boys' team's path on their trek to a regional win is Kalkaska — a Lake Michigan Conference competitor that didn't graduate any of their top competitors in 2006.

Mary Plude, head coach of the varsity girls' track team, listed Kalkaska along with Boyne City and East Jordan as conference teams presenting her players with competition this year. The conference championship will take place on May 23 in Kalkaska.

While these teams are obstacles they aren't road blocks. Mary believes her team has what it takes to make an appearance at the state finals.

"They are focused from the new ones right on up. I think this is the team. If what I've seen in the first three weeks continues, it's a good sign that they can accomplish these goals," she said.

The girls' team ended the 2006 season with a seventh place finish at the state finals. The state qualifying 2007 regional meet will take place on May 19 in East Jordan.

To meet their goal, Mary said the 27-person team, 19 of whom are new to the sport, is focusing on form, conditioning and strength training.

Leadership will come from the team's four seniors — Lindi Edger, a middle distance and distance runner, Brittney Lamb, a middle distance runner, Emily Heffling, who specializes in sprints and hurdles and Ashley Pett, a thrower. Rounding out the team are Tammy Potter, a second thrower and Madeline Jeakle and Alyssa Smith, two high-powered high jumpers.

"We need April to put things together. I can see a picture, they've dreamed it but we need to put it on the track," Mary said.

The girls' and boys' teams will have the chance to lay it on the track for the first time this season at 4 p.m. on April 16 at a Lake Michigan Conference meet in Grayling.

Soccer squad plans to top record breaking season

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

The Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team plans to top their 2006 record breaking season this year.

"This is the most skilled team we've ever had. All 16 players can play at a high level and we've never been able to say that before," said assistant coach, Tom Conlan.

The team ended last season undefeated in the Lake Michigan Conference and 15-3-1 overall. They graduated top performers including sweeper Stevie Murray and all-state goalkeeper Laura Nitchman.

While Conlan said the loss of Nitchman and Murray is substantial, he has players that can and will fill their cleats.

Leading the 2007 soccer season are tri-captains, Zita Anderson, Lori Zimmerman and Becca Madison. Conlan described Madison, a junior, as an all-state candidate and "one of the best lady soccer players in northern Michigan. Giving the Rayders their offensive edge will be Zimmerman, a forward, and junior, Ariel Ramsey, who was named all-conference, all-district in 2006.

Protecting the Rayders' interests in goal will be sophomore Tammy Potter who was Nitchman's backup in 2006 and saw some game time. Conlan is confident in her skills and said she covers the goal well.

While the team is stacked with talent, Conlan said he and head coach, Carol Madison, are focused on bettering the group by improving their overall fitness and polishing their ball skills.

"We have some work to do on defense," he said.

Key defensive players are sophomore, Meredith Rich and sweeper, Emily Foster.

With offensive and defensive attacks in place, Conlan said his team's ultimate goal is to three-peat as Lake Michigan Conference champions, to take a third district title and to make a run at the regional championship.

The teams potentially standing in the way of reaching those goals are Elk Rapids, Harbor Springs and Traverse City St. Francis.

The legacy of greatness being established by the Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team is also showing promise for the future. For the first time since 1999 there is a junior varsity team.

"I think that speaks for the success of the program. We'll have a strong program for some years to come," Conlan said.

Because there is no funding for the 17-member team being coached by Charlyn Gray, who heads the Charlevoix County 4-H soccer program, it is being referred to as a junior varsity club soccer team

The girls' varsity Rayder soccer team will open regular season play at 5 p.m. on April 12 against East Jordan at Charlevoix High School. They travel to Elk Rapids on April 13 and to Harbor Springs on April 16.

Charlevoix High School varsity tennis coaches, Erik Lundteigen and Neil Turner (above) are ready to lead their team to the state finals in June.

After missing the state finals by one point in 2006, the Charlevoix High School tennis team is ready to ace the 2007 season.

Head coach of the tennis team, Erik Lundteigen and his assistant, Neil Turner are counting on the team's senior leadership to guide them to a Lake Michigan Conference championship and an appearance at the state finals June 1-2.

"We've got some nice stability from returning seniors," he said. "We've got a lot of very solid players. The key will be improving between now and mid-May."

Of the team's 40 players, 15 are seniors. Top senior performers are Dan Swenor, who will likely play #1 singles, Tyler Haske, who is a singles player with a strong baseline game, Brad Cyr who can go doubles or singles and Trevor Mays, a doubles players with a powerful net game. Other players in the running for top positions are Taylor Witthoeft, Lauren Dupuis, Sarah Hagen and Jeff Baier.

Lake Michigan Conference teams that will present the greatest competition for the Rayders are Traverse City St. Francis and Harbor Springs.

"The conference is very competitive. It keeps it interesting," Lundteigen said.

The team will get a taste of conference competition at their first meet of the season on April 14 when they face Boyne City on the Ramblers' home turf.

"The first meet is always tough — kids are playing in different spots, nerves. I think our chances (of beating Boyne City) are good but we'll see," Lundteigen said.

Local residents argue environmental health and human safety could be at risk in the narrows on the south arm of Lake Charlevoix if four failing informational buoys are not replaced.

According to concerned resident Paul Witting, no-one is willing to pay for their replacement.

"I took this on because I had received a letter from the Lake Charlevoix Association last May asking for donations to buy the new buoys and I sent in my donation," Witting said. "I called the trea-

Youth pitch in at Pine Point

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department recently added two deputy's, and at 8 and 9 years old, they may be the youngest recruits in the state.

While their new assignments may be honorary, Erik Oshaben and Tanner Owens' efforts to clean up their neighborhood are the real thing.

"A group of kids from the Pine Point neighborhood have found over 100 pieces of litter. Most of the litter was beer cans or alcohol bottles," stated the boys in a letter to Sheriff George T. Lasater. "We were just wondering if there was anything you could do to help us keep our neighborhood 'litter-free."

Lasater said the boys' efforts reminded him of when he was in Scouts doing projects in his community.

"These fellows did this on their own. I think that shows a lot of character," he said. "They were upset with people throwing trash and bottles out in their community and wanted their neighborhood to look nice."

For their continued efforts, the boys received honorary certificates of deputization, sheriff department ball caps and rubber gloves to keep them safe while removing litter.

"Eric Oshaben's mother called me and asked if the kids wanted to go around and pick up garbage," said Ben Owens, Tanner's father. "I'm proud as a parent that he wants to take responsibility for his neighborhood."

He added, "They got two bags of garbage and picked (many) beer cans and several alcohol bottles.

signed. Thank you, but no. I'm here to terminate involvement with the Charlevoix park and marina as of now," Pollack told council. "I would not have chosen to end this, this way. But it is. Good luck with the rest of the project."

Pollack's decision stems in part from a decision made at a special meeting of city council that took place on March 14. At that meeting, council voted to enter into a contract with Harbor Springs architect Mark Buday to oversee phase three of the East Park renovation contract.

The $6.7 million third phase of the project is being handled by Hallmark Construction of Traverse City and began this winter. It includes demolition of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, the Odmark Pavilion commonly called the "bandshell," the portable bathroom trailer and the fish pond. This phase also includes construction of the new performance pavilion and harbormaster's facility as well as site work, landscaping and underground excavation.

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said the decision to hand the reigns over to Buday was based on a Waterways Commission requirement for project oversight because Buday was the licensed architect whose stamp appeared on the approved drawings. The Waterways Commission is funding 75 percent of the marina project and marina related East Park changes.

Buday is one of the members that Pollack assembled to see the project through. However, under the contract city council approved in early March Buday became the project leader with Pollack working under him. In that setup, Pollack said he lost control.

Pollack said his new role greatly reduced the scope of work he was given to "surface treatments" and didn't include the project elements he and his team designed.

"And that's an untenable circumstance," he said. "Not to be fully involved is not taking advantage of the capabilities Pollack Design brings to Charlevoix."

Carlson said the roles Pollack ultimately rejected included control over park plantings some walls and railings and other above ground design. Carlson said at this time it is not clear who will take over those roles.

Pollack said he doesn't feel the project is vulnerable without his direct oversight but he does feel the city is losing a key player.

"They (Buday) have our confidence. What they don't have is our perspective over time — the community awareness of larger goals. That's no longer here," he said. "We have been here for six years working with this community to produce a plan. Look at it today, it's remarkable. You can begin to see a great deal of what's happening."

"Construction supervision isn't interpreting lines on paper. Decisions during construction should be made based on everything that's happened to date. And that's not here now," he added.

The Buday design team was brought on in early 2006 but Pollack's role in the design phase started with the first public planning meeting in December 2001.

His ultimate masterpiece for East Park, which spans two blocks running 614 feet north to south and stretching 284 feet at its widest point, was approved in December 2002 after countless hours of planning and numerous public input meetings.

As he bid farewell to almost six years of work, Pollack urged council to pay attention to details as they evolve and to turn the summer construction disruption into a celebration of milestones.

"Turn the disruption into a celebration of progress and change. Find something to do on a consistent basis. That's something we would have done," he said. "The potential is remarkable. I hope it comes out the way everyone expects it to."

Pollack was given a certificate of appreciation from Carlson for his work which he accepted.

"I'm angry and ornery but not ungrateful," he said.

Pollack and his consulting team are still owed $101,000 for work they've completed. Attorneys for both parties are now working on an agree-

Auto insurance, safeguard or extortion?

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

At age 19 I dealt blackjack at a casino in the U.P. It was back then, watching people fork over their rent, grocery money and kids' college fund, that I learned you cannot beat the house, and just like insurance in blackjack, mandatory auto insurance is a sucker's bet.

Don't get me wrong, I understand why insurance is mandatory — after all, the taxpayer teat nurses every hobo admitted to a hospital and supports everyone with a bad back for the rest of their life because they got in an auto accident without insurance.

So what does all this government mandated extortion produce?

An LA Times piece by Peter Gosselin shows home and auto insurers profited nearly $45 billion in 2006 even after hurricane Katrina claims of 2005.

Some say insurance companies prosper due to wise investing, but just like the casino, the house wins by taking more of your money than they pay.

But doesn't everybody get into a severe accident in their life?

The truth is, only about two percent of the population crash each year. In my 13 years on the road, I've had zero accidents and paid more than $20,000 in insurance premiums — cash I'm certain could have been better spent.

I thought the answer would be to instate a waiver program wherein those who decline insurance could sign a form forfeiting all state and federal welfare/disability claims resulting from an auto accident. Those who refuse to sign a waiver would automatically forfeit any benefits, but would be subject to severe fines and penalties if found driving without either insurance or waiver.

I know, it would never work.

The insurance industry is a fear-fueled business and it wouldn't take long before some handsome huckster in a lab coat started presenting pie charts and predictions on how long it would be before the earth was knocked off its axis by the irresponsible move toward personal responsibility.

I figure it wouldn't take long before some group, possibly Mangled Michiganders for Money would spring up saying, while it's true we signed the waiver, it really wasn't fair to offer morons like us the choice. With our economy, the taxpayers could not handle a trillion-dollar out-of-court settlement right now.

But what to do?

I remember being 19 and paying a tenth of my salary of $12,000 per year in auto premiums while supporting a woman and child. Sour grapes or not, I have serious moral issues with laws which punish the poor simply for being poor.

Some of the 20 to 30 percent of uninsured American drivers have never been forced to choose between groceries or auto insurance, but it happens, and when those uninsured people are stopped by the police, they face up to a year in jail and hundreds, if not thousands, of dollars in fines.

The only thing which seems to assuage my anguish over this whole issue is something started in Texas a few years ago. And while I'm still against mandatory auto insurance, at the very least their Cents-Per-Mile law is more fair.

Texans now have the option to purchase a policy of cents-per-mile instead of the current standard of miles per year.

I recently spoke with Dr. Patrick Butler, director of the Cents-Per-Mile-Now Insurance Project, who told me your credit score, not your driving record, is the main measure of what your policy costs.

He said accidents tend to increase in direct relation to miles driven and poor people tend to insure and drive one car to save money on their yearly premiums, so they end up statistically with more accidents per year.

According to insurance industry standards, it costs between three and six cents per mile to insure an automobile — someone like me who drives less than 3,000 miles per year would pay a couple hundred dollars a year under a cents-per-mile system, as opposed to well over $1,000 annually.

Butler went on to say the National Organization of Women supports cents-per-mile because the old miles-per-year insurance fees are discriminatory since men drive more miles and average more accidents than women. According to the centspermilenow.org Web site, this is what the insurance industry refers to as, "skimming the cream," when they charge the same rates for men and women but pay fewer women's claims.

Cents-per-mile in Michigan would likely reduce the number of uninsured drivers and stop punishing the poor for their unfortunate financial situation.

Cents-per-mile rates would apply to driving related losses, so the costs for any comprehensive insurance would be similar to what they are now, but the overall savings would still be dramatic — hundreds and thousands of dollars per household per year.

Arbitrary government actions and insurance industry shills will never stop working to scare you into buying insurance. After all, there is big money in fear.

And while I have no illusions our state will give back this particular slice of personal responsibility pie, at the very least we might reform an industry taking advantage of preposterous political mandates.

A historical perspective on April showers

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

I am resting at my computer rubbing my hands together, not because I am deep in thought or anxious, but I need to warm them from our unusual cool spring weather.

Looking out the window I gaze at the landscape which is not the April I used to know. The sun should be shining much more often to lessen the irritability many of us experience when we don't see this orb. My mind began to wander and a thought came to me. I wondered if there were any studies on the effect of long winters and its relationship to events that take place. After perusing my Britannica, I realized I may have hit on something — could long winters correlate historically to our present lives? Now my mind has awakened from its thoughtful state and I sit ready and eager to figure this one out.

Lo and behold, I read through the good old Encyclopedia and I think I'm on to something. During the month of April a variety of events occurred that changed the face and future of today. The American Revolution started with Paul Revere's ride during the month of April. From there I discovered the great San Francisco Earthquake of 1906 and the sinking of the Titanic in 1912 — both took place during this month. It doesn't stop here. The lives of Abe Lincoln and Martin Luther King Jr. were snuffed out — you guessed it — the month of April. Was Seasonal Affect Disorder the cause to blame or just politics of the time?

Thinking about the name given this month I was drawn back to my high school Latin class which I usually slept through, but I remember that April comes from the word "Aperire." Loosely translated, "Trees and flowers begin to open." With global warming we may need to change the name of this month to "cold" loosely translated-chilly, lack of heat, followed by sneezing.

The month of April is experiencing changes and not without growing pains.

With the environmental fluxes brought about by our own wants and needs, the snow cap continues to melt and we in the northern regions will experi-

LETTERS to the editor

ENDORSEMENT RESPONSE

Editor:

After reading editor Witthoeft's April 11 editorial in the Charlevoix Courier I was very disappointed to read that she would endorse any candidate in the Charlevoix school board election.

As she said herself, the Courier usually avoids the practice of promoting candidates. As you well know, the media plays a big role in influencing the opinions in today's society. They can control the public's perception of candidates and influence people's thoughts. But should they? You, editor Witthoeft, have exploited your position with your support of one candidate in this election without first gathering all of the facts as a good journalist should do.

I expected fair, accurate and unbiased treatment from the Charlevoix Courier. I had hoped for thorough representation of all aspects of the issues surrounding our school system and both candidates' views. Are you solely basing your decision to endorse Mr. (Bo) Boss on one letter to your paper or did you talk with him at length before doing so? It's a shame Ms. Witthoeft that you have never taken the time to personally interview me. If you had, you may have learned that I am also a very passionate, proud and involved parent of two Rayders in the Charlevoix School system — a school system that I am very proud of and one that does not need to be fixed, because it isn't broken.

I believe in our administrators, teachers, support staff and school board and I would like to be a part of that team. I am confident they are all currently working hard to determine what adjustments (financial) can be made while still maintaining the high-quality education our children currently receive. This has been a real learning process for me and I can assure you there are not only one or two answers as suggested by Mr. Boss and supported by you that will fix the financial problems our school system faces. You complain that so many merely bemoan the dismal direction schools are headed — what have you done to be involved?

I look forward to the public forum to be held at 7 p.m. on May 3 at Charlevoix Public Library where Mr. Boss and I will have the opportunity to answer questions and share our thoughts with the public.

When I decided to run for school board I did so because I feel I have an obligation not only to my children, but future students as well to be more involved on a different level than I currently am. If I am elected on May 8 I will embrace the responsibilities and challenges required of a school board member and I will not take this lightly. I can promise you that I will listen to public concerns and make decisions based on facts. It takes patience to make changes and implement new ideas. Things don't happen overnight. I don't pretend to have all of the answers, but I will tell you that I know how to be a team player and will work side-by-side with all those involved to insure our school continues to be successful and the best it can possibly be.

GO WITH BO

Editor:

After reading the letter from (Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education president) Mr. (Bill) Trubilowicz referring to Bo Boss in last week's Charlevoix Courier I could not wait to get to my calculator. When he mentioned a budget of $12 million to educate 1,300 children, I had to see what that came to per student — $9,320.77.

I realize that this is to feed, (parents do provide for some percentage of this as meals were never free unless you were in a poverty bracket) educate and provide transportation to and from school and sporting events. And yes, there are lots of other money aspects the schools incur to educate but come on. I have lived in Charlevoix County all of my life and have raised three children who attended Charlevoix schools.

If someone offered me $9,230.77 per child, per year ($27,692.31 a year) for 13 years that would amount to $360,000.03, I'll bet that my children could have had limo service to and from the best private tutor and all sporting events in the area and there would have been lots of money left over.

On the subject of only a "few candidates" of the best qualified superintendents from the first round draft would accept this dual role of principal, superintendent, let's find one of the few. I say, "Go with Bo."

I also noticed that Mr. Trubilowicz mentioned that we have 130 employees in the school system. With a $12 million budget that comes to an average of $92,307.69 per employee, not too shabby.

As long as I am on the subject of schools it still bugs the heck out of me every time I drive by the old high school and I look at the huge front yard there. Picture a nice double decker building attached to the old building. It would have given us everything we needed and saved us millions and millions. Maybe even a triple decker or a full basement to house administration.

ence increased moisture and colder temperatures in the winter and spring. Another change taking place this April will assist those that procrastinate. Our income taxes were due later this year. Since April 15 fell on a Sunday, and Monday was observed in some parts of the country as Patriot's Day our taxes weren't due until April 17.

Not one to dwell on the downside of April, I'll bring you up to speed on some good things that are happening too. Maybe we can turn history around.

During the third week of April we celebrate National Volunteer Week. Let's give recognition to all our friends in the community, yourself included, who have shared their time helping others. In the last week of April we celebrate Professional Secretaries Week, Big Brothers Big Sisters Week and for trivia buffs the last week of April is also Mattress Turnover Week, Turn off TV Week and Egg Salad Week. Maybe this is our way of putting an upside on a long winter and recognizing it's not so bad to be in the month of April after all. Besides, April snow showers will bring small but very enduring May flowers.

OBITUARY

Hilda Gibson: July 29, 1911 - April 11, 2007

Hilda Gibson, 95, of Charlevoix, died Wednesday, April 11 at the Boulder Park Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

Rite of Christian Burial took place at 11 a.m. on Saturday, April 14, at Saint Mary Catholic Church in Charlevoix. Rev. Jerry Hunko officiated and burial will be in Saint Mary Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Hilda was born in Charlevoix on July 29, 1911, to Homer and Mae (Woods) Brady. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1929. On May 11, 1946, she married Elmer W. Gibson in Charlevoix. Hilda was a member of Saint Mary Church and the Saint Mary Altar Society, the Charlevoix Historical Society, and VFW Post #1153 Auxiliary.

She is survived by her husband, Elmer; daughter, Shirley J. (Richard Clem) Gibson; son John W. (Shirley) Gibson, all of Charlevoix; sister, Jane Glidden of Hastings; sister-in-law, Geri Brady of Charlevoix; and many nieces and nephews.

Hilda's brothers, Homer, James and Hubert "Bill", and sister, Esther Doyle, preceded her in death.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Historical Society or to Saint Mary School.

QUAINTNESS GONE

Editor:

I am sad to see the state of affairs our northern lower peninsula of Michigan is in. Sad for the locals and also the people who moved here and like a simpler life.

'We who moved here in the 1970s because of the beauty and the quaintness of the area, to leave behind the crowds, the rules, the crime, the malls. A place where our kids had freedom of movement and felt safe and also ourselves. The closeness of a small town, a simpler place.

I have no problem with people moving here. I moved here. But lately all I see and hear are changes they want to make, with that all the new rules and controls, any port USA. I applaud Leland for keeping their historic fish town and thank God you can still rent a cottage on Torch Lake.

There is no doubt that money talks and you know what walks.

It is sad to see the people of Charlevoix losing its quaint town appeal along with a lot of other ports in Michigan.

Look at our tax base, yikes. It's drawing a lot of people out of downtown Charlevoix to the surrounding areas, so sad.

No roller blading, no skating, no dogs, no rafts at the beach, no diving boards. I'm glad my kids that are grown now got to experience all things before they were a no.

Build a skate park on the edge of town away from everything and parents have to drive them there. I could go on and on.

How can all this happen in just a few years, who makes all these laws, who listens to the people and how they feel, or are the people of Charlevoix just silently sitting back and politely keeping their mouths shut.

Charlevoix is not a quaint lovely fishing town any more I will miss it.

NOT SO BEAUTIFUL NORTHERN LIVING

Editor:

We have lived in Charlevoix for less than three years. We moved here because we thought Charlevoix was beautiful. We found a lovely old house in the older section of town within walking distance of the beach and downtown. A nice safe street halfway between the city police and the sheriff's department. At least that's what we thought at the time.

A few month's after our arrival, our lawn furniture was smashed with rocks from the garden, birdhouses were lying smashed on the side of the street. Last year, someone walked into our rose garden and kicked over a concrete statue, damaging it. Later a 20 inch color TV, a stereo receiver, a DVD player and some other items were stolen from our garage. Recently, a concrete statue was stolen from a garden bed next to the house.

We reported the vandalism to the police. "Ah, just kids, pranksters," the police officer said. Not worth writing up a report. When the TV, DVD player and receiver were stolen, again the police officer said, "Pranksters, just kids having fun."

All of the items meant something to us. The TV, DVD, receiver had monetary value, the furniture and bird houses were made by my husband and hand painted by me. The statue stolen was of a little boy who has watched over our flowers in the summer and wore a wreath during the holidays. We bought him in El Paso and he traveled across the southwest with us in the back seat of our car. His name is Juarez.

According to Webster's dictionary, a prankster is a somewhat malicious but not vicious trickster or practical joker. To us a prankster is someone who dyes the Pine River Channel green or jumps into it for a swim, not someone who steals and destroys property. We would bet more effort will be spent this summer ticketing the criminals jumping into the channel than on catching the vandals and thieves.

We are sorry to say Charlevoix isn't as beautiful as we thought it was. And, please, please bring Juarez back home.

If all of this isn't enough, my coat was stolen while I attended a meeting at the library on April 10. What next?

RAINBOW SHOPPE STILL IN DEBT

Editor:

To err is human and it certainly makes one feel very humble. Yes, I goofed. A few weeks ago I had an article in this fine paper thanking many people for their monetary contributions to the Charlevoix Rainbow Shoppe's loan at the bank.

I stated, through their donations, the loan was paid in full. I neglected to say it was the down payment loan on the building. This resulted in some people assuming that the complete balance on the building was paid in full.

My humble apologies for not editing my own article I probably wouldn't ever get a job at the newspaper.

AN EASTER GIFT

Editor:

Thank you, Bill and Karen Schuiling.

On Sunday, April 8, Bill and Karen Schuiling hosted an Easter brunch at the Charlevoix Country Club. They extended the invitation to include many seniors from the Charlevoix Senior Center. We would like to take this time to say a big "thank you" to Bill and Karen for their great hospitality and in remembering the area seniors. The meal was great and all who attended had a great time.

Posting snafu delays mine hearing again

Norwood permit hearing rescheduled for May 2

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

For the second time in several weeks, the Norwood Township Planning Commission hearing on the proposed Norwood Limestone Mine has been canceled.

The meeting, last scheduled for Thursday, April 12, was not properly noticed per Michigan's open meetings law and has been rescheduled for 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, May 2 in the auditorium at Charlevoix High School.

"I feel very unfortunate that this is taking place," said mine owner and township supervisor, Wayne Wynkoop.

Wynkoop said the longer it takes to present his case to the planning commission, the more money he will lose.

"It's hard to put a dollar figure on it, but obviously with the season of mining itself being a short season because of frost laws and early winters, every day (lost) during this peak time interferes with production capabilities," Wynkoop said. "If I'm not able to bid on those projects because of an injunction or not having a special use permit, the season is going to come and go as I see it."

Wayne Wynkoop

Concerned Norwood citizen Bill Gnodtke was also disappointed the hearing has taken so long to be held.

"It shouldn't be that hard to get a legal notice posted," Gnodtke said. "But, if we're going to go through this legal process, it ought to be done right."

Wynkoop said it has been his dream for more than two decades to develop his property.

"My wife and I look at each other on a daily basis and say, 'We're not going to give up,'" Wynkoop said. "Why should we give up our dream for a few, just because they want to make a mountain out of a molehill and scare people that all these terrible things will happen."

He added, "My long-term plan is to stay here until the day I die, to raise my family and be able to pass something on to my children."

But, Gnodtke said, there are other families in the area to think about.

"When people can't sit out on their porch without hearing the, 'Beep, beep, beep' — that's not a natural sound out here in Norwood," he said.

> "The people who have come out here have made substantial property investments. (They) are really concerned about placing a limestone quarry right in the middle of a residential, agricultural area."
> Bill Gnodtke
> NORWOOD TOWNSHIP RESIDENT

Gnodtke said the planning commission need only recognize Wynkoop's property is surrounded by state land and property zoned agricultural and residential to know a mining operation will not fit.

"The people who have come out here have made substantial property investments," Gnodtke said. "(They) are really concerned about placing a limestone quarry right in the middle of a residential, agricultural area. This is a rural, quiet, pristine residential area."

Gnodtke said if people wanted to live near a quarry, they would have moved in next to St. Mary Cement Inc.

"If he (Wynkoop) is allowed to establish a limestone quarry in an area that is zoned residential, then nobody is safe — why have zoning?" he said. "As a resident of Norwood, the best case scenario will be if the planning commission fulfills its statutory duty and acts as the advocate for Norwood Township."

Wynkoop agreed that the planning commission should do the right thing.

"They need to look at the information on my application, and if it meets the zoning ordinance, they need to grant the permit. If it doesn't, they need to deny the permit," he said. "What's right is right and what's wrong is wrong. I'm going to keep moving forward and hopefully we'll get through it."

While Wynkoop said he isn't thrilled about the opposition to his project, he isn't surprised.

"There is a group of people and their intentions are to drag this out as long as they can to wear me down and bankrupt me so this thing will go away," he said. "I am an individual. I don't have any resources funding the battle we're fighting. We're supporting our own fight."

Gnodtke said anyone interested in the future of zoning and land use in Norwood Township should attend the meeting.

Just like teenagers who are striving for freedom and independence by obtaining their first driver's license, it is important to older drivers to maintain their freedom, independence and mobility.

According to Michigan demographics, one in six drivers will be over age 65 by 2020. Age alone can't determine your capabilities as an older driver. Older drivers need to factor whether they should be driving based on changes in vision, physical fitness, dementing illnesses or reflexes that might influence their driving abilities.

Who decides when an older individual is no longer safe to drive? Ideally, the individual should assess their physical and mental fitness to drive and adjust their driving habits to stay safe on the road while retaining the independence that comes with driving. Here are some helpful hints provided by Michigan's Secretary of State's guide for older drivers and their families, "Driving for Life."

Be aware of your physical limitations and how they may affect your driving. Can you turn your head, lift your leg to step on the brakes, can you get into the car with little difficulty?

Listen to the advice from those who know you best and care about you. Have you been seen driving on the sidewalks, running through stop signs, swerving over the line, driving to fast or too slow, bumping into bank posts, mailboxes or other cars?

Discuss driving with your doctor. Have you been prescribed new medications that are safe to drive with?

Take a defensive driving class for older adults, this will be good for your insurance as well as your memory. AARP usually has a course for older drivers.

Plan your route, drive where you are familiar and not long trips out of town. Don't go out in bad weather unless it is an emergency.

Drive during the day and avoid prime time travel. Find alternate routes with less traffic.

Drive a car with automatic transmission, power brakes and power steering.

Always wear your glasses that are a current prescription. If you lose or break your glasses, replace them immediately. Avoid eye wear with side pieces or blinders that may block your vision. See your eye doctor every year to check for cataracts or glaucoma, macular degeneration or other conditions that may effect your vision.

Seek alternative transportation — public transit, taxi cabs, share a ride with a friend.

If you have been diagnosed with Alzheimer's or other declining cognitive abilities, it may be necessary to alter driving habits.

According to the Alzheimer's Association Ethics Advisory Panel, a diagnosis of Alzheimer's disease is never itself a sufficient reason for loss of driving privileges. If an Alzheimer patient's driving is impaired, driving privileges must be limited. Driving privileges must be withheld when the individual poses a serious risk to self or others. The person with dementia, if competent, should participate in decision making re-

Hey Jane!

Jane

Hey Jane! My husband started using Viagra and is driving me crazy with demands for sex. We've been married 43 years and, frankly, I'm not much in the mood anymore. I didn't even know he wanted a more active sex life until he came home and announced he just had a prescription of Viagra filled and said, "Let's go!" Our infrequent sex life was good enough for me. He's so ready to go that I'm afraid to make eye contact with him. He has started to waggle his eyebrows at me in public as a sign of what he'd like to do the minute we get home. This is not an exciting invitation to me. What is the best way to get him to stop taking this medicine? EP

Dear EP:

I'm thinking your husband needs to have longer staying power in the area of romance. He can do sex but sounds like he needs some courting skills and these don't come in prescription form. This is going to take some work from both of you, particularly if his idea of foreplay involves eyebrows. Dust off those sex ground rules your relationship worked out years ago and put them back into action because one of you isn't done with that part of your relationship yet. In reality you may need some new rules so the difficult part may be keeping an open mind. Sex is one of those "use it or lose" areas facing seniors. So use it if you can — it's a very healthy activity both emotionally and physically. Importantly, don't either of you say yes or no to sexual intimacy until you've tried your hardest to work it out together!

Jane

Tips for gauging, addressing safety of senior drivers

garding driving restrictions.

Most older drivers will limit or alter their driving habits when they detect a problem, however, it is not always obvious with subtle health or vision changes. That's when family, friends, law enforcement and health professionals need to intervene to ensure their safety as well as the safety of the public. Appropriate limits to driving can often be mutually agreed upon. Responses to proposed limits will vary from immediate acceptance to strong resistance. To encourage acceptance, individuals who agree to limits should be assured that others, such as family members, will provide transportation.

Reporting an unsafe driver can seem drastic, but may be the only way this person may comply with restrictions. Most referrals are made by health care workers or law enforcement but can be made by family, friends or concerned citizens. These referrals must be submitted to the Secretary of State by submitting a request for re-examination or write a letter explaining the circumstances. These requests cannot be made anonymously, but the information will remain confidential.

For more information regarding safe driving issues as an older adult, seek information at your local Secretary of State or Commission on Aging. You can still maintain your independence even with alternate forms of transportation. Your safety as well as the safety of the public is the most important objective.

For assistance, call the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging at (231) 237-0103.

Sue Bergmann RN, BSN is the director of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging. She can be contacted by calling (231) 237-0103.

Charlevoix's DDA 25 years and $12 million later

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Hugh Mason

A 35-year-old bright eyed young accountant with a passion for Charlevoix joined the Downtown Development Authority 25 years ago this month.

Since signing on as a member of the authority, Hugh Mason has cast a vote in bringing to fruition almost $12 million in improvements to downtown Charlevoix.

"We are here to help keep downtown Charlevoix up with the times. Charlevoix is such a beautiful place but we need to keep it looking vibrant. Everyone on the DDA is very proud of downtown — a lot of great people have served," Mason said.

Now, Mason who owns and operates a certified public accounting office on Park Avenue, is joining his fellow authority members in celebrating a quarter century of service and success at a 25th anniversary celebration to take place at 5 p.m. on April 23 in Charlevoix City Council chambers at city hall.

The Downtown Development Authority was created in 1982 with the goal of boosting the economic climate of downtown Charlevoix.

DDA history at a glance

1982: The DDA was established in April 1982.

1984: In 1984 the district had a state equalized valuation of $6.7 million.

2007: The DDA state equalized valuation is over $28.6 million. The DDA has completed almost $12 million in improvements.

Revenue 2007-2008: This year's DDA budget shows roughly $687,000 in proposed revenues.

Funding sources: The DDA receives funding from various sources, including the capture amount and a 1.314 mills tax levy within the DDA district.

The DDA district: The DDA district covers over 12 city blocks and was expanded in 2003 to include the old Charlevoix Middle School property. It extends from West Dixon Avenue to West Hurlbut, north to south, and from Round Lake to the State Street area.

In the early 1980s, the value of Charlevoix's downtown area was decreasing. In response, former city manager Bob Hunt called for the creation of a Downtown Development Authority to counteract the slip.

"He (Hunt) was quite a go getter," Mason said.

Fast-forward 25 years — the DDA has quadrupled the downtown's state equalized valuation (SEV). In 1984, the DDA had an SEV of $6.7 million, but as of 2007 they have increased their value to over $28.6 million. City treasurer and acting city manager, Rick Brandi, said the increase can be attributed to both the DDA's work and inflation.

Brandi said the city uses a tax increment financing plan to take improvements made to the district and put them back into the district in turn making its value grow.

Whenever the taxable value of the land increased, the DDA was able to capture a chunk of those taxes. When the parcels of land downtown increase in value, that amount, $19.3 million, is multiplied by the current millage rate, which sets the capture amount.

In a previous interview, Brandi said the city doesn't feel a pinch in its budget as a result of funds allotted to the DDA.

"They wanted to make sure there were improvements downtown, and we're willing to give that (money) up," he said.

The DDA budget is subject to approval from city council but they operate within their own confines. This year's DDA budget shows roughly $687,000 in proposed revenues.

the 4-1-1

Who: Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority
What: 25th anniversary celebration
When: 5 p.m. on April 23.
Where: Second floor city council chambers at Charlevoix City Hall, 210 State St.

The DDA receives funding from various sources, including the capture amount and a 1.314 mills tax levy within the DDA district.

The DDA district covers over 12 city blocks and was expanded in 2003 to include the old Charlevoix Middle School property. It extends from West Dixon Avenue to West Hurlbut, north to south, and from Round Lake to the State Street area.

Mason, who has served at his position since the board's creation, said it is up to the Charlevoix City Council how long the group will exist. It will be in existence until at least the year 2026 when the $5.5 million bond for the marina and East Park project is expected to be paid off, but could last longer if the council decides to extend its term.

Since it began the DDA has improved Hoffman Park, walkways under the bridge, and street lighting, created a stairway on the channel by the Weathervane and purchased and renovated parking lots. The DDA's costliest project thus far was the Bridge Park project which will soon be trumped by the East Park overhaul.

"We've tackled so many great projects. It's fun to be involved with it rather than sitting back and complaining about what's not getting done," Mason said.

But just because the DDA is in the process of paying off bonds, doesn't mean they have halted plans. The DDA has other projects in the discussion phase including installation of a water play area and an ice rink in East Park, as well as new lighting for State Street and other side streets.

DDA meetings are the last Monday of every month in city council chambers at city hall. An official meeting will follow the anniversary celebration at 6 p.m. on April 23.

Multi-county food pantry meeting April 28 in Charlevoix

Representatives from all food pantries in Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim and surrounding counties are invited to a meeting at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, April 28 at the Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix.

The meeting is being hosted by the Manna Food Project and Char-Em United Way to help the volunteers and staff of the many pantries in our communities work more closely to alleviate hunger in northern Michigan.

"This meeting will give people from the various pantries an opportunity to learn from each other, exchange ideas, and talk about the challenges they have in common," said Kathy Hart, executive director of the Manna Food Project. "We will also discuss how Manna can work with the pantries to help them access food at minimal cost. The more we all understand about each other, the more effectively we can work together on this critical challenge."

There is no cost for the meeting and refreshments will be provided.

Food pantry volunteers, board members, and staff and any other interested members of the public are encouraged to attend. To register or for more information, call (231) 347-8852.

IN A SERIES OF THOUSANDS

When it comes to advanced energy storage products, Michigan is quite a power plant.

Cobasys is charging ahead with their advanced energy storage solutions. They've developed battery systems that enable hybrid electric vehicles around the world. Their advanced stationary backup systems provide homeland security for mission-critical public and commercial applications. And one state provides the power to charge this company's success: Michigan.

President and CEO Tom Neslage will tell you that the Michigan Economic Development Corporation has been there every step of the way. From finding the right headquarters location to expediting our rapid growth, the MEDC assures Cobasys gets the competitive advantage with Michigan resources, support and financial incentives.

Thanks to the MEDC, businesses that come to Michigan succeed. And yours is no exception. Here, you could have access to the $2 billion 21st Century Jobs Fund. PLUS, Michigan is home to an experienced, tech-savvy workforce and world-renowned research universities. In fact, we're ranked #2 among all states for patents awarded to public universities.

So, if your business could use a charge, plug in to Michigan. Because wherever in the world you compete, Michigan can give you the upper hand. Let the Michigan Economic Development Corporation show you how. Call 800 878 7722 or click on michigan.org/biz.

Pageant queen makes mark at Mrs. Michigan

When she left last weekend for the Mrs. Michigan America pageant in Grand Rapids, former Miss Charlevoix, Tanya Umulis, said this is it, her last pageant.

But after coming just two places from the crown, she's not so sure she'll retire her tiara.

"As many times as I said, 'This is my last one,' I can't help but be so consumed with the excitement of it all. I think I might do it again," she said. "I love competition I love challenge. I love to be pushed and people pushing me. I love organizing. Combine that and you have a pageant and I love it."

Umulis, 23, competed in the Mrs. Michigan America pageant April 13-14 at the Wealthy Theater in Grand Rapids. Laura Loveberry, 46, of Quincy and second runner-up in 2006, took first place and the Mrs. Michigan America 2007 title. Loveberry took home a prize package worth about $15,000 including a two-week trip to Mrs. America this summer in Tuscon, Ariz.

This was Umulis' second attempt at the title — in 2006 she finished third runner up. With last weekend's second runner up finish under her belt, her competitive spirit's sparked and she's ready for another round. Her prize package includes about $500 in gifts, memorabilia and breaks on next year's pageant entry fee.

"I am so pleased with myself. This is the first time in my pageant career that I really put my heart and soul into this and it really showed in the end," she said.

Umulis credits her top five finish to successful interviews and candid "from the heart" responses to questions like, "What's it like being married to a police officer day in and day out?" and "If you had one day left to live, how would you spend it?"

"Interview wise I realize my best weapon is to let my sense of humor and personality come through as real as I possibly can. That's what gets me in those top five positions — completely being myself and almost making a joke out of those ridiculous answers like world peace," she said.

Going into the event, Umulis was more confident than last year but knew the competition among the 18 registered women was steep.

"Any time you have some idea as to what to expect you feel like you are one step ahead of those that don't," she said.

To prepare, Umulis physically trained harder than in 2006, running at least five miles a day and walking another two to four miles. But the muscle spasms, broken toes, tendonitis and bone spurs that resulted from the intensive regiment weren't enough to slow her down.

"I just kept training," she said. "Physically I felt confident in a swimsuit and evening gown for the first time."

Umulis married Charlevoix city patrolman Matt Umulis on Jan. 7, 2006 a life changing event that not only chartered her future but also qualified her for the Mrs. pageant circuit.

She is thrilled to discover that marriage and the prospect of family don't mean the end to her pageant life which stretches back almost a decade.

Umulis started her pageant career in 1998 when she was 14. After spending a season singing in between segments at the Miss Teen Northwest pageant in East Jordan, watching each of the contestants, she knew she could compete.

The following year, in 1999, she went on to win Miss Northwest.

Summer 2000 marked her favorite win, being crowned Miss Charlevoix during the Venetian Festival.

In 2001, as a freshman at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant Umulis competed against 22 girls and won Miss Greater Central Michigan, one of 28 preliminary competitions to qualify for the Miss Michigan pageant. In 2002, she competed in the Miss Michigan pageant where she didn't place.

In 2003, she was crowned Miss Lake Michigan USA, a preliminary to Miss Michigan USA. She competed twice at the state level for this title, finishing in the top 10 one year and earning third runner-up the second year.

Local fruit industry weathers late storm

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

> "The buds that represent this year's crop are out on the trees and need to survive to make the fruit, but I am quite confident that everything will be fine."
> Richard Friske
> OWNER/OPERATOR OF FRISKE ORCHARDS

Despite several inches of snow and cold temperatures this early spring, the real threat to local farmers has yet to come.

According to Richard Friske, owner/operator of Friske Orchards, while fruits grown in the area tend to be resilient against cold temperatures and light snowfall, it is the mid to late-May frost which does the real damage.

"For vegetable and field crops there is not any kind of problem because nothing has been planted yet and it's not too late to get stuff planted," Friske said. "Fruit is a different story because the buds that represent this year's crop are out on the trees and need to survive to make the fruit, but I am quite confident that everything will be fine."

He added, "This winter was pretty decent weather wise and not extreme in either direction. When it did warm up I don't think it was too warm for too long. The bottom line is, when it cooled off a week or so ago that was pretty cold, it got down into the low teens, but I do believe the fruit in this immediate area is still hardy enough because it has not developed enough to be vulnerable to these kinds of temperatures."

The most vulnerable time for the apples, peaches, plums, nectarines, tart cherries and other fruits grown in the area will be after those buds become blooms.

In Friske's decades of tending his family's orchard, he has yet to see weather conditions so severe or untimely as to destroy an orchard's entire crop.

"My parents bought this farm in 1962 when I was 3. I've been running the farm since 1983 and grew up on it," Friske said. "We had years where one or two crops were somewhat affected, but it only takes a small percentage of viable buds on viable trees to make a crop. You could freeze nine out of 10 blossoms and still have a crop."

He added, "In fact, last year we had sites where we had a late spring freeze and thought we were not going to have many apples at all in some areas but they ended up fuller than we needed them to be."

Steps taken to safeguard the trees, Friske said, include maintaining tree health and employing industrial wind machines.

"It's very important to keep them healthy by managing soil health and tree health by managing crop load so it does not over stress the trees," he said. "We make sure they have water if at all possible and manage nutrients because, if you have a healthy tree, they are definitely able to tolerate more adverse weather."

He added, "We have two large wind machines that move air around on cold frosty nights on low sites."

Temperature can vary greatly between ground level and four-feet up and constantly moving the air on those still, frigid nights can mean the difference between live and dead buds.

For fruit, cider and more, visit Friske Orchards and Farm Market at 10743 North U.S. 31 in Atwood.

Richard Friske, owner/operator of Friske Orchards said the early spring snow likely did not damage the northern Michigan fruit crop. Buds like these seen on a cherry tree are resilient this time of year. It is frost that could come after they bloom that is the real threat.

Cortright recognized for work at county MSU Extension office

Rodney Cortright

Rodney Cortright of Boyne City was recognized for his outstanding work as the Charlevoix County Michigan State University Extension (MSUE) director at the Michigan State University Retirees Luncheon April 10 at the Kellogg Hotel and Conference Center.

Cortright served Michigan State University Extension for 25 years. His work focused on land conservation, and he was well-known as an educator who taught decision makers about smart-growth land use philosophies. Cortright was also instrumental in the establishment of the Michigan State University Extension Citizen Planner Program, which helps build the capacity of local planning commission and zoning board members. Cortright previously served with the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Ingham County Soil Conservation Service. Cortright graduated from Michigan State University with a bachelor's degree in crop and soil sciences.

Cortright was one of seven Michigan State University Extension retirees to be honored.

Marina FLASHBACK

In an effort to remind readers of how the East Park and municipal marina property have evolved, the Courier has teamed up with the Charlevoix Historical Society to bring readers a photo history of the property. This will run weekly in a "Then and Now" format with a picture from the past and the current construction schedule.

THEN...

(Above) The Round Lake waterfront in the early 1900s behind the 200 block of Bridge Street, approximately where Duke's Deli and Color Wear are today. Charlevoix's resort industry boomed during this period as people nationwide heard of the town's beauty and salubrious climate. Passenger liners arrived daily throughout the summer carrying hundreds of resorters and vacationers. Since Wilbur's Dock, later the city dock could only accommodate one large vessel at a time, the solution was to tie up side by side. Pictured above are sister ships, Missouri and Illinois, two of Charlevoix's most frequent and popular visitors. Passengers from one would walk through the other to disembark.

NOW...

Background

Phase I of the $10 million East Park and marina renovation project includes the seawall replacement, removal of the 17 existing piers, which at the furthest point extend 75-feet into Round Lake, installation of new sheet pile running the length of the park 850-feet, and other work. The targeted completion date for Phase I is near the end of April. Installation of the new docks, Phase 2, is underway. It includes installation of a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220-feet into Round Lake at the furthest point. Docks are currently being installed. The total cost for Phases 1 and 2 is $3.8 million.

Progress report week of April 9:

Molon continued to drive the seawall sheet pile down to the final elevation.

Capped the main seawall to the foot of Clinton St.

Upcoming events week of April 16:

Completion of tieback wall.

Molon will continue to drive the sheet pile down to the final elevation — 98 percent complete.

Cap on main seawall installation continues.

Begin underground storm work.

Installation and compacting of fill material.

Construction staking for the parking lot adjacent to Charlevoix Public Library and possible start of construction.

On Thursday, April 5 Charlevoix Scout, Paul Stolt submitted his Eagle Scout Service Project plan to the board of directors at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club. The plan includes extensive work at the club grounds. Pictured is Paul Stolt along with Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club president, Ron Svoboda.

Stolt's Eagle Project plan aims to improve Rod and Gun Club

Charlevoix Scout, Paul Stolt has targeted improvements to the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club for his Eagle Scout Service Project.

An Eagle Scout Service Project is a project in which a Life Scout plans, organizes and executes a project that will benefit a community organization. Paul's plan needed to first be approved by Tim May, Scoutmaster, Bob Fate, Northern Trails District Eagle Board Chairman and finally the Rod and Gun Club board of directors.

Paul's plan is to enhance the existing pond at the club to the state of a living pond ecosystem in which someone could fish or study its living ecosystem. The pond itself will be cleaned up, slightly enlarged to include spawning beds, outfitted with fish habitats and pond plants. The area that surrounds the pond will receive new landscaping including filling and improvements to the soil and drainage around the pond. Then the grounds will be seeded and fertilized and trees will be planted to give shade to the fish and the people who spend time there. A barrier of trees will be placed to provide a sound buffer between a new picnic area and the rifle range.

Pan fish and others will be planted in the pond. With the addition of the new trees and landscaping, Stolt will provide natural habitats for many other types of animals.

While the site plan is complete and approved the real work begins. Stolt will organize the largest details from securing permits and an excavator and operator to bringing in 200 yards of soil and supervising plantings.

Upon completion Stolt will submit his entire package with confirmation of each person's time and involvement, pictures to show progression and a write up detailing accomplishments and failures. Upon approval of his project from the District Eagle Board, Stolt will go through an extensive interview process with the board before a determination is made as to whether he will become an Eagle Scout.

Through the work and study that is done on this project, Paul will be able to complete merit badge work for Fish and Wildlife Management, Soil and Water Conservation and Landscape Architecture. He also hopes to receive the William T. Hornaday Award which recognizes those who have made a significant contribution to conservation.

For more information or to volunteer project assistantce, contact Paul Stolt at 547-4204.

Red Grammer children's concert this Saturday

One of the premier entertainers of children and families in America, Red Grammer, will perform live at 2 p.m. on April 21 at Charlevoix Public Library. A Grammy nominee and the winner of numerous Parents' Choice Awards, Grammer has been featured on Nickelodeon, the Disney Channel, the Today Show, CBS This Morning and has been described by Parent's Magazine as "the best voice in children's music."

Chris Hauke, youth services supervisor at Charlevoix Public Library recently booked 2006 Grammy Award nominee Red Grammer to perform a concert on April 21 at the library.

"I first heard him sing when I was still in Colorado," Hauke said. "Some friends of mine with small children had the DVD, 'Hooray for the World', and I loved it. He's energetic and fun and has a unique way of reaching children. I put his name in the back of my head for future reference."

Grammer performs internationally and was nominated for the Grammy Award in 2006 for his CD, "Be-Bop Your Best," the same year that Fred Rogers received this honor. Usually, performers of Grammer's caliber book concerts at least two years in advance. But Hauke thought she would call and give it a try.

Grammer agreed to include Charlevoix as a stop along his Midwest tour.

"It took several calls to arrange the logistics," said Hauke. "But we did it."

In addition to the Grammy nomination, Grammer has performed around the world, has six CD's which as of last year hit a half a million sales, has won a Parent's Choice Award and has appeared on TV.

Lawsuit challenges beach rights

BY FRED GRAY
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix County Road Commission has heen named party to a suit by 11 front-lot landowners in a 1911 plat on Pine Point who claim they have exclusive rights to the Lake Charlevoix heach in front of their homes by proximity of Beach Drive to the lake.

The road commission says the road was dedicated to public use and therefore everything between it and the lake belongs to the use of the public.

"It will he a battle, hut we have to prevail on this," said road commission manager, Pat Harmon. "The front-lot owners want it all to themselves. And there are decisions in favor of the plaintiffs. But puhlic use of the lakefront is in the public interest and has been upheld in a case decided 40 years ago. This could turn into a classic case."

The landowner-plaintiffs asked the Charlevoix County Circuit Court for an injunction against further use of the beach by defendants, who include owners of other property in Pine Point, originally platted by the "North Charlevoix Company" and Charlevoix Township and the public at large.

The suit declares that the Plat of North Charlevoix describes the land platted as extending "along the waters (sic) edge of (Lake Charlevoix)." It says there is no unplatted land lying between the plat and the water.

The suit said all of the plaintiffs are "front lot owners" and own land depicted on the plat separated from the lake solely by Beach Drive.

"Beach Drive abuts each of the plaintiffs' properties with no other property line between the lake itself and Beach Drive," it states, and adds "Each of the plaintiffs own property to which riparian or littoral rights are appurtenant."

"Riparian" is defined generally as "of, on, or relating to the banks of a natural course of water," while "littoral" is "of or on a shore, especially a seashore." In law the terms are the subject of complex and specific definitions and rights.

The suit states that each of the defendants has asserted the right to erect dockage and to moor boats directly in front of plaintiffs' property and in violation of plaintiffs' riparian rights. It claims the defendants have trespassed on the plaintiffs' property, diminished its value, and caused a nuisance.

The suit also states that defendant road commission maintains Beach Drive and may, along with the township, claim an interest in the plaintiffs' properties.

Harmon produced a decision by Charlevoix Circuit Judge Charles Brown of Dec. 7, 1968, dismissing a request that the court invalidate the petition of some lot owners in the plat to Hayes Township to post Beach Drive as "open to the public."

In his ruling, Brown states, "Streets and alleys in the plat are dedicated to the use of the public — not merely the rights of the abutting property owners — therefore, many others besides plaintiffs would be effected (sic) were this court or any court to find the plat was never accepted or, if so, that the roads streets, street and alleys therein had been abandoned. Certainly such a finding would have the effect of vacating and altering the plat."

Brown's decision was upheld on appeal two years later.

AUCTION MANIA

upnorthauction.com

Bidding it's as easy as ...

Determine the maximum amount you are willing to pay for the Item you are bidding on. Record the amount on the Official Bid form as your Maximum Secret Bid. Be sure to enter the Item number and description of the Item you are bidding on as well. Your Maximum Secret bid may not necessarily be the price you pay If you are the successful bidder (you may pay less, never more). However, choose a maximum carefully as you won't be able to reduce it later and you'll be legally bound to pay that price It It is the winning bid.

If you are bidding on-line, fill out your name In full, address, age, email address and your home and work phone numbers In the appropriate fields. After you have become a registered bidder, follow the on-line instructions. If bidding by telephone, have the aforementioned information on hand. YOU MUST INCLUDE ALL INFORMATION. FORMS WITH MISSING INFORMATION ARE NOT VALID AND WILL BE REJECTED WITHOUT NOTICE.

Submit your bid anytime between 9:00 am Saturday, April 21 and 9:00 pm Monday, April 30, 2007. Under no circumstances will bids be received after 9:00 pm on the auction's final day.
BY PHONE:
Call the Auction Central Bid Line as listed In the bottom left hand corner of this page.
VIA OUR WEBSITE:
www.upnorthauction.com

GOOD LUCK!

BIDDING ON THE INTERNET IS AS EASY AS ...

1. Select category of item you are interested In
2. Select the item you want to bid on
3. Click on "Bid On This Item"
4. If you are a First Time Bidder, click on "Create An Account"
5. Follow On-Screen instructions
6. Click "Submit"
7. Now Bid on Your Chosen Item or Items
8. You now have a user name and password, and won't have to put in your information again. You can just get right to bidding!

WHY A MAXIMUM SECRET BID?

Because Auction Mania is not a live auction, you cannot react instantly to someone bidding against you on the same items. For this reason we are using a system called PROXY BIDDING. Under Proxy Bidding, you tell our Auction Trust Committee the most you are willing to pay for an item. This is your maximum Secret Bid and is known only by you and the Auction Trust Committee. The Committee then PLACES A BID ON YOUR BEHALF at the LOWEST POSSIBLE to make you the high bidder for the item. If you are outbid, the Auction Trust will up your bid by set dollar increments until you are again the higher bidder or until your maximum Secret Bid is reached. YOUR BID WILL NOT EXCEED YOUR MAXIMUM SECRET BID UNLESS YOU SUBMIT ANOTHER FORM WITH A HIGHER MAXIMUM. Should you choose to pursue the purchase of the item by using a Maximum Secret Bid, you save yourself the trouble of having to submit another form when somebody outbids you. As a result, you reduce the chances of being outbid at the last minute before the auction ends.

EXAMPLES OF PROXY BIDDING

1. Bidding for an item starts at, for example, $500
2. Bidder "A" determines that he is willing to pay $750 for that item and therefore submits a MAXIMUM SECRET BID of $750 for the item.
3. The AUCTION TRUST COMMITTEE enters a bid of $500 (the opening bid) on behalf of bidder "A", which is the minimum needed to make bidder "A" the highest bidder.
4. You determine that you are willing to pay $1,000 for the same item, therefore you submit a MAXIMUM SECRET BID of $1,000 for that item.
5. The AUCTION TRUST COMMITTEE enters a bid for $760 on your behalf, which is the minimum amount needed to make you the highest bidder.
6. The auction ends.
7. You are the winner. You puchase the item for $760, plus applicable taxes.

Alcove Café grand opening this Friday

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Charlevoix's French roots will be celebrated at a new local eatery during a grand opening celebration this Friday, April 20.

Raechel Wright, a Charlevoix resident of five years, will open her new business, the Alcove Café at 103 Park Avenue, where she'll specialize in European cuisine with strong French country leanings.

Wright, who relocated to Charlevoix from the Columbus, Ohio area to give her daughter Emily a small-town high school experience, said her only lingering longing for big city life is variety in cuisine.

"Food tastes have changed in Charlevoix, the people who live here and come here in the summer are looking for the kinds of foods we're offering," she said.

With Emily having graduated in 2006, Wright said the time is right for her to develop her professional life again. The long-time software executive who enjoyed a lucrative career with JP Morgan Chase in Ohio and Chicago, Ill. had software bigwigs from Seattle, Wash. knocking at her door when another quieter knock earned her attention.

She saw a for sale sign at the Acorn Café.

"It just grabbed me. I thought I can continue doing what I've done or maybe I should do something completely different — I wanted the challenge. I love food and I love Charlevoix and have always dreamt about opening a restaurant," she said.

On Dec. 31, 2006 Wright closed on the business, which was formerly operated hy Scott McDonald, and spent three months upgrading, cleaning, painting and repairing the building.

"The goal was to make it warmer, to make it a nice, inviting place," she said.

While she has no restaurant experience she feels her business background and accomplished 10-person staff will be keys to her success. Wright earned a bachelor's degree in math and psychology from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, a law degree and master's degree in psychology from Ohio State University and a master's degree in computer science from the University of Phoenix. She has hired chef Aaron Wilcenski of Charlevoix. Wilcenski has worked in area kitchens including Whitneys, Chandler's, Tapawingo and the Acorn Café.

Wilcenski said the Alcove which will offer a four-star breakfast and lunch menu will likely be known for their signature Eggs Alcove, panini sandwiches made with meats braised and roasted on-site, homemade soups, sausages and fish smoked in-house, homemade rustic pizza, meal bowls, private label coffee and adventurous daily specials. A children's menu is available. Meals will cost up to about $10 each.

"Once the word is out and people hear and taste what we have, I think it will be pretty exciting," Wilcenski said.

The restaurant can seat 42 people inside and another 10 outside.

The Alcove Café grand opening will take place from 7:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. on April 20. The hours of operation will then shift to 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. The restaurant will open seven days a week this summer. Wright plans to be open year-round.

Additional offerings include in-house private parties and picnic lunches to go called "Boat Bags." Future plans include expansion into a dinner menu.

For more information, call Raechel Wright at (231)547-7490.

Snyder joins Barron and Engstrom PLC

Attorney Valerie K. Snyder has returned to Charlevoix and joined the law firm of Barron & Engstrom, PLC. Snyder (above, center) will team up with the firm's founder, Dan Barron (above, left) and fellow Charlevoix High School graduate Ed Engstrom (above, right).

Attorney Valerie K. Snyder has returned to Charlevoix and joined the law firm of Barron & Engstrom, PLC.

Snyder will team up with fellow Charlevoix High School graduate, attorney Edward Engstrom, and with attorney Dan Barron who founded the Charlevoix law firm in 1986.

Snyder began her law career in her hometown of Charlevoix in 1995, after having received her bachelor's degree from Adrian College and her law degree from Willamette University in Salem, Ore. Snyder is a former partner of the firm of Joseph, Corcoran, Telgenhof and Snyder, P.C. and practiced law for eight years in the areas of domestic relations, civil litigation and estate planning. Most recently Snyder has been at home full-time, raising two sons with her husband, Mark.

Snyder and Barron have both been very active in the local community. Snyder formerly served on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, the Charlevoix City Council and City of Charlevoix Planning Commission, the board of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and as past Commodore of the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

Barron has served as past president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, as a member of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority since 1993 and as president of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival since 1999.

Both Barron and Engstrom are pleased, noting that "Valerie is unquestionably a top caliber attorney." Barron added, "Valerie brings to the table outstanding ability, work ethic and commitment to success. Our clients and the community as well, will benefit from Valerie's dedication to her hometown."

Barron and Engstrom, PLC, is located at 309 Petoskey Avenue in Charlevoix. For more information, call (231) 547-9950.

Amick Lakeside Realtors merge with Coldwell

File photo

Amick Lakeside Realtors of Charlevoix has joined with Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors. Kimberly Engstrom (above), who has been in the real estate business for five years, purchased the Amick business in September 2005 from former broker, Carol Amick, who started the company in 1998 with her husband, the late Ed Amick. Engstrom and fellow agents with the Amick business, Carol Amick and Sharon Tormey have joined Coldwell.

Amick Lakeside Realtors of Charlevoix has joined with Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors.

Kimberly Engstrom, Carol Amick and Sharon Tormey bring over 50 years of experience in residential and luxury real estate to the new cooperative venture. The three will continue to offer real estate service from their location at 105 Clinton St., adjacent to the marina.

"We're very excited about joining with Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors," said Engstrom. "We know this will benefit our clients, as they will now have access to more potential buyers through the company's network of offices, its Internet site and various print materials. I think it's great to get some high-end exposure."

Last year, Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors sold over 220 homes priced $500,000 and up and 41 homes priced at least at $1 million.

Company CEO Ken Schmidt said adding additional quality associates and a solid organization was an opportunity that will bring benefits to both organizations and to consumers.

"It adds more depth to what we can offer to both buyers and sellers," he said. "For buyers, it increases our inventory of properties, and for sellers it increases the marketing opportunities."

The company is a fourth-generation, family-owned realty company with 40 offices throughout northern and western Michigan. For more information visit www.cbschmidt.com.

SPORTS reviewing the action

Attitude is everything

Snow cancels spring sports season openers

Due to inclement weather and poor field conditions, April 10-13 scheduled events for Charlevoix High School's sports teams were canceled.

The girls' and boys' varsity track teams will begin this week's events at 4:30 p.m. today, April 18 at the Boyne City Invitational.

On April 19 all other sports teams will compete. The baseball and softball teams will face Roscommon at 4:30 p.m. on April 19 at home. The soccer team will face Grayling at 5 p.m. on April 19 at home. And the tennis team will play Elk Rapids at 4:30 p.m. that day.

For more information, call Charlevoix High School at (231) 547-3222.

Camp Daggett opens camp registration

Camp Daggett is accepting applications for their 2007 WildernessAdventureCamps.

All three sessions will offer campers an opportunity to challenge themselves and learn new skills in a wilderness setting. Sessions include Pathfinder Backpacking Trip to Pigeon River State Forest June 24-30, Explorer Backpacking Trip to Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore July 22-28 and Voyager Canoe Trip on the Northern Shore of Lake Superior July 8-14.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY

PUBLIC NOTICE

APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

Breast cancer walk organizers extend 'Lend a hand' challenge

Organizers of the 2007 Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk, which will take place, May 12 in Charlevoix, urge community members and supporters to "Lend a hand."

The theme for the upcoming walk, "Lend a Hand — the Factor of Five" encourages walkers and supporters of the fight against breast cancer to find five people they know who are willing to "Lend a hand" towards the walk's success.

There are a number of ways to participate including collecting contributions using a walker registration form available at Charlevoix County Chambers of Commerce, the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, Charlevoix Area Hospital, local health clubs and Prudential Preferred Properties' Charlevoix office.

Individuals are welcome to come out and show support by walking or by creating a team of walkers.

The event will take place on Saturday, May 12. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and the walk will follow at 10 a.m. leaving from Bridge Park in Charlevoix. Walk routes ranging from 2.5 to 5 miles will be offered. Refreshments will be served in the park at the close of the event.

In the past, this walk has raised over $100,000 for breast cancer research, and cancer victims through hospice, Charlevoix Area Hospital and Camp Daggett scholarships.

Five years ago it was decided that the money raised by the walk would be dedicated to local cancer-related needs and has been directed to the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund, which operates under the umbrella of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

The fund was started with money given in memory of Judy Edger who died of breast cancer in 1999. Edger was an enthusiastic supporter of the Sue DeYoung walk during the last years of her life and her name was added to the walk following her death.

Proceeds from this year's event will benefit Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency's Breast and Cervical Cancer Screening Program and Hospice of Northwest Michigan.

Individuals can volunteer their time with the walk organization committee by contacting Amy Salatino at 547-7663 or Nicole Kurtz at 330-6060. Both Kurtz and Salatino are members of the Sigma Phi Sorority's Kappa Sigma Chapter which is assisting in organizing the event.

Those wishing to make a contribution may do so by sending a check to the Charlevoix County Community Fund (CCCF), P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727. Donors are asked to print Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund in the memo line.

Corporations and individuals can also direct their contributions to the endowment portion of the fund. By electing to do this, a donor is eligible for a 50 percent tax credit as well as a charitable deduction on their federal tax form for those who itemize deductions.

Registration underway for 3rd Annual Tri4Fun Triathlon

Registration is underway for the 3rd annual non-competitive Tri4Fun Women's Triathlon.

Forms are available at Harbor Health and Fitness, located at 110 Clinton St. in Charlevoix and at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool located at 11905 U.S. 31 North in Charlevoix. Women ages 14 and older are eligible to participate.

The triathlon will take place at noon on Sunday, May 20. A mandatory pre-race meeting will take place at 11 a.m. at Charlevoix Public Library, located 220 West Clinton St.

The event will include a scenic 20K bike, a 5K run and a half mile indoor pool swim. The bike portion starts in Petoskey and winds along the shore of Lake Michigan and ends at the community pool. The run extends from the pool, along a rural road and loops back to the pool property.

Participants can register to partake in all three events individually or as a team. Registration fees are $100 for a team of two or three and $50 per individual.

The triathlon is a fundraiser for two local cancer support groups in Charlevoix and Emmet counties, Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders and Circle of Strength.

For more information contact Michelle Rick-Biddick at (231) 547-4369 or e-mail tlc.fitness@hotmail.com.

In memory of "Babe"

Winifred Natalie Giacone (1910-2005)

She was born January 11, 1910 in St. Louis, MO, the only child of Pierce Blanchard of Charlevoix, MI and Metta Schlauch of Evansville, IN. Almost a century later, on February 18, 2005, Winifred Natalie Blanchard Giacone, known to her family and friends all her life as "Babe", passed away, into God's hands.

Raised in the winters of Chicago and in the summers of Charlevoix, Michigan, Babe treasured most her Charlevoix summers in her early years with her mother, Metta Schlauch Blanchard Wallace and her step-father, Bill Wallace, Jr. There were also many years when Babe was quite young that she lived with her Grandparents, Chester and Cynthia Kendall Blanchard and Great Grandparent, Frances (Fanny) Vosburgh Kendall Howe in the Blanchard home just outside of Charlevoix limits, as well as the Vosburgh farm near Norwood.

Babe's ancestors settled in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties about 1860; they included Charlevoix pioneers, William B. Vosburgh and his wife, Cynthia Vosburgh, who moved from Tompkins County, Upstate New York and built the first schoolhouse in Charlevoix. Their daughter, Frances (Fanny) Vosburgh married Pierce Kendall, born in England about 1838; Pierce had made application to be an Apprentice Merchant Marine as a young boy. A rumor, never confirmed, suggests that Pierce came to America on an English ship landing in San Francisco during the Gold Rush. Tragically, Pierce died in October 1897 when a tornado destroyed the new Charlevoix Inn Hotel while he was constructing the roof.

About the same time that the Vosburghs were settling in the Charlevoix area, Chester Blanchard born in Willsboro (Essex City), NY about 1855 also moved to the Norwood Twp. area to join his Aunt Elizabeth (Betsy Bishop) and her husband, Avery Van Ousen in the lumbering business. Chester married Pierce Kendall and Frances Vosburgh's daughter, Caroline Kendall; their son, Pierce Blanchard, married Metta Schlauch, their only child being Winifred Natalie Blanchard, who was named after Mrs. Orton (Winifred) Van Ousen.

Bill Wallace was a wonderful father to Babe and a dearly loved Grandfather to her daughters, Jo-Ann and Bobette. Bill owned and operated the Mobile Oil station on the corner of Bridge and Belvedere Streets next to the beautiful red brick home on the top of the hill, which he built so that he and Metta could see the whole of Round Lake. Babe and her family spent many summers with Bill and Metta on the front porch of that home overlooking Round Lake and the Venetian Night Boat Parade.

Babe and Joe's daughter, Jo-Ann, enjoyed a decade of summers with Metta and Bill making friends with the Merica girls, the Granddaughters of Metta and Bill's friends, the Glados family, who owned the Sugar Bowl Restaurant next to the theater on Bridge Street. Bill was a contractor; he had built the theater many years before, but he is fondly remembered for building the long-gone lighthouses in the middle of the Koi ponds in the park.

Babe was a beautiful young woman with her auburn hair, hazel eyes and creamy white complexion; when she turned 85, her red hair turned white as snow, and she still had smooth alabaster skin. She was a very special lady, far ahead of her time; her wisdom and guidance played a great role in shaping the lives of her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, for which they are very blessed.

Babe was an exceptionally bright student; she attended schools in both Chicago and Charlevoix, graduating from Highland Park High School, Chicago, IL in 1928, when she began a 45-year career as an accountant in the Chicago area. Babe was a "Super Woman" before the term even became known, her accomplishments far exceeding most women born in her era. She worked hard, but was able to manage home, career and raising her children in a loving and caring environment, long before such a role was the norm.

From the 1930s through the 1950s, Babe was a valued employee in the Chicago automobile Industry working for Foreman Motors, various trucking companies and Mogan David Wine retailers. Beginning in 1959, Babe co-managed Cook County Vending Company on Southwest Highway in Oak Lawn, IL which she and her husband of almost 66 years, Joe Giacone, owned and operated for 40 years.

Over their 66 years of marriage, Babe and Joe lived on the Southwest side of Chicago, Evergreen Park, IL, and Oak Lawn, IL where their daughters attended Oak Lawn High School. They lived and worked in Oak Lawn for over 20 years surviving a deadly tornado in 1967. In the 1970s, they built an oriental home in Indian Head Park area of La Grange, IL, which they enjoyed for another 25 years. Ultimately, Babe and Joe left the Chicago winters and made their final move to Los Angeles to retire in the Los Angeles suburb of Granada Hills, CA near their daughter, Jo-Ann Seitzinger of Northridge, CA.

Babe never looked her age. Even in her nineties, she was a beautiful, classy lady with her bright white mass of hair, her lavender manicured nails and her hand-pained floral cane. Everywhere she went people would compliment her; her pride kept her looking impeccable no matter how old she became. In June of 2000, she celebrated her 90th birthday in St. Louis, where she was born, with Joe, their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Smiling proudly, Babe rode the zoo train with her whole family following behind her. It was a wonderful time for all, and the memories will long be treasured.

It has only been in the last few years that Babe has been unable to move about without the aid of, first a cane, then a walker and in the past year, a wheelchair. . .something she always dreaded. In addition, age-related Macular Degeneration slowly robbed Babe's eyesight; soon, her favorite past time, reading, became a chore. Only in the last year, could she no longer attend movies, and soon television became a bright light with sound. Pneumonia took its toll twice, weakening her body, but not her spirit; each time she fought her way back. In the last month, at the age of 95, Babe ran out of energy; peace was a blessing for a remarkable women loved by all whom had the fortune to have known her.

Winifred Natalie Blanchard Giacone's funeral service was held at Eternal Valley Mortuary and Cemetery, Newhall, CA on February 22, 2005. She is survived by her husband, Joseph Giacone, of Granada Hills, CA; her daughter, Mrs. Richard (Jo-Ann Giacone) Seitzinger, of Northridge, CA; her daughter, Mrs. Michael (Bobette Giacone) French, of Hudson, FL; her grandchildren, Mark Seitzinger of Louisville, KY, Mrs. Paul (Julie Seitzinger) Chesis of Leawood, KS, Mrs. Bradley (Angela French) Childs, Michael French and Mrs. Adam (Annette French) Oay, all of St. Louis, MO; and 16 great-grandchildren. Jo-Ann and her husband, Oick Seitzinger, continued to spend vacation time in Charlevoix and enjoy contributing their genealogy research material to the Charlevoix Historical Society.

A memorial has been established in Babe's name at the U.C.L.A. Jules Stein Eye Clinic, Oevelopment Office, 100 Stein Plaza, Los Angelas, CA 90095 with donations to be directed to "U.C. Regents" with a memo for "Research in Macular Degeneration". Her family has made a donation to the Charlevoix Historical Society in her memory.

so they did a lot of work."

Tanner's mom, Angie Owens, said the kids were worried animals or other kids would get hurt by broken bottles or leftover alcohol.

"I think it's pretty cool that little kids would do something for their community like that, especially at their age, I'm pretty impressed," she said.

Pam Oshaben, assistant scout leader of Charlevoix Pack II, Bear Scouts, organized the event with several other children including Alan Webster and Mick and Danny Nesburg.

Mick and Danny's father, Roger Nesburg, said this project was completely voluntary and not a scouting assignment.

"If I was one of these parents, I would feel very proud," Lasater said. "This is a real reflection on the parents."

Lasater added that his patrolmen will keep an eye out for litterbugs in the Pine Point area.

History Preservation Society meeting offers viewing of 'Orphan Train'

The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society will meet at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 23 at the Boyne District Library, at 201 East Main St. in Boyne City.

The program will include viewing of the film entitled, "The Orphan Train in Michigan 1854-1927."

The Orphan Train brought Children to Michigan as early as 1854. By 1927, orphan placement from New York City and Boston would bring 12,500 children to 44 Michigan towns.

The meeting is open to the public. For more information, call society president, Carol Goodenough, at (231) 582-7042.

Neighbors seek funding for informational buoys

BUOY

surer of the Lake Charlevoix Association just to ask him how donations were coming in and he said, "poorly."

Witting then addressed the matter with his neighbors along the narrows.

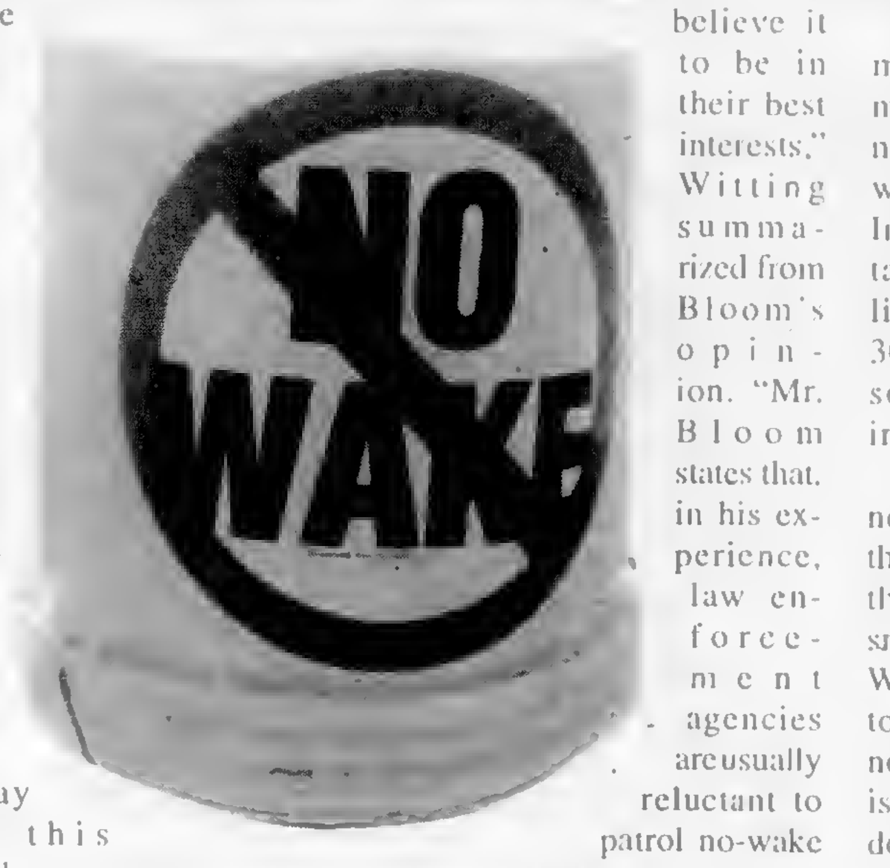
"People said, 'Why would I want to pay when it's the government who should be responsible for them?' Then I found out from our attorney that is not the case," he added.

Witting then took his concerns to the Tuesday, April 10 Eveline Township meeting and the Wednesday, April 11 meeting of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

"I would like to see Charlevoix County bite the bullet and pay the $2,600 to get the buoys in and then Charlevoix County wouldn't have to worry about it again for 25 years," Witting told commissioners.

Board civil counsel, Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema, expressed concerns about the county's legal liability if it purchased the buoys. He also suggested Witting determine exactly what, if any, Eveline Township and other governmental entities might be willing to pay toward the purchase before returning to the county board with a proposal.

"It's something we're going to have to look into," said District Two Commissioner Chris Christensen during an interview following the meeting. "I agree with our county lawyer that there might be a lot of liability if we pay for this and the taxpayers don't need that liability."



He added, "I would prefer he (Witting) exhaust all possibilities before coming to the county. Maybe some of the local businesses out there could pitch in for the $2,600."

WHY THE GOVERNMENT WON'T PAY:

Clifford H. Bloom, an attorney specializing in Michigan inland lake laws and regulations, opined on Oct. 11, 2006 that there is a difference between navigational aids and informational aids on Michigan waters.

"Government units are responsible for navigational aids (but) not responsible for information aids. Government units can authorize or approve information aids but are not responsible for implementing or servicing them unless they believe it to be in their best interests," Witting summarized from Bloom's opinion. "Mr. Bloom states that, in his experience, law enforcement agencies are usually reluctant to patrol no-wake areas unless there are no-wake buoys present."

The total cost to purchase the steel buoys and ready them for insertion in the narrows is $2,599.82.

Yearly maintenance and liability insurance on the buoys would be $950 and $900 respectively — figures not adjusted for future inflation.

The Lake Charlevoix Association is willing to pay for both the maintenance and insurance on the buoys.

According to Bloom, the county would be absolved of any liability if they gave the money to the Lake Charlevoix Association who would then purchase the buoys and insurance.

WHY RESIDENTS ARGUE THE BUOYS ARE NECESSARY:

The narrows are approximately seven-eighths of a mile where the waterway is merely 450 to 550 feet in width. The narrows house the Ironton Ferry, Landings restaurant and boat slips, public boat launch, more than 30 homes and property lots, some with docks protruding 45-feet into the water.

"To better understand the need of a no-wake zone in the Ironton narrows, think of the narrows as a congested small town like Charlevoix," Witting said. "When driving towards Charlevoix from the north or south, the speed limit is 55 mph. When reaching the downtown area, the speed limit changes to 25 mph because of the congestion. If vehicles were allowed to continue at 55 mph through town, a very dangerous situation would exist."

He added, "The same principle applies to the narrows."

HISTORY OF THE ISSUE:

1973 — Safety concerns of boats speeding through the narrows brought to the Department of Natural Resources

1974 — A no-wake zone approved by the Department of Natural Resources, Eveline Township and Charlevoix County

1991 — The Lake Charlevoix Association bought and installed four foam/plastic buoys resulting in a drastic increase of boater compliance

2006 — The Lake Charlevoix Association launches an unsuccessful fund-raising campaign to replace the deteriorated buoys

Witting, who owned property on the narrows since 1978 and has been a full-time resident of the area since 1994, said boaters who refuse to maintain a no-wake speed can cause waves which erode the embankment, slam boats against their docks, entangle in the ferry cables or even hit other water craft in the narrow vein.

"I'm sure the Landings restaurant, the Cove Marina and all the boaters who (use) the narrows really appreciate all the boaters that are so considerate by slowing to a no-wake speed," Witting said. "But this is an accident on its way to happen and I can tell you from personal experience the buoys have had a dramatic positive effect."

Anyone interested in obtaining more information or donating to the cause should contact either the Lake Charlevoix Association at P.O. Box 294 Charlevoix Michigan, 49720, (231) 582-0117 or by e-mail info@lakecharlevoixassociation.org.

STEPPING OUT in Charlevoix

Courier readers were stumped by this installment of 'Did you know?' which asked where this RCA Nipper and Victrola theme was located and what occasion it marked.

The RCA Nipper and Victrola appeared on the stage of the old school gym on Mason Street, now the library, constructed as a backdrop theme for a Barbershop Quartet Jamboree. "C. H. S." stands for Charlevoix High School, gold letters on the curtain that ran across the top of the stage. The quartets entered the box below the horn from the rear, the doors opened as they would on an old wind-up Victrola, and the men stood inside and sang. Charlevoix hosted these nationally renowned musical festivals on Labor Day weekends from 1942 into the 1950s.

Floating neighborhood gets the nod

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Todd Wyett

A group of Charlevoix residents won the fight for their floating neighborhood — for now.

"We're not just fighting for a dock, we're fighting for our neighborhood," said Jean Ziegler, who rents a seasonal dock in the Charlevoix Municipal Marina.

In the past, the city has offered eight slips for seasonal use by people like Ziegler and her husband, Gary. Under the agreement, the renters pay up front for 150 days of dock use. This brings in over $62,000 a year to the city's marina fund. Acting city manager Rick Brandi said in many cases only half of the seasonal slip renters use the marina for most of the season and the city can "double dip" by renting slips to boaters when seasonals aren't in port. Double dipping brings in an additional $25,000 to $30,000.

At first glance this may seem like a symbiotic relationship for the city and the seasonals. But this revenue and the fate of the floating neighborhood were recently called into question. The questions Charlevoix City Council and the Downtown Development Authority grappled with are, "Should public marinas compete with private marinas by offering seasonal service" and "Do seasonal slips compromise the public need for turnover at the marina?"

Landing gear leads to crash

What happened? A sea plane crashed in Lake Charlevoix.
When? Around noon on April 21.
Where? West of Horton Bay in Hayes Township.
Injuries? None.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is investigating an airplane crash that occurred at around noon on Saturday, April 21 in Lake Charlevoix west of Horton Bay in Hayes Township.

Robert Lambert, 51, of Ortonville, was flying a sea plane and was making a water landing in Lake Charlevoix when the floats hit the water and the airplane flipped over.

He and his passenger, Jeremy Lambert, 28, from Lake Orion were the only occupants of the aircraft. Robert Lambert received minor injuries/cuts while Jeremy Lambert was shaken up. Both refused medical treatment at the scene.

Investigation shows the wheeled landing gear was still in the down position causing the aircraft to flip over. The Federal Aviation Administration has been contacted. The sheriff's office dive team and marine division are conducting an inspection for the Federal Aviation Administration.

The sheriff's office was assisted at the scene by the Charlevoix City Fire/Rescue, Charlevoix City EMS, Charlevoix Township Fire Department and the U.S. Coast Guard out of Charlevoix.

Waterways approves seasonal, commercial docking

MARINA

rina renovation project currently underway, which will include a 67-slip floating dock system more than doubling the number of available boat slips in the marina, there are new rules and the city doesn't decide them.

According to Waterways Commission chairman, Todd Wyett, under the Grant in Aid Agreement the City of Charlevoix entered into with the state to fund the marina renovation, Charlevoix must request commercial and seasonal dock designations annually from the state. Waterways is paying $6.8 million over two years for the $10 million overhaul of East Park and the marina. The balance is funded by the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority.

While discussions by Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority and Charlevoix City Council members included talk that Waterways frowns on seasonal slips, Waterways chairman Todd Wyett said that's not entirely true.

"I wouldn't say we are anti-seasonal. What we acknowledge is the funds that Waterways gets comes from all boaters, not just those from a particular municipality — all boaters should have access to those facilities. At the same time, we realize communities would like seasonals as well to maintain some revenue. I would hate to see Charlevoix forego that kind of money," Wyett said.

While this is money the City of Charlevoix stands to lose, Eric Kammermann, harbormaster at Northwest Marine Yacht Club said leave it to private providers like Northwest and Irish Marina to serve their needs.

"We are very cognizant of private marinas and want to make sure public marinas aren't operating at the expense of private marina owners," Wyett said.

The Waterways Commission met on Friday, April 20 and adopted the city's proposal for eight seasonal slips and two commercial slips. Waterways also added a stipulation that the number of seasonal slips be reduced to six as current renters choose not to renew. Waterways instated a lottery system whereby new renters brought in are only guaranteed the opportunity to rent for three years before being put back into the lottery. There is no time limit for current seasonal slip renters.

The other approved element addresses quasi-seasonal slip rental and allows boaters to stay seven days in a row with a four-day leave before returning.

The marina will offer 55 transient slips, eight seasonal slips and two commercial. According to mayor Norman Carlson Jr., this will likely be a heavy transient boating summer as utilities imperative to long stays, like electricity, will not be hooked up for the boating season.

What's the issue? Should public marinas rent seasonal boat slips.

What is a seasonal slip renter? The renters pay up front for 150 days of dock use.

How much does this bring in? This brings in over $62,000 a year to the city's marina fund. In many cases only half of the seasonal slip renters use the marina for most of the season and the city can "double dip" by renting slips to boaters when seasonals aren't in port. Double dipping brings in an additional $25,000 to $30,000.

In 2006, how much did transient slip renters bring in? $170,900.

What was decided? On April 20, the Waterways Commission approved eight seasonal slips and two commercial slips for use. Waterways also added a stipulation that the number of seasonal slips be reduced to six as current renters choose not to renew.

Why does Waterways decide? under the Grant in Aid Agreement the City of Charlevoix entered into with the state to fund the marina renovation, Charlevoix must request commercial and seasonal dock designations annually. Waterways is paying $6.8 million over two years for the $10 million overhaul of East Park and the marina.

Charlevoix's challenge: Carry out Peter's vision

JUST A THOUGHT

Julie Witthoeft

I remember the first time I met East Park renovation designer Peter Pollack. My Charlevoix Courier byline reflected my maiden name, Julie Musilck, staff writer. Having graduated just over a year earlier from the University of Michigan I could still smell an Ann Arborite a mile away.

I heard "Hail to the victors" as I looked Peter over — comfy clogs, corduroy pants, slight build, long beard and an architectural mind capable of looking at the university's signature Diag and redesigning it to even greater grandeur.

It was winter of 2002. Peter stood in the American Legion Hall which was packed with Charlevoix residents ready to taste outsider blood as he proposed Charlevoix's hated enemy, change.

While I'm sure he came to the table with East Park ideas in mind, those who attended wouldn't have known. Residents duked it out among themselves debating how long was too long for Round Lake docks, whether the bandshell was worth keeping and if the Chamber of Commerce belonged in the redesigned park.

Peter listened to the goals and objectives of community members, learned what's important to Charlevoix and ultimately created three park plans for residents to dissect.

When tempers were high and Charlevoix lovers questioned how this high-faluting fudgie could be the mastermind behind the town's most prized possession, Peter kept his composure and showed compassion.

The final design he and his team crafted reflects classic elements of Charlevoix history and a high-class, user friendly space that will serve the needs of our community for decades to come.

Before Peter announced his decision to split with the city and not see the project to fruition at Charlevoix City Council's April 16 meeting I met him in the stairwell at city hall. He took one look at my bulging pregnant belly and said with delight, "Your second child will be here soon."

That's when I realized Peter has been a part of this community for six years. During that time I've gotten married, had my first child and now am just weeks from welcoming my second.

With that kind of time, energy and care invested I wasn't surprised to hear just moments later that Peter's long relationship with the City of Charlevoix would now end as architectural controls were handed over to Mark Buday Architects out of Harbor Springs. Peter and his firm's control over his masterpiece would be limited to above ground features like railings.

Since accepting the editor's position at the Courier our staff has launched a fresh redesign of the print product, carefully crafted a Web site to be launched soon and introduced signature elements we take great pride in. If someone took our project and said I'll take it over from here, why don't you write the community briefs page? I think staff writer Benjamin Gohs and myself would say the same thing Peter did, "Thanks but no."

While Charlevoix still has Peter's vision on paper, we've lost his years of project and community perspective. I hope to see the city heed the advice he gave before he left Charlevoix — "In the midst of construction disruption, celebrate milestones." Seeing as how the city's centennial birthday came and went without so much as an ice-cream social, the Odmark Pavilion fell without fanfare and the first docks were put in place sans celebration, I hope to see balloons and ceremonies as bricks and mortar are put in place. And when the park and marina are ultimately unveiled, Peter and his team should be recognized for their vision and invited to the party.

Thanks for your professionalism Peter, Charlevoix is lucky to have had your decades of experience and penchant for perfection backing this project.

Sugar maple spring show evidence of plant power

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

One generation for human beings is about 25-30 years — the time from birth to average age at successful reproduction. One generation for a sugar maple tree may be as much as a century or two.

Larger and longer-lived trees might have generation times that come closer to 1,000 of our years. We sometimes humorously express time in dog years, with one year of ours about equal to seven dog years. That would mean we live on average almost 500 dog years. Which makes it easy to understand dogs since we certainly have the advantage of seeing many of their generations in our own life time.

That life-span difference also makes it clear why we understand trees so poorly. Any given human is likely to live only one fourth of a tree year. We would have to keep very careful records over many generations to begin to understand trees as well as we understand dogs.

All of the above is preface to the annual claim that our sugar maples make to being in charge. About this time each spring, every piece of mowed lawn and driveway edge within sight of a mature maple is the nursery for what must total millions of newly sprouted sugar maple seedlings. All of the seeds that fell last fall are coming to life. If we relaxed our control of those lawns and edges for even one tree year (at least 10 of ours) we would be completely surrounded by the best and fastest growing of the millions of seedlings. And northern Michigan would again come to resemble the forest it was only a few tree years ago.

Aldo Leopold once stated in an essay called "Odyssey," about the movement of mineral atoms from one organism to another, "Time, to an atom locked in a rock, does not pass." We could paraphrase, "Time, to an atom operating in a tree, passes very slowly." The tree lives, thrives and grows on a time scale that is too slow for us to easily grasp.

Only a couple of tree generations ago the sugar maples were clearly in charge of what was happening to the environment here in northern Michigan. And they had been in charge for thousands of years. We think we have been in charge for only a single tree generation or so and might legitimately question whether we are doing as good a job of caring for the environment as the sugar maples did. They were operating with the accumulated wisdom (genetic capacity) of many tree generations, and hundreds of human generations. We should hope to do as well as they did. Only a few tree generations from now we should know how it comes out. My guess is that the maples will still be here. Each spring they let us know in small ways what they are capable of. They may do things almost too slowly for us to notice, but they remain a powerful force in our world.

NORWOOD CONFLICT?

Editor:

For you readers who are following the dreadful doings in Norwood Township, you may want to know that the long anticipated special use permit hearing on supervisor (Wayne) Wynkoop's proposed quarry is rescheduled for 6:30 p.m. May 2 at Charlevoix High School. Previously scheduled hearings on March 28 and again on April 12 both had to be canceled. Why? According to the Zoning Enabling Act Section 103, announcements for public hearings related to the issuance of a special use permit shall include the address and parcel numbers of the subject property. In the case of aborted hearing in March and again in April, the township planning commission bungled this requirement, forcing cancellations.

When the township planning commission recommended a 200 percent pay increase for themselves in February from $30 to $90 taxpayer dollars a meeting, they justified it by declaring themselves the best-educated planning commission in Michigan. You'd think they could at least get a meeting announcement right. Maybe in May, but don't hold your breath.

In the meantime, supervisor Wynkoop and his cronies who approved the huge raises for the planning commissioners while the Wynkoop matter was pending before them complain that those who pointed out their legal errors were just "nit-picking."

You might have noticed the Wynkoop's strategy in the Courier stories on his limestone mine proposal of April 4 and again on April 18. He is now playing the victim. In the news stories he tells us he just wants to "move forward." Presumably this means to open his limestone mine in a quiet, rural neighborhood. Since complaints about air, water and noise pollution have been raised by 150 or so of his neighbors, Wynkoop has accused them of making up problems, needlessly costing him money, and infringing upon his rights to develop his property.

Come on supervisor Wynkoop, you are not the victim here. Your neighbors, after all, bought and invested in their property with the understanding that agricultural and rural residential zoning meant that they could continue to live in a clean, quiet and peaceful environment. Now you want to put an industrial operation in their midst. A proverb comes to mind, "He who slaps his own face should not cry out."

MINING ACCUSATIONS UNFOUNDED

Editor:

Although I was involved as a professional on the (Wayne) Wynkoop (Norwood Township mining) project, I am writing this letter as a citizen of Charlevoix.

In a recent letter to the editor, sent by the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety, I found some humor in the content presented by the group. In an attempt to better understand the facts, I spent a short amount of time in pursuit of confirming the statements.

"The huge limestone quarry which is being established on the margin of the historic village of Norwood" was found to be only 25 acres and over a mile from the village.

"The developer Wayne Wynkoop is also the supervisor of Norwood Township and during the past year he has both nominated and voted for appointments to township boards and commissions." It was found in the meeting minutes that the elected officials of the township board actually nominated, and all voted on the candidates.

"It also seems to us that the Wynkoops have run rough-shod over our township ordinance. Our ordinance does not permit limestone mining or quarrying in an agricultural zone. Our ordinances do however require a permit to build private roads; to burn; to remove topsoil from the township; to remove buildings — all of which the Wynkoops seem to have done without attention to our ordinances." I scoured the ordinance and found a road ordinance, but no sign of a driveway ordinance, which the Charlevoix County Road Commission has permitted. Burning is handled by the burn hotline, and there have been no complaints of burning without permit. Topsoil is sparse, and has not left the site, let alone the township. And lastly, a quick stop at the Charlevoix County Building Department produced all demolition and construction permits for the buildings taken from or constructed on the site.

"The supervisor was advised by the zoning administrator by letter that he was in violation of a stay of operation, yet he continued his mining operation." The date of receipt of the zoning administrator letter was July 17, 2006 and only suspected there may be a stay in effect. The Zoning Board of Appeals found the use to be legally non-conforming on July 18, 2006, and site observation showed no activity between these two dates.

"This assault on clean air, water and plant and animal resources has been documented by Grobbel/Environmental as well as the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council." The review of documentation produced by Grobbel/Environmental was particularly amusing in that the firm has not been on the site, nor produced any indication of true failure to comply with environmental law and ordinances. Numerous portions of the report were found to be inaccurate, and a search to locate a licensing board responsible for monitoring the firm's actions was non-existent. The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality has been on site numerous times and found no violations.

Upon further study of public documents, I found it interesting that the secretary of the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety, Marion Shea-Light, motioned for one and voted favorably for two gravel pits in the township, as a member of the Norwood Township Planning Commission within the past five years. It seems this type of activity must be allowed within the township.

To set the record straight, I found no one in township, county, state or federal employment who could identify a single violation on the Wynkoops' property or project. On the contrary, I find the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety publishing newsletters and letters to the editor with accusations of wrongdoing. It's time to look at the facts, and question the words of a few localized and loud individuals trying to strip a property owner of his rights. Rights that are allowed by special use within the township ordinance. If natural resources were able to be extracted wherever people wanted, we'd have gold, oil and gravel extraction all isolated in the deserts of Nevada. But instead, our society depends on natural resources where they are found, not where people wish they existed.

NARROWS ARTICLE RESPONSE

Editor:

I thank the Charlevoix Courier and staff writer Benjamin Gohs for the fine article on the current safety and environmental issues in the Ironton Narrows on Lake Charlevoix. By and large, the information presented was correct, however, as often happens, there are a few key corrections that need to be made.

It is true, the four no-wake buoys having been on location in the Narrows since 1991 are worn out and need to be replaced. The safety and environmental issues discussed in the article are very real.

As far as the necessary corrections are concerned, I'll present them in the order they appeared in the article.

It is not accurate to say "no one is willing to pay for the buoys replacement." The fact is, in response to a Lake Charlevoix Association (LCA) letter mailed last year asking for contributions, several private citizens did send in a donation. They should be recognized for their willingness to participate.

It may be a small item but, when the article reported that my neighbors thought a government unit should pay for the buoys, the article went on to say "I found out from 'our' attorney that is not the case." Our attorney sounds like it was an attorney hired by the Lake Charlevoix Association. Not true. I hired the attorney on my own. The Lake Charlevoix Association was not involved.

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney, John Jarema, expressed concerns about the county's legal responsibility. Commissioner Chris Christensen also voiced apprehension regarding legal implications if the county were to contribute to the no-wake buoys. The understanding I have on this issue, based on information provided by Clifford Bloom, an attorney in Grand Rapids, specializing in Michigan lakes law, is that governmental units and agencies are shielded from liability litigation as a result of something called "Governmental Immunity." Further, Bloom advises that, whether it is a private citizen or a government unit, by donating the funds to the Lake Charlevoix Association, the association assumes legal responsibility for the buoys. The Lake Charlevoix Association is willing to arrange for appropriate liability insurance with the help of financial aid from the public or a government unit.

Jarema also suggested that the Lake Charlevoix Association determine exactly what Eveline Township is willing to pay before coming back to the Charlevoix County Board with a proposal. My recollection on this topic is that the commissioners suggested that a coordinated effort between Eveline Township and Charlevoix County would be the intelligent way to proceed. Hence, the Charlevoix County Board suggested District 5 Commissioner, Robert Drebenstedt, attend the next Eveline Township board meeting in an effort to come up with a plan where both government units can wisely participate in this much needed no-wake buoy program. The Lake Charlevoix Association is going to make arrangements for this to take place.

Commissioner Chris Christensen suggested the Lake Charlevoix Association should exhaust all fund-raising possibilities before coming to the county for financial aid. The following is not meant to be a correction or disapproval of Christensen's remark. I understand where he's coming from. However, at issue here is the following question. Since it is now clearly understood that "informational" buoys are not the responsibility of any person, business or government unit, from a principled standpoint, what should the order be for potential contributors? I'm not sure that Charlevoix County should be first in line but, I know it shouldn't be last either.

Lake Charlevoix is a precious jewel within our county. In all my travels, and I'm sure hundreds of people will agree with me, I have never seen a lake or meeting of land and water that even begins to compare with our beautiful lake. This said, I'm of the opinion that Charlevoix County should be very interested in preserving the safety and environment on this significant county asset.

One other point. The Ironton Ferry that travels in the Narrows no-wake zone, is owned and operated by Charlevoix County. Seems to me the county, for this reason alone, should be involved in making sure boaters and the ferry alike are protected by no-wake buoys.

It is most important that readers of Mr. Gohs' article understand there was a miscommunication between him and me. The Lake Charlevoix Association is not in a position to pay for the ongoing yearly costs of the maintenance of the buoys or liability insurance. The Lake Charlevoix Association is willing to manage the yearly maintenance of the buoys and to arrange for liability insurance. The Lake Charlevoix Association does not have money for these activities and will require donations to fund them.

In addition to contacting Eveline Township and Charlevoix County for help, we are contacting property owners on the Ironton Narrows, asking them for their financial assistance. Obviously, hundreds of boaters, not owning property on the Ironton Narrows, cruise this constricted body of water on a yearly basis and are safer as a result of the buoys.

Anyone can make a contribution by sending a check to The Lake Charlevoix Association, P.O. Box 294 Charlevoix, MI 49720. Mark your check: Buoy Fund.

I had hoped the article would include my phone number and e-mail address in the event anyone wanted to make a comment or ask a question. My phone number is (231) 675-5207. My e-mail address is pwitting@charter.net.

10 things you never knew about Rob Richardson

Bringing you closer to your neighbors ...

1. WHY CHOOSE THIS LINE OF WORK?

I did a head gasket on a 3-and-a-half horse Tecumseh for our go-cart when I was 7 and my mom knew then that I was going to be a mechanic. I just did it. I picked up the wrenches and took it apart.

2. WHO HAS BEEN YOUR BIGGEST INFLUENCE?

Probably my uncle Terry Kelley. He's the one who really got me into cars. He always had the coolest car, a '68 GTO.

3. WHAT REALLY MAKES YOU MAD?

People who tailgate.

4. WHERE DO YOU SEE YOURSELF IN FIVE YEARS, IN OTHER WORDS, WHAT ARE YOUR ASPIRATIONS?

To own my own shop.

5. WHAT DO YOU DO FOR FUN?

Fish, hunt, mushroom hunt — just about any outdoor activity.

6. WHAT IS YOUR BIGGEST VICE?

Smoking cigarettes, it's absolutely awful.

7. IF YOU HAD A MAGIC WAND AND COULD CHANGE ONE THING ABOUT YOURSELF OR YOUR WORLD, WHAT WOULD IT BE?

It would be the world — no more war.

8. WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE FOOD?

New York strip steak.

9. IF YOU COULD MEET ANYONE FOR AN HOUR LUNCH, WHO WOULD IT BE?

Stevie Ray Vaughan

10. WHAT'S SOMETHING FEW PEOPLE KNOW ABOUT YOU?

That my first name is Gregg. I go by my middle name.

Big Read comes to Charlevoix library

As part of the Big Read project sponsored by the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians Charlevoix Public Library will host a community discussion of "To Kill a Mockingbird" at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 1.

At the library event, a reader's theater of excerpts from the novel will be performed by ninth-grade students from Charlevoix High School and used as a springboard for participants to explore the issues associated with the important themes of the book — tolerance (race, class, gender, religion, and region), as well as single parenting, development of conscience and justice.

"We'll ask questions and provide the opportunity for a dialogue about different interpretations of the excerpts presented by the students," said library assistant, Judith Ivan.

The general public of all ages and points of view are encouraged to attend.

As part of the Big Read, the library will also host a viewing of the movie, "To Kill a Mockingbird," at 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 5.

For more information, call the library (231) 547-2651.

Bo Boss

Lisa Carlson

A Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education candidate forum is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 3 at Charlevoix Public Library located at 220 West Clinton St.

Lisa Carlson and Bo Boss will engage in a verbal joust in hopes of swaying voters to elect them on May 8 to the single school board seat to be vacated by current school board president, Bill Trubilowicz, who decided not to run for another term.

Some of the issues likely to be discussed include budget issues, block scheduling, the future of the administration building and what the candidates would like to see in a superintendent.

For more information, call (231) 547-2651.

Historical society presents May 1 Earl Young program

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present a program entitled "The Life and Works of Earl Young" at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 1 at the Depot.

David L. Miles, co-director of the Harsha House Museum, will narrate the program.

More than any one person building in stone, Earl Young transformed the landscape and skyline of Charlevoix as it is today. His creations are known around the world.

The program will focus on Young's early years, his creative philosophy formed by his boyhood exposure to northern Michigan's woods and beaches, an illustrated chronology of his complete existing works in Charlevoix, the trials and tribulations that beset the Weathervane Inn, and the legacy left by his amazing works.

Light refreshments will be served. There is no admission charge.

WEDDING
Lent — Hankins

Riki Marie Lent and Spencer Mitchell Hankins of Charlevoix were married March 30 at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. The candlelight nuptials were performed by pastor Ryp Hankins, father of the groom. A reception followed the ceremony at the church.

Destarte Loveless was the maid of honor and Dannik Moes was the best man. The bride's sister, Maya Lent, served as flower girl, and Blake Klooster was the ring bearer.

The wedding guests were seated by Tim Riley and John Anthony. Jackie Boog and Scott Hankins provided music during the ceremony, and "In Service" provided music at the reception.

Parents of the couple are Rick and Kristyn Lent of Boyne City and Cathy Russell of Ellsworth, and pastor Ry and Vicki Hankins of Charlevoix.

REJECT DUAL ADMINISTRATIVE ROLE

Editor:

The current situation the Charlevoix school system faces should remind us the importance of quality leadership. The challenges our district faces call for courageous and assertive leadership. One with resilience and vision focused on helping our children succeed despite the threatened limited financial assistance from the state. Administrators make the tough choices. We depend on our administrators to make informed decisions on issues facing our school system and we ultimately hold them responsible for those decisions.

Now more than ever we need to continue the kind of strong leadership we have in superintendent Jim Cooper and a full-time principal at the high school. To suggest a 75/25 percent split of the attention faced on either job is ridiculous in a school system this size. How could a part-time superintendent provide the leadership needed to develop and maintain the best possible educational programs and services currently provided to our students?

If asked, could you adequately describe how administrators spend his/her days? Before commenting on such a drastic step for Charlevoix, I felt as a responsible school board candidate, I needed to learn as much as I could about what our administrators do before speaking out. While I cannot begin to cover all of the important responsibilities our superintendent and school principals have, I would like to try and share what I have learned.

The superintendent is accountable for all activities of the school system. He/she is directly or indirectly responsible for all employees of the district. The superintendent guides the process of fiscal planning, budgetary development and interpretation while keeping the public informed of the activities and needs of the district. He/she also represents the school district in legislative affairs. The superintendent is responsible for contract negotiations, general efficiency of the school system, professional development of school staff and the educational welfare and growth of the students.

One of the most critical factors for a successful school system is the relationship between the superintendent and its school board. A competent superintendent diligently guides, supports and encourages staff, students and parents. On a daily basis a superintendent is most likely involved in some type of conflict resolution. The term of employment for the superintendent is 12 months a year.

A school principal sets the tone for the atmosphere of the entire school. The principal helps staff understand and enforce policies. He/she is responsible for managing the high school budget, conducting staff meetings, assessing curriculum and conducting formal evaluations of teachers throughout the year. The staff, students and parents expect the principal to physically be in the building on a full-time basis to provide a safe learning environment. A high school principal unable to devote 100 percent of his/her time to high school responsibilities could potentially impact the quality of learning because teachers and other high school personnel would have to assume some of those duties.

Mr. Boss stated in the Feb. 21 interview with Courier staff writer Benjamin Gohs that Suttons Bay currently follows a dual role of superintendent and principal system when in fact they do not and never have. Suttons Bay currently has a full-time superintendent, a full-time high school principal and a full-time high school assistant principal/athletic director as Charlevoix has done in the past. At one time in Suttons Bay the superintendent did manage two school districts, Glen Lake and Suttons Bay, which is no longer the practice. Their enrollment numbers are smaller than Charlevoix so therefore, we are comparing apples to oranges anyway.

After careful thought and consideration of all that I have learned about the role of school administrators, I vehemently disagree with the suggestion of a dual role concept of a principal and superintendent for the Charlevoix Public school system.

Instead of focusing all of our time looking for ways to cut our budget, we need to devote more time investigating ways to bring in and/or keep revenue in our district. We need to be proactive. We need to determine why students are leaving our district for reasons other than family relocation and enrolling in neighboring districts taking funding dollars with them. We need to promote all we have to offer and encourage students to remain in our district while enticing those considering enrolling in our district to do so.

I urge you to please take the time to attend the "Meet the Candidates" forum at 7 p.m. on May 3 at the Charlevoix Public Library where I will be happy to share with you the reasons why I am the best candidate for Charlevoix school board. Let's remember that every decision made should be about the children and with that in mind, please remember to vote on May 8.

Building department supervisor faces stage four cancer

Ken Doty:
Living with Cancer

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Prostate cancer is typically known as a disease old men get after a lifetime of eating red meat and smoking cigarettes.

Then Ken Doty, a Boyne Falls resident and Charlevoix County Building Inspection Department supervisor, a relatively healthy, physically active, nonsmoking 48-year-old is diagnosed with stage-four prostate cancer and the realization sinks in that all the statistics in the world don't mean a thing if you are that one in a million.

"It started from not being able to go to the bathroom. I was at church camp this summer (2006) and noticed it after someone said, 'You were up six times last night trying to go to the bathroom,' and they recommended I go in to get checked out right away," Doty said. "I found out I had cancer on Oct. 25 (2006) and that I was stage-four — I had passed a physical in January 2006, but this was a very aggressive form of cancer."

Even though prostate is one of the most common cancers American men can get, researchers do not know what causes it.

"Initially, when I was diagnosed, I was seared to death. The biggest thing is not known, just not knowing," Doty said. "One thing I have going for me is I have faith. I was born and raised in the same church both my grandparents and my mom and stepfather were all members."

He added, "No matter what happens, I have a good foundation in faith to fall back on. I know the gifts and promises we've been given as Christians. A lot of things are out of my hands and I just have to trust the heavenly father knows what's best."

WHAT IS A PROSTATE?

Located below the bladder and in front of the rectum, the prostate is a man's sex gland normally smaller than a golf ball which secrets a thick liquid which helps constitute semen.

WHAT ARE THE CAUSES OF THE DISEASE?

While having a family history of the disease seems to seriously increase your chance of developing prostate cancer, studies vary in the link between poor diet, vasectomy and exposure to some chemicals to increased instances of prostate cancer.

Some studies suggest the connection between so-called risk factors and prostate cancer are merely a coincidental correlation.

WHAT ARE THE SYMPTOMS?

According to the Prostate Cancer Foundation, symptoms of the disease can include:

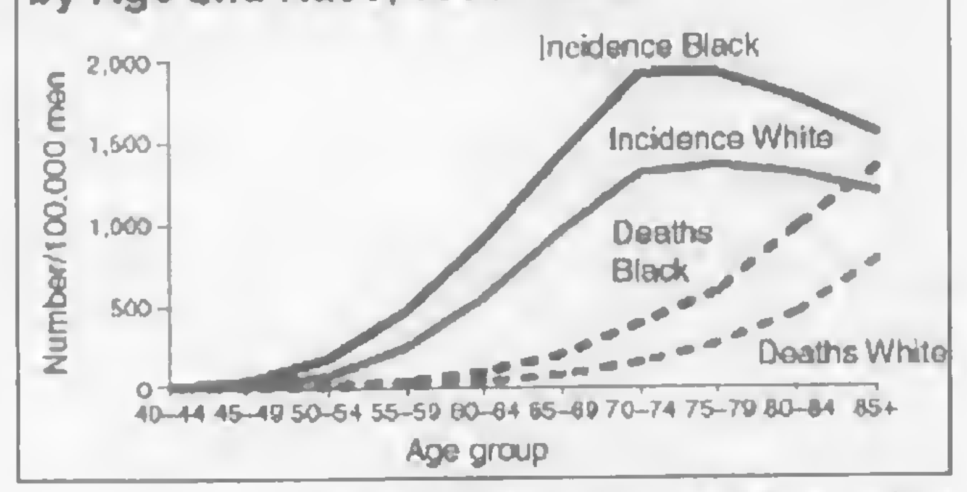
- A urine stream that is weak or pauses
- Problems starting or stopping urination
- Bloody or painful urination or ejaculation.
- Problems or inability to attain an erection
- Frequent urination
- Frequent pain or stiffness in the lower back, hips, or upper thighs.

WHAT ARE THE STATISTICS?

While Novartis Oncology, a multi-national medical research and development company, warns against using statistics to determine what may happen to you, below are some numbers which tend to appear in large groups:

- Your chance of being afflicted with prostate cancer increases as you age.
- In fact, nearly all men who live to be 100 years old will have some cancer in the prostate gland. For most of them the cancer does not cause any problems
- Those under the age of 50 generally do not develop prostate cancer.

Prostate Cancer (Invasive): Average Annual U.S. Incidence and Death Rates, by Age and Race, 1991–1995



Graphic courtesy of National Cancer Institute

- Nearly 21 percent of those diagnosed with the disease will die from it.
- Over 200,000 men contracted prostate cancer in 2006 (Source: National Cancer Institute).
- Black men are more likely than white men to develop the disease.

Part two in the series will address Doty's treatments and how battling his disease has changed his life.

This is the first in a four-part series entitled "Ken Doty: Living with cancer" that will highlight the realities of prostate cancer.

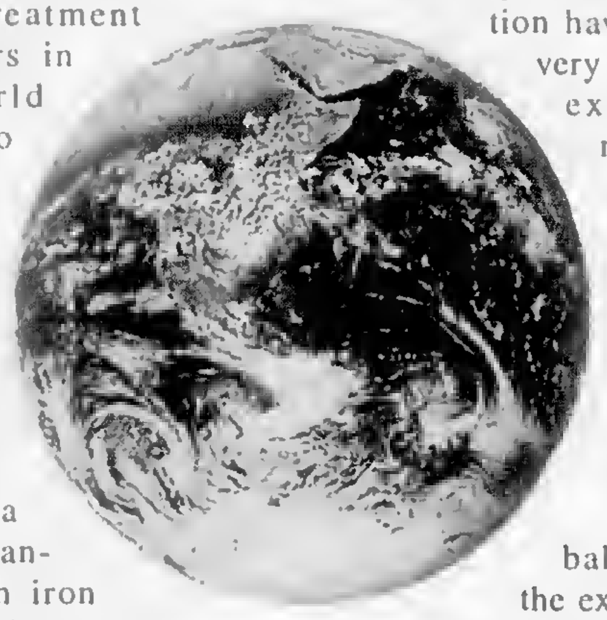
Can northern Michigan survive gloablization?

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER



Globalization has been blamed for everything from Michigan's economy to the mistreatment of workers in third-world nations to slave labor in China, but what is it?

An economist, a college president, a general manager of an iron manufacturing plant and a labor expert recently set out to define globalization and discuss its affect on northern Michigan's economy during a public forum on globalization April 19 at Charlevoix Public Library.

"Should we use policies to slow it (globalization) down? The most obvious policy is to use the tariffs, the same kind of thing they did back in the 1930s," said Alan Deardorff, Ph.D. and professor of economics and public policy at the University of Michigan. "Economists spend our lives, some of us, arguing why this is not a good idea, why it's harmful to overall standards of living."

He added, "Although it does protect particular individuals, others lose. A more compelling argument might be countries that have actually tried to prevent globalization haven't done very well. One example is north Korea, another is Cuba, neither has done particularly well."

Since globalization is the expansion of international trade, increase in migration of peoples from one country to another in search of work and the transfer of businesses from one part of the globe to another, there is both good and bad for Michigan's economy.

"The world benefits from allowing greater migration," Deardorff said. "I wouldn't want to claim that should be the bottom line, you do have to live with the people who migrate...but in a country where we are all immigrants, it seems a little bit hypocritical to be too much against it."

Deardorff said the best thing America can do is Experts say battle global threat with education

help developing countries become wealthier.

"As they grow, they will compete more with us in various sectors. Their incomes are going to go up and their wages are going to go up," he said. "They're going to be better off and we're going to be better off as a result."

Deardorff said the thing Michigan can do is help those harmed by globalization.

"A policy economists have been arguing for years is wage insurance," he said.

If you are displaced by trade or other things and if you take a job at a lower wage, Deardorff said, you would get a fraction of money in insurance for a couple years to help offset your loss and make it easier for you to accept the lower paying job.

"What should Michigan do? Please, don't try to interfere with globalization and especially doing it at the level of a state rather than a country is just nuts," he said. "You can only make Michigan worse if you try to resist against globalization. You will put your own company and workers at a disadvantage if you try to do that."

Alan Deardorff

He added, "What we do need to do is remove any artificial barriers making it harder for our own workers and firms to adjust — anything that locks people into particular jobs and locations. Health care: Many people are locked into their job because of health care, and that makes it very hard to adjust to globalization, even if their employer is going down the tubes."

Globalization may not be the snarling beast as it is often portrayed.

"Globalization is in fact only one, probably not that important of one, of the many causes of why people find themselves suffering hardships in the economy," Deardorff said. "Technology, I believe, displaces far more workers than globalization."

He added that sometimes companies simply make poor financial choices.

According to Cameron Brunet-Koch, Ph.D., president of North Central Michigan College in Petoskey, a comprehensive education is the most important thing northern Michiganders can do to compete in a global economy.

Brunet-Koch laid out some statistics:

- There has been an increase in the number of students receiving tuition assistance.
- Charlevoix County ranks low nationwide in the number of 25 year olds with bachelor's degrees.
- Michigan is ranked 37 in 50 states of those with an associate's degree or higher.

"'No big deal,' you might be thinking. Michigan's always had plenty of very good factory jobs that required only a high school diploma. News flash: Those jobs are gone and they are not coming back," she said. "Right now, today, the new factories that have been built in Monroe, Michigan and Jackson, Michigan require an associate's degree."

Brunet-Koch said, unfortunately, the trend of Michiganders avoiding higher education is ongoing.

"If you were to take 10 ninth graders and ask them who is planning on attending college, nine would indicate that they want to go. Four actually end up going to college, and of the four, only 1.8 actually graduate with a degree," she said. "We have got to instill in our young people and non-degreed adults that a college education is necessary for survival."

When asked what people could do tomorrow to help northern Michigan survive in the global economy, the panel overwhelmingly said education.

There needs to be an increase in mathematics, science and foreign language skills in upcoming students as well as adults.

The 2007 Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office Marine Division report, compiled by Sheriff George T. Lasater, details an apparent increase in officer activity.

The sheriff's marine division enforces laws, helps accident victims, polices regattas and special events, addresses citizen complaints, teaches boater's safety and gives presentations, provides public access checks to local waterways, patrols local beaches and provides livery inspections of local boat rental businesses.

"In addition to our regular patrol responsibilities, lake associations provide funding for: Thumb Lake — 20 hours, Walloon Lake — 20 hours. This covers labor cost and fuel," Lasater stated in his report. "From 2001 to 2006, we spent $31,861.48 on maintenance cost(s) for our vessels."

The marine division received $35,400 in an equipment grant from the State of Michigan.

"(The) grant is based on two main factors: Need, what is the age and condition of existing equipment (and) level of activity, how much vessel traffic, area to cover, complaints and accidents," he further stated.

"Charlevoix County received one of the highest equipment grants in the state for 2007 at $35,400."

Type and number of boats in 2006:

- Personal water craft — 724
- Sailboats — 660
- Oar/paddle boats — 857
- Power boats, 27-feet and larger — 587
- Power boats, 27-feet and smaller — 2,175

Marine Division water craft summary:

- 20-foot 1985 Cobalt
- 18-foot 1988 Boston Whaler
- 20-foot 1993 Mako
- 20-foot 1996 Four Winns used on Walloon Lake only due to defects
- 21-foot 1996 Zodiac Hurricane
- 24-foot 2006 Zodiac — Beaver Island only

Nearly 300 new boat slips have been proposed for Lake Charlevoix.

Charlevoix County has nearly 40 square miles of inland lakes and 38 named lakes and rivers.

File photo

This 24-foot 2006 Zodiac is part of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's marine patrol fleet. While it is dedicated solely to Beaver Island, the department has several other vessels allocated to other county bodies of water.

The 2007 Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office Marine Division report statistics from the past few years:

Verbal warnings: 485 in 2003, 1,086 in 2004, 1,411 in 2005 and 1,998 in 2006.

Citations issued: 31 in 2003, 76 in 2004, 208 in 2005 and 311 in 2006.

Complaints received: 134 in 2003, 150 in 2004, 211 in 2005 and 306 in 2006.

Citizen contacts: 3,222 in 2003, 4,790 in 2004, 7,874 in 2005, 11,235 in 2006.

Livery boats inspected: 132 in 2003, 138 in 2004, 132 in 2005, 142 in 2006.

Students trained: 319 in 2003, 340 in 2004, 279 in 2005, 284 in 2006.

Treats, games and basket auction featured at carnival

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Family fun with games, prizes and treats of all sizes at the annual Spring Carnival presented by the PTO of Charlevoix.

From 6 to 8 p.m. on Friday, April 27 in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium, people of all ages can enjoy snowcones, pizza and popcorn while playing more than a dozen sports-themed carnival games and bidding on more than 35 themed baskets full of goodies during the silent auction. The basket preview and refreshments will take place at 5:30 p.m., prior to the opening of the carnival.

"We're ready. It's going to be good," said chairperson of the basket auction and PTO secretary, Stacey Stewart. "This is the third year of the basket auction and the first two years combined raised over $6,000 in just the baskets."

She added, "It definitely exceeded our expectations and that basket money goes to supplement things the PTO normally can't afford — we paid for the author visit last year. The money goes directly back to the school to be used for something all the kids in the school can benefit from."

This year's profits will go to purchase a computer projector, science materials and reading books rated by level.

"The school couldn't afford to get these things on their own," Stewart said. "It doesn't seem like a big deal, but when they don't have the money in their budget, the teachers have to pay for items out of their own pockets or parents have to donate them."

She added, "The kids are the future of the community, and this auction for the baskets is the only fund-raiser the PTO has. So it's pretty important."

The carnival, which according to Charlevoix Elementary School principal, Dick Swenor, has been going on for more than 20 years, will offer favorites like face painting, a cakewalk, a bounce house and prizes to be won at individual booths.

"I want to express thanks to all the businesses that are so supportive in things like this," Swenor said. "We just have an awesome community."

Ticket prices are 20 for $5; 40 for $10; 60 for $15.

"I would say this is for all age kids, from toddlers up," Stewart said. "I think it's just a fun night where parents can take the kids to a fun family event."

She added, "And, it's a good way to support the school."

Nearly 100 parents and staff volunteer their time to work the carnival which is supported by more than 80 local businesses.

"Themes of the baskets this year are summer fun, Rayder, BBQ, baby, Mexican night, family game night and sports," Stewart said. "A lot of local businesses donated gift certificates to restaurants and businesses."

Minimum bids are $5 with most winning bids averaging somewhere between $20 and $150.

Children's House Creation Celebration is April 27

The Charlevoix Children's House will host a Creation Celebration art show and open house enrollment event from 6 to 7:30 p.m. on Friday, April 27 at the school, located off Mercer Boulevard.

The program is open to children ages 2-and-a-half to 6.

According to Children's House director, Barbara Godwin-Chulick, a stable base for all future learning is built through the school's primary program.

"Knowledge is coveted at this age. Through exploration and experimentation with the self-correcting Montessori materials the child finds answers," she said.

Guided by a professionally trained Montessori guide, each child experiences the satisfaction of skill mastery in many arenas. The multi age primary classroom provides the opportunity for the development and refinement of social and behavioral skills.

Children in their third primary year enroll in extended session. Extended session children gather and employ information that is critical for future learning.

Students are exposed to reading, science and math exercises as well as attending educational field trips, and are introduced to French and Spanish.

For more information, call the school at (231) 547-5599.

Greensky Hill to host craft sale, flea market

Historic Native American Indian Greensky Hill United Methodist Church will host its 3rd Annual Inside Craft Sale and Outside Flea Market from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, May 12 on the church grounds.

The church is located off Old U.S. 31 North off Boyne City Road. There will be lots of unique native crafts such as flutes, beadwork and walking sticks. There will also be traditional crafters participating.

On our hall porch will be several flea marketers selling their wares.

Food concessions will be available.

For more information, call (231) 582-9262.

upnorthauction.com
Bidding it's as easy as ...
1. Determine the maximum amount you are willing to pay for the item you are bidding on. Record the amount on the Official Bid form as your Maximum Secret Bid. Be sure to enter the item number and description of the item you are bidding on as well. Your Maximum Secret bid may not necessarily be the price you pay if you are the successful bidder (you may pay less, never more). However, choose a maximum carefully as you won't be able to reduce it later and you'll be legally bound to pay that price if it is the winning bid.
2. If you are bidding on-line, fill out your name in full, address, age, email address and your home and work phone numbers in the appropriate fields. After you have become a registered bidder, follow the on-line instructions. If bidding by telephone, have the aforementioned information on hand. YOU MUST INCLUDE ALL INFORMATION. FORMS WITH MISSING INFORMATION ARE NOT VALID AND WILL BE REJECTED WITHOUT NOTICE.
3. Submit your bid anytime between 9:00 am Saturday, April 21 and 9:00 pm Monday, April 30, 2007. Under no circumstances will bids be received after 9:00 pm on the auction's final day.
BY PHONE:
Call the Auction Central Bid Line as listed in the bottom left hand corner of this page.

GOOD LUCK!
BIDDING ON THE INTERNET IS AS EASY AS ...
① Select category of item you are interested in ② Select the item you want to bid on
③ Click on "Bid On This Item"
④ If you are a First Time Bidder, click on "Create An Account"
⑤ Follow On-Screen Instructions
⑥ Click "Submit"
⑦ Now Bid on Your Chosen Item or Items
⑧ You now have a user name and password, and won't have to put in your information again. You can just get right to bidding!
WHY A MAXIMUM SECRET BID?
Because Auction Mania is not a live auction, you cannot react instantly to someone bidding against you on the same items. For this reason we are using a system called PROXY BIDDING. Under Proxy Bidding, you tell our Auction Trust Committee the most you are willing to pay for an item. This is your maximum Secret Bid and is known only by you and the Auction Trust Committee. The Committee then PLACES A BID ON YOUR BEHALF at the LOWEST POSSIBLE to make you the high bidder for the item. If you are outbid, the Auction Trust will up your bid by set dollar increments until you are again the higher bidder or until your maximum Secret Bid is reached. YOUR BID WILL NOT EXCEED YOUR MAXIMUM SECRET BID UNLESS YOU SUBMIT ANOTHER FORM WITH A HIGHER MAXIMUM. Should you choose to pursue the purchase of the item by using a Maximum Secret Bid, you save yourself the trouble of having to submit another form when somebody outbids you. As a result, you reduce the chances of being outbid at the last minute before the auction ends.
EXAMPLES OF PROXY BIDDING
① Bidding for an item starts at, for example, $500
② Bidder "A" determines that he is willing to pay $750 for that item and therefore submits a MAXIMUM SECRET BID of $750 for the item.
③ The AUCTION TRUST COMMITTEE enters a bid of $500 (the opening bid) on behalf of bidder "A", which is the minimum needed to make bidder "A" the highest bidder.
④ You determine that you are willing to pay $1,000 for the seme item, therefore you submit a MAXIMUM SECRET BID of $1,000 for that item.
⑤ The AUCTION TRUST COMMITTEE enters a bid for $760 on your behalf, which is the minimum amount needed to make you the highest bidder.
⑥ The auction ends.
⑦ You ere the winner. You puchase the item for $760, plus applicable taxes.

The Beatles: Back stage and Behind the Scenes

Eighty-four photographs, all featuring music legends "The Beatles," will be on exhibition at Crooked Tree Arts Center April 27 through July 8.

The photos were shot in the early 1960s by LIFE photographer William Eppridge.

The exhibit, "Beatles: Backstage and Behind the Scenes" opens with a reception from 6 to 8 p.m. on Friday, April 27 at the downtown Petoskey arts center.

Local Beatles aficionados will share pieces of their private collections during the first week of the exhibition including concert tickets, signed record albums and possibly the jukebox owned by John and Yoko Lennon.

The free Beatles exhibit is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays at Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Several events are planned throughout the two-month exhibit.

At 7 p.m. on Saturday, May 26 everyone is invited to watch Beatlemania unfold on episodes of The Ed Sullivan Show in the Ross Stoakes Theatre.

Viewers are encouraged to come in 1960s Beatles costume. Prizes will be awarded.

The popular Crooked Tree Coffee at Ten series will offer two Beatles related lectures. At 7 p.m. on June 14 and 10 a.m. June 15, professor of music and Beatles aficionado Henry Gwiazda from Moorhead University in Minnesota will speak.

At 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Friday June 22, Eppridge will discuss his experiences photographing The Beatles in the early 1960s.

Rounding out the two-month exhibit is a performance by "Shout," a tribute to the Fab Four at 8 p.m. June 16 on stage at Crooked Tree. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for students. Tickets are on sale now at www.crookedtree.org or by calling (231) 347-4337.

Marina FLASHBACK

In an effort to remind readers of how the East Park and municipal marina property have evolved, the Courier has teamed up with the Charlevoix Historical Society to bring readers a photo history of the property. This will run weekly in a "Then and Now" format with a picture from the past and the current construction schedule.

THEN...

(Above) This shot of the Mason Street dock shows the small passenger vessel "Walter Crysler" (right) which ran between Charlevoix and East Jordan. Schooners were a common sight in Round Lake for decades. They often headed for Charlevoix to seek shelter from foul weather and a common sight along the waterfront were a dozen or more drying their sails after a storm.

NOW...

Background

Phase 1 of the $10 million East Park and marina renovation project includes the seawall replacement, removal of the 17 existing piers, which at the furthest point extend 75-feet into Round Lake, installation of new sheet pile running the length of the park 850-feet, and other miscellaneous work. The targeted completion date for Phase 1 is near the end of April. Installation of the new docks, Phase 2, is underway simultaneously. It includes installation of a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220-feet into Round Lake at the furthest point. Docks which were fabricated this winter are currently being installed. Utilities are expected to be hooked up and operational near the end of June. The total cost for Phases 1 and 2 is $3.8 million.

Progress report week of April 16:

Completion of tieback wall.

Construction staking for the parking lot adjacent to Charlevoix Public Library and start of construction.

Molon continued to drive the seawall sheet pile down to the final elevation.

Capped the main seawall to the foot of Clinton St.

Installed the drain at the foot of Clinton Street.

Upcoming events week of April 23:

Molon will continue to drive the sheet pile down to the final elevation.

Start of bump outs at the point of connection with the docks.

Cap on main seawall installation continues.

Continuing underground storm work including installation of drain between Clinton and Mason streets.

Layout of marina overflow parking lot at Charlevoix Public Library and possible start of construction.

This report was generated by Pat Elliott, City of Charlevoix Street Department superintendent. If you have any questions, please contact Elliott at (231) 547-3276.

Friends of Library seek book donations for sale

In preparation for the huge 8th annual book sale on Saturday, June 23, the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library are accepting gently used books for resale.

Donations can be dropped off Monday through Saturday in the Mason Street lobby of the library at 220 Clinton St. Proceeds go to the children's section of the library.

The Taffy Barrel brings treats to Bridge Street

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Rick and Sandie Root have opened a new business aimed at satisfying customers' cravings for sweet treats.

On April 14, the two, who recently relocated to Charlevoix from Traverse City, opened the doors at The Taffy Barrel located at 211 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix.

Since then they have enjoyed watching children and adults delight in filling old-fashioned baskets with loads of their salt water taffy and other bulk candy. The cost is $4.25 per half pound of bulk candy.

"Customers can pick and choose their favorites," Rick said.

Before opening their new business, the couple spent three years working out the details. While they knew a retail store was the direction they were headed, the town and the product had to be decided.

They traveled to tourist areas and found one common theme.

"No matter where we vacationed, we found 90 to 95 percent of people are eating something," Sandie said. "And every time we came to Charlevoix we fell in love with it. Everything really fell into place for us."

They opted to offer taffy after finding Murdick's has a local lock on fudge and Kilwin's a hold on ice cream and specialty chocolates.

But the taffy decision wasn't that simple. They had to determine what taffy they would carry. Two years of taffy tasting research from providers nationwide found some are too sweet or salty, while other brands are too hard. They pinpointed a Salt Lake City, Utah provider specializing in a secret whipped nougat recipe with a hint of salt that met their standards for top of the line taffy. They now carry 75 flavors of gourmet taffy including sugar free options stocked in wooden barrels.

Aside from the taffy the store also is filled to the gills with specialty gourmet and nostalgic candies and Jelly Belly brand jelly beans and gummy candy.

"It's like an old-fashioned general store," Sandie said.

To give the store, which most recently housed Momentum, an old-time feel they replaced the track lighting system, repaired the original tin ceiling, repainted the interior and decorated the walls with tin art and old-school board games.

"This is a brand new venture for us," Sandie said. "You just have to love candy."

Rick is a former owner of a custom hardwood flooring business and Sandie spent her career in administration and real estate sales in a resort area of Colorado where they lived for 15 years.

The two are also fused glass artists and own and operate Artistic Glass by Design. The taffy store features some of their glass work including candy dishes and decorative items as well as glass games, vases and abstract art.

The new candy store is expected to employ five to six part-time staff members.

The Taffy Barrel is open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Sunday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. Summer hours are from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. Demand will determine whether the Roots keep their business open year-round.

For more information, call The Taffy Barrel at (231) 547-9288.

Ace Hardware creates pediatric assistance fund

For over a year, the staff at Charlevoix Ace Hardware has been working on behalf of pediatric patients at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

At the Ace store, located off M-66, customers, contractors and vendors have been able to get a fresh cup of coffee or cappuccino while making a donation to a special fund set up by owner Mark Greyerbiehl to benefit the hospital.

"We have known patients who have needed a wheelchair or crutches after a visit to the hospital and have not been able to afford them," said Greyerbiehl. "We felt that by pooling customer and contractor donations for coffee we might be able to make a difference for a child in the future."

The coffee machine at the back of the store sports a sign that says "$1 donation — all proceeds to Charlevoix pediatrics." An honor system box beside the machine collects donations from thirsty customers and other visitors to the store. For the management and staff of the store, the response typifies the spirit of the community.

"It's not about our store," said Greyerbiehl. "It's about the way our community responds to a need. There are hundreds of generous folks who want the best for the friends, family and neighbors in need and it shows every time someone purchases a cup of coffee."

One year later, there is enough to purchase several pairs of crutches and wheelchairs to be loaned to pediatric patients who would otherwise be unable to afford them.

According to Charlevoix Area Hospital president, Bill Jackson, "Like many hospitals in Michigan, we are seeing increased numbers of uninsured patients. This means that many do not have the means to pay for needed medical equipment after a hospitalization. We are deeply appreciative of this kind of support for our patients."

Rayder boys, girls track finish first at Boyne tourney

The Charlevoix boys won seven events and the Rayder girls won four Wednesday as each finished first in the Boyne City Track and Field Invitational at Earl Brotherston Field.

The Rayder girls won four events, including three relays, but had enough in their depth tank to edge runner-up East Jordan, 115-107. Cheboygan, 92, was third, followed by Harbor Springs, 77; Boyne City, 71; St. Ignace, 40; and Grand Traverse Academy, 20.

The Charlevoix boys won seven events including two relays en route to 187 points, while Harbor Springs, 104, was second. Cheboygan, 95, was third, followed by St. Ignace, 86; Boyne City, 20; and Grand Traverse Academy, 1.

Charlevoix's only individual win came from Emily Heffling in the 300 hurdles. The Rayders also won the 800, 1600 and 3200 relays. Ellise Smolenyak, Chantel Novotny, Taylor Storm and Alyssa Smith teamed up to win the 800 relay; Smolenyak, Katie Withrow, Novotny and Lindi Edger combined to win the 1600 relay; and Edger, Emily Westenhroek, Brecklind Golovich-Keie and Alina Dhaseleer comprised the Rayders' winning 3200 relay.

Also for the Rayders, senior Ashley Pett broke Caitlin Cole's school record with a 110-foot, 6-inch throw in the discus. Pett placed second in the event.

"Charlevoix has shown that they are the team to beat in our conference," East Jordan coach Dennis Snarey said. "We were very impressed with their performance.

Senior Darron Munson had a big day in leading the Charlevoix boys to their 83-point victory. Munson won the 400 in 51.94 seconds, a extremely good early season time under the chilly weather conditions, he ran the anchor leg on Charlevoix's winning 3200 relay team, and he took the 200, winning by almost an entire second.

Scott Plude, Jacob Wimmer and Billy Roloff joined Munson in the 3200 relay, and the Rayders' Travis Johnstone, Andy Ennis, Dan Swenor and Ace Edick teamed up to win the 400 relay.

Charlevoix's other wins came from Alex Buday, 3200; Mitch Crandall, high jump; and Johnstone, long jump.

Harbor Springs' Trey Graham was a double winner as he took the 800 and the 1600, while Boyne City's Taylor Voice captured the pole vault.

Rayder baseball win Charlevoix Invitational

Charlevoix baseball's first games of the season were marked by disappointing losses to conference rival East Jordan and to Roscommon.

"It is tough to be two games behind East Jordan at this point but it's a long season and there are a lot of games left to play. We need to just worry about ourselves and control what we can control and things will work out well for us. I am still very impressed with not only the talent on our team but the spirit of this team. They are very competitive and will do what it takes to win. I think we will win a lot of games before this year is through," Charlevoix head coach, Allen Telgenhof, said.

But the openers aren't necessarily a season tell all.

The disheartening loss was followed by a big Charlevoix Invitational tournament win Saturday, April 21.

The Rayders beat Boyne Falls 15-0 in a four inning mercy rule game, then beat Gaylord, 8-7 for the championship. Gaylord had beaten Cheboygan, 4-3 in the first round. Cheboygan beat Boyne Falls 16-1 in the consolation game.

In the tournament opener against Boyne Falls pitchers Danny Waldron and Cliff Jones combined on a four-inning no-hitter. Jon Putman had two doubles, three runs scored, two stolen bases and two RBIs. Jones scored four runs and stole two bases. Zach Scharenbroch scored three runs and stole two bases. Waldron, Travis Jakeway and Michael Heckendorn each had two RBIs.

In the second game against Gaylord, Charlevoix trailed 7-1 after two innings and battled back for the win. The Rayders scored four in the fifth inning to tie it up and one in the sixth to take the lead. The eventual winning run was scored by R.J. Moore, who scored on a ground ball hit by Scharenbroch.

Chris Waha picked up the win in relief. He threw four innings, gave up one hit, no walks and struck out seven. J.D. Speigl had three hits, including two doubles and two RBIs. Jones, Waha and Waldron all had two hits. One of Waha's was a triple. Waldron had three RBIs.

"It was a great way to get our first two wins of the season. It is our third year in a row winning our tournament and the guys take a lot of pride in that," coach Telgenhof said. "We've been talking about how we want our program to be about winning championships and this was our first chance to get one this season. Hopefully that will be a great springboard for us to go on a little winning streak here."

Charlevoix faced East Jordan on April 17, losing the first game 9-6.

Charlevoix led 6-5 headed into the sixth inning but the Red Devils scored four runs to pull out the win.

Key players for Charlevoix were Jones with two hits including a double, two runs scored, one RBI; Putman with two doubles, three runs scored, two RBIs and two stolen bases. Other hits came from Waha, Heckendorn, Speigl, Moore and Ty Telgenhof.

Coach Telgenhof said Waha pitched well, striking out eight in five innings but Rayder pitchers were hurt by nine fielding errors which led to six unearned runs.

In game two, East Jordan triumphed 5-2, scoring all five of their runs in the third inning, breaking open a scoreless game.

Charlevoix rallied for two runs with two outs in the bottom of the sixth and got runners on second and third bases but couldn't bring them home to end the game.

Rayder standouts from game two were Moore who had two hits, two stolen bases and an RBI; Speigl had two hits and an RBI. Other players with

Tennis team splits season openers

The Charlevoix Rayder tennis team opened its season April 17 with a 6-2 loss to Traverse City St. Francis on their home courts at Shanahan Field and followed up with an April 19 win over Elk Rapids.

Coach Erik Lundtgigen said, "It's early in the season and we will improve with more experience."

INDIVIDUAL RESULTS WERE:

- First, singles: Dan Swenor lost to St. Francis 6-0, 6-2; lost against Elk Rapids 6-0, 6-0.
- Second, singles: Weston Bryan lost to St. Francis 6-1, 7-5; won against Elk Rapids 5-7, 6-3, 6-2.
- Third, singles: Ty Haske lost to St. Francis 6-4, 6-1; lost to Elk Rapids 6-3, 6-4.
- Fourth, singles: Peter Lundgren lost to St. Francis 6-2,6-1; Scotty Silberhorn won against Elk Rapids 6-4, 7-6.
- First, doubles: Justin Klooster and Trevor Mays won against St. Francis 6-0, 7-5; won against Elk Rapids 6-2, 6-3.
- Second, doubles: Brad Cyr and Chris Bartling won against St. Francis 7-5, 6-3; won against Elk Rapids 6-4, 7-5.
- Third, doubles: Taylor Witthoeft and Alex McKenzie lost to St. Francis 7-5, 6-1; they played fourth, doubles against Elk Rapids and lost 7-5, 1-6, 7-6.
- Fourth, doubles: Alex Molter and Kevin Greyerbiehl lost to St. Francis 6-2, 6-7, 6-3; they played third doubles against Elk Rapids and won 6-4, 6-0.

The tennis team faced Harbor Springs on April 23, Grayling on April 24 and will face Boyne City on April 26. Results were not available by press time.

What's next? At 5 p.m. on Thursday, April 26, the tennis team will face Boyne City on the Rayder home courts at Shanahan Field.

hits were Jones and Heckendorn. Telgenhof threw three innings of no-hit, shutout relief.

Overall, coach Telgenhof wasn't thrilled with his team's play at the East Jordan doubleheader.

"I was very disappointed with our defensive play. We won't win many games against a tough opponent like them making nine errors in a game. I was pleased with the way that Chris Waha and Ty Telgenhof threw the ball. Both were solid on the mound and Chris deserved to win his game if not for the shoddy defense."

Charlevoix followed the doubleheader with losses to Roscommon.

In the first game the Rayders fell 8-7.

Charlevoix trailed 8-5 headed into the bottom of the sixth and scored two runs to tie it but the potential tying run was thrown out after overrunning third base.

In that game, Waha had three hits, including two doubles and scored four runs; Jones had two hits and two runs scored; Waldron had two hits and two RBIs; Heckendorn had two hits, including a double and an RBI. Telgenhof pitched well in relief, striking out six in four and one third innings and giving up only one earned run.

In game two, a shortened four inning game, prevailed winning Roscommon 6-2.

Charlevoix led 2-0 after batting in the first to start the game but Roscommon scored three in the third and three more in the fourth for the win.

In game two, Jones had a hit and run scored; Speigl had a hit; Putnan had a stolen base and run scored; Telgenhof threw one inning of shutout relief.

"We played much better than we did against East Jordan. We always hate to lose but Roscommon did come in as the fourth ranked team in the state and they had a nice team, especially with their pitching depth," coach Telgenhof said.

The Rayder baseball team is now 2-4. They played again on April 24 against Harbor Springs and face Ellsworth on Friday at home. Results from these games will appear in next week's Courier.

0710 IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of Ronald Haggard

August 18, 1977 - April 27, 2000

It has been seven years since Ronald's death. For a very long time we were frozen in that moment of grief. But, no one can halt the passage of time. Sometimes, it passes as quickly as an icicle melting in the late spring sun. Then there are days when time stands apparently still... minute by aching minute we are confronted with our thoughts, and another tear drops slowly from our hearts. A friend once asked, " Does it ever get any better"? The answer depends on when you ask the question. We forever feel the loss of Ronald's presence in our lives. At times we torture ourselves with thoughts of just how very much he would have accomplished these last seven years. Perhaps he would be married and we would have even more grandchildren to love! How marvelous the holidays would have been! How wonderful all the hunting trips to Beaver Island would have turned out! And, oh, the good times and laughs we could have had! And all the wonderful hugs!! We have learned, however, that time does cauterise some of the pain. And we try mightily to dwell on all the good memories. Yes, we push the bad memories away and cling to the new ones. We find a certain peace with this method. Of course, there are days when we try not to think of the memories at all, but as F. Scott Fitzgerald wrote: "So we beat on, boats against the current, borne back ceaselessly into the past"

We believe in the Resurrection and the Resurrection that has been promised us all, but we also acknowledge that no person is truly gone from this earth as long as his friends and family remember him. We remember Ronald, and he is in our hearts and minds forever!! God Bless You, Ronald.

SPORTS reviewing the action

Lady Rayder soccer tally three straight wins

Lady Rayder soccer power is dominating the fields.

The Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team kicked off the season with three wins in a row.

On April 20 Charlevoix beat a strong Elk Rapids team 4-2.

The Lady Elks struck first putting Charlevoix in a 1-0 hole. The Rayders, playing the first half into the setting sun, evened things up when Ariel Ramsey buried a left footer into the Elks' net. Just before half-time, Elk Rapids went up again beating the Charlevoix defense on the short side with a nice cross.

The Rayders came out strong in the second half, with Ramsey again striking early off a nice assist from Kaleigh Blanchard. A few minutes later, senior captain Lori Zimmerman buried a penalty shot following an Elk Rapids hand ball in the box. The Rayders never looked back, maintaining possession throughout the second. Ramsey fed freshman Caroline Dupuis for the final score.

Charlevoix received strong play in the midfield from Zita Anderson, Madison Way and Becca Madison. Tammy Potter earned the win in goal stopping 13 Elks shots. Senior Teresa Potter also played well defensively.

"We can put the ball in the net but we have some work to do to improve our defensive rotation. It's always nice to travel to Elk Rapids and come away with a win against their quality program," coach Tom Conlan said.

The victory over the Elks followed an April 19 Rayder 8-0 shutout of Grayling.

Goals were scored by Anderson, Zimmerman, Olivia Catt, Madison Way, Madison, Dupuis, Bridget Peters and Breanna Londgren. Assists went to Blanchard (2), Catt (2), Madison and Dupuis.

The team's season opener on April 16 was nothing short of exciting when they beat conference rival Harbor Springs 3-1.

In a typical, physical match between longtime rivals, the Rayders opened up the scoring when Zimmerman sent a nice centering pass to Dupuis who set up Catt for the score.

After the half, Charlevoix took a 3-0 lead when Blanchard scored off an assist from Ramsey. With about 15 minutes left, Harbor's Kristen Koehler scored from a corner kick assist for the Rams.

Goal keeper Tammy Potter stopped eight Harbor shots, including two breakaways to earn the save.

The Rayders, 3-0 overall and in conference, were host to Kalkaska on Monday, April 23. They face Traverse City St. Francis on April 26 and Petoskey on April 27. Results from those games will appear in next week's Courier.

What's next? At 5 p.m. on Thursday, April 26, the soccer team will face Traverse City St. Francis in Traverse City.

He shoots, he scores

Rayder basketball coach Brett Erskine and Charlevoix High School student, Brad Cyr participated in the student/staff basketball game on Wednesday, April 18 that raised nearly $2,200 for the 2007 senior class party. The party, which remains a secret until June 3, is an annual event designed to offer the graduates a fun and safe way to celebrate their graduation from high school.

County Democrats to host Blue Tiger event

The Charlevoix County Democrats will meet at 7 p.m. on May 3 in the Community Room of the Charlevoix County Jail Annex on Grant Street between Garfield and Carpenter in Charlevoix.

The speaker is Frank Houston, CEO of Michigan Blue Tiger Democrats, a not-for-profit corporation whose goal is to energize Democrats and progressives through the promotion of community-based, civic engagement initiatives.

It is based on the belief that political organizations must allocate more significant funds to civic engagement and community work rather than 30-second commercials. The Blue Tigers maintain that a party is strong if its members believe in individual responsibility and demonstrate it by working to solve problems that exist in the community. Houston brings a rich range of experiences to the Michigan Blue Tiger Democrat team including serving as a public interest advocate in state capitols, running citizen outreach programs and raising funds, teaching in public schools and leading progressive statewide initiatives. Over the last three years Houston has been a champion for increasing the minimum wage, leading a successful statewide ballot initiative in Florida and assisting community, labor, and legislative leaders with the campaign that recently resulted in the Michigan legislature raising the minimum wage to $7.40.

Following Houston's presentation, there will be a discussion of how Charlevoix Democrats can locally implement these ideas.

For more information, call (231) 547-2138.

DDA celebrates 25 years

Since the inception of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority in April 1982, the group, which operates using tax dollars, has instituted almost $12 million in improvements to the authority district. Current authority members joined past members and community supporters in celebrating 25 years of success at an open house on Monday, April 23 at Charlevoix City Hall. Pictured above are first ward Charlevoix City Councilman Lyle Gennett, director of the Downtown Development Authority Keith Carey, mayor Norman Carlson Jr. and second ward Charlevoix City Councilman Greg Stevens.

John Bradley, 20, of Charlevoix was one of over 30 skateboarders, in-line skaters and BMX bikers who packed the City of Charlevoix Community Skatepark opening day, April 29. The park construction project began in 2003. This is the first full season it will be open for use. Hours of operation are from 4 to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and from noon to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The cost for a season pass is $90. The park will be open five months. Seven visit passes are $15. The daily fee is $3. Helmets are required and are available to rent for $1. Pads are available upon request. Patsy Ramsey Scholarship funds are available and applications are available at the park. Skate clinics will be scheduled as needed.

School board candidates speak out

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Don't forget to vote for your favorite school board candidate and millage proposals from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, May 8.

The Charlevoix Courier staff sat down with Lisa Carlson and Bo Boss, the two candidates vying for the four-year term of the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education seat soon to be vacated by current president Bill Trubilowicz, to get their responses to a set of four questions.

DALE "BO" BOSS

Age: 51

Kids: Two

Past political experience: None

Occupation: General contractor/manager of Mt. McSauba ski area

Dale "Bo" Boss

LISA CARLSON

Age: 38

Kids: Two

Past Political Experience: None

Occupation: Registered Nurse at Northern Michigan Hospital

Lisa Carlson

1. WHY ARE YOU RUNNING?

Carlson: I love children. I think it's important to be involved and I like to be involved. I just would like to do more than what I have, which is volunteering in my kids' classes and I still coach at the (recreation) department for the fifth and sixth-grade girls' basketball teams.

Boss: I've got two kids in the school system and my entire career has been dedicated to helping kids. I want to maintain a high level of education for students at Charlevoix schools.

Charlevoix city police chief Gerard Doan and Run Charlevoix marathon organizer, Ron Suffolk, recently biked the June 16 marathon route. Registration is underway.

Ready for Run Charlevoix?

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

On June 16, runners of all skill levels will test their stride at Run Charlevoix, a Red Rock Company Marathon.

The event, which is being organized by Ron Suffolk of South Lyon, who with his son, Jeff Suffolk, and his wife, Sharon Suffolk, own and operate the triathlon organizing group Red Rock Company, will offer marathon, half-marathon, 10K (6.2 miles) and 5K events.

Thus far, Ron said registrants hail from across the Midwest including Chicago, Ill., Minnesota and Ohio. Most have registered for the half-marathon event and there are two times more women than men signed up. The oldest registrant is 60 and the youngest is 20.

"People do this because of the camaraderie. It's a way of life — a healthy way of life," Ron said.

Red Rock Company is the ninth largest triathlon company in the nation in terms of participants.

Each year they organize about seven to eight events like the one being offered in Charlevoix including a Thanksgiving Day Turkey Trot in Ann Arbor.

ELECTION

2. WHAT ARE THE TOP THREE ISSUES FACING THE SCHOOL DISTRICT?

Boss: I want to open up public communication between the school board and administration. I've heard so many complaints from parents and community members who have a concern and no one will listen. I want to work hard to protect all the employees jobs and I want to maintain our core academic programs with current teacher to student ratios. I feel for our sized school district, we are very top-heavy. If we combine the superintendent/principal position at the high school, we could save over $100,000 a year — my opponent has yet to suggest anything that will save money for the school.

Carlson: The budget, declining school enrollment because people are moving and trying to figure out ways to increase revenue for the schools.

3. IF ELECTED HOW WOULD YOU ADDRESS THOSE ISSUES?

Carlson: By trying to entice people to come to the school district instead of choosing another place to live (but) I think I have to take it one step at a time and say I would have to deal with (each issue) at the time I am faced with it.

Boss: I have a problem with the way current school board meetings are being run. I feel important decisions are being made in committee meetings and simply being rubber stamped in board meetings. I think every issue that comes up before the board at the meeting should come up for discussion among board members first and then allow input from the audience, then be put to a vote.

I'd also like to explore the possibility of offering really decent buyouts for those (teachers) thinking of retiring. (The buyout) could be formulated for years of service and could free up additional revenue for the district. If you could buyout a teacher at the high end, you could replace them with two, if they need to be replaced.

I want to sell the Clinton Street building and former library building and the school owns some property across from the bus barn. Maybe our building trades students could build some houses on (that) property. This other idea they're talking about getting a new building for the superintendent. We have room in all three school buildings that we could house a superintendent, no problem.

4. WHY SHOULD PEOPLE VOTE FOR YOU?

Boss: I have a strong business background and feel I could bring some common sense to the board. Tough budgeting times are here right now. We just need to get more creative and I pledge some common sense and I will try to tackle problems before it's too late. No, I don't have all the answers, but I'm willing to make the commitment to make things better.

If the voters think the school is being run properly, then they should vote for Mrs. Carlson. She has stated that our school system doesn't need to be fixed because it is not broken

Carlson: Throughout this I've been learning a lot and I like to make informed decisions. I've really talked to a lot of people in other school districts and other superintendents in other districts and I've talked to school board members and teachers. I feel that I gather information before I make a decision or comments. I make decisions based on facts and I'm committed to trying to do the right thing. I think we have a great school system. We're one of the top school systems in the state. There are a lot of positive things in Charlevoix, instead of focusing so much on cuts, if we focus maybe we can get more people to come to our school. I'm not blind, I know we have to make some cuts, but until I'm sitting there, I can't know exactly what they're looking at as far as next year's budget.

I don't really support that dual role concept (superintendent/principal). I did a lot of research on it and I don't feel with the numbers in Charlevoix that it could work.

I do really support the teachers in Charlevoix and I have been happy with all the teachers my children had.

What? Election day

When are polls open? 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, May 8

Where to vote? Voting booths will be set up at three locations in the Charlevoix Public Schools district:

- People living in Marion, Norwood and the portion of Banks Township in Antrim County which lies in the Charlevoix School district must vote at Marion Township hall.
- People living in Charlevoix Township and the portion of Hayes Township located in the Charlevoix School District must vote at Hayes Township Hall.
- People residing in the City of Charlevoix and the portion of Eveline Township which falls in the Charlevoix School District must vote at Charlevoix City Hall.

MILLAGE ISSUE

Charlevoix Public Schools operating millage proposal:

This proposal will enable the school district to levy the statutory rate of 18 mills on all property except principal residence, qualified agricultural and qualified forest property required for the school district to receive its revenue per pupil foundation allowance.

If passed, this two-year millage would raise approximately $138,170. This millage would be to restore millage money lost as a result of the reduction required by Michigan Constitution of 1063.

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

I guess you could say I've involved myself in a fair number of barely legal enterprises in hopes of getting rich.

My humanitarian history began in 1983 when I was 8. The parents had just split for good sending mom, 4-year-old Adam and I from our pedestrian, middle-class existence to a ramshackle apartment in the "Escape from New York" section of Bay City.

Mom lost her title of "Stay-at-home" and for the first time I was alone. Soon I went from a shy, weepy momma's boy to a shy, weepy hoodlum.

My first heist was modeled after a charity where people went door-to-door with coffee cups collecting for monkey Alzheimer's or feline lupus.

With one of mom's mugs in hand and a short spiel in the name of a cancer cure rehearsed, the Gohs Candy Fund was in business.

Panhandling for nonexistent causes turned to shoplifting at the local party store because the former was simply too much work.

Decades later I feel the shame, but at the time it seemed OK to take money from poor people who thought they were doing good.

And then Sampson, the strict military man who would become my father, appeared on the scene and the tomfoolery ended — for a while.

Soon after moving out of my parents' house I found a different sort of trouble. Granted, selling overpriced gourmet treats and silver plated jewelry isn't the same as lying for donations, but it's pretty damn close.

In the years following "Cancer Scam," I hawked everything from vacuums to nightcrawlers, but my laziness and greed prevented me from seeing one pyramid and multi-level marketing venture after another for the frauds they were.

I even kept the faith when an unemployed alcoholic and a former Texan drug runner, living on a Dow Chemical disability pension because top-secret toxic ooze swelled his liver to the size of an English bulldog, arrived at my mother-in-law's in a beat up station wagon with homemade business cards and dog-eared pie charts to convince me I could make millions selling phone service door-to-door.

In between cooking jobs and desperate to move out of mother's basement, I wrote a $250 check. Months passed and loved ones were alienated by desperate sales pitches. My partners in slime then turned me on to soliciting donations for Vietnam veterans and disabled Americans via telemarketing.

Taking advantage of people's generosity gave me the same sick feeling as eating a gas station burrito, but I pressed on through four hours of people screaming graphic instructions on what I should do with the phone, myself and my mother. I broke for lunch and never returned.

The scams had such allure it wasn't long before I paid $100 for a list of homeowners who supposedly qualified for a refund of their closing costs.

Offering someone their money in return for a fee is like walking into a stranger's house, picking up their toaster and saying, "You can have this for $15."

By 25, my miserable machinations hadn't produced a penny and I quit, for nearly seven years.

Then I began noticing the occasional odd classified like: "Free manure (horse). Easy to pick up," and "Breast pump...barely used. $70."

I wondered what I could sell, but resisted the urge to liquidate household furniture and knickknacks until I spotted an ad from a Christian man seeking a car or money to buy a car — it was all the push I needed to fall off the wagon.

True, I've had zero responses to: "White 32-year-old nonsmoking professional male seeking wealthy surrogate parent. Interests include comic books, video games, cash, muscle cars, Taco Bell and beer. High bidder addressed as 'mommy' or 'daddy' and will receive finger paintings, hugs and phone calls which end with, 'I love you.' Platonic interests only need apply," but it's only been a few weeks, so I haven't given up hope.

> White 32-year-old nonsmoking professional male seeking wealthy surrogate parent.

I'd like to think this will be my last swindle, but I know me too well. Oh, and "Christian man seeking car," if you're reading this, let the staff of the Courier know how it all turned out. The suspense is killing us.

Gayle Gennett

Life brings changes everyday and we must learn to accept them in order to have peace in our own life.

I hadn't planned on caring for an elderly parent. Now, I have much more empathy than ever before when it comes to someone attempting to get through a doorway in a wheelchair. Even more so I am humbled to be able to help my parent bathe and I appreciate his respect for modesty. Having three grandchildren age six and under, I am acutely aware of the mother with young children in tow trying to purchase just a few items in the store.

I have friends and family members who are experiencing an unfortunate medical diagnosis adversely affecting their lives. We want our family and friends to be with us forever so we try to make their lives a little easier by helping where we can.

Caring for elderly parents, grandchildren and friends can be a daunting task. A poster I purchased in the early 1970s reminds me everyday that "Life happens while you are busy planning something else," which is located near one declaring "When life gives you lemons, make lemonade." This is when I need to ask myself, "What would I be doing otherwise, if this weren't a part of my life?" My answer is simple. Whatever it was, it wouldn't be as important as what I am doing right now. The here and now is short. Five years from now a different scenario may present itself, this is the time to live without regrets.

Accepting retirement one immediately thinks, travel, condos, beaches, reading, self absorption. Studies have shown us that retirement doesn't necessarily mean any of those things. Retirement today may mean a new job, a part-time position and being available to help where needed. I look around and I see more individuals doing just that. Maybe I never noticed before because I was so busy working.

I am reminded daily, that taking care of yourself is important too. With the encouragement of friends and family I realize that I can still take time for myself by taking an early morning stroll along Lake Michigan to greet the ducks and view the beautiful blue horizon. I can still exercise my body to stay fit so I may continue to push wheelchairs, lift grandkids and help a friend with house or yard work.

Living in a small community such as ours definitely has its perks while trying to do all of this. It's been my experience that there are many

'THANK YOU' PANTRY SUPPORTERS

Editor:

At a recent meeting, the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry Board was reflecting on our many blessings and considering how generous individuals and churches have been to us in 2006 and continuing into 2007. We decided it might be time to acknowledge this publicly.

It is impossible to list all of the numerous individuals who have helped us over the past year, and we hesitate to list names lest we miss someone. We would like those persons to know that we truly appreciate their efforts and contributions to the pantry and its clients. Whether you donated money or food or paper products or toiletries, all went to households who need a little extra help.

The churches who have helped us to sustain our operation are Barnard Methodist Church, Bethany Lutheran, Charlevoix United Methodist, Christ Episcopal, Community Church of God, Community Reformed Church, Family of Faith Ministries, First Baptist Church, First Congregational Church UCC, Greensky Hill Methodist Church, Ironton Congregational, Norwood United Methodist and St. Mary Catholic Church. This is a wonderful testimony to the ecumenical nature of our pantry and the goodness and generosity of the members of these congregations.

Your help has advanced our program and touched the lives of many people in the process.

We thank you sincerely and in this most holy season of Easter, pray that God will bestow his rich blessings on all of you.

SUPPORT FUTURE PROBLEM SOLVERS

Editor:

We are a part of the Charlevoix Future Problem Solving program. Future Problem Solvers is a gifted and talented program that allows students to use their creative thinking and academic skills. Students are given a problem that occurs in a future scene that requires six steps to solve.

This year our two four-person teams have made it to the state competition at Michigan State University. We will be judged against many other teams from around the state. Practicing for this competition takes up the majority of the short amount of time we have together.

Due to our lack of time, our fund-raising efforts have been put on hold. We would greatly appreciate any donations to support this excellent program. In addition to monetary donations, we are able to accept Spartan UPC labels, Oleson's receipts, Box Tops for Education and ink cartridges. If you wish to donate, please drop off or mail to Future Problem Solvers, attn.: Amy Pott, 108 E. Garfield St. Charlevoix, MI 49720. Thanks for your time and consideration.

ADDRESS GLARE

Editor:

Some time ago Charlevoix 7-Eleven installed a high intensity light fixture to protect their employees and shoppers entering the store.

The light shines on the parking lot (a good idea). But it also shines directly toward the new marina. Boaters entering the marina, at night should not have to contend with the bright light.

A contact was made, Sept. 27, 2005, to the local manager. I was then directed to corporate offices, "Yes we can do something." Nothing has been done following numerous phone calls and promises.

Last fall an offer to install a shield on the light fixture at no cost to Charlevoix 7-Eleven was made and still no response.

Summer residents, summer visitors and the boating season are coming soon. There is a simple fix to the glaring light. Charlevoix 7-Eleven provides a good service to the Charlevoix community. How about being aware and considerate of the community's safety too.

The offer to place the shield on the light still stands.

SHAME ON CITY COUNCIL, EDITOR

Editor:

Reading items on the workings, or non-workings, of the Charlevoix City Council are enough to make one cry. I guess it could be chalked up to ineptitude or just plain small-town politics. I refer to it's most current machinations which forced Peter Pollack, the designer of the East Park project, to resign. This is only the most recent example of how the council vacillates and/or makes its decisions.

What is even worse though, is reading an article in the Courier only to find that the article mentioned above ends on page three (sic) "...now working on an agree-..." with no continuation on another page. This hints of poor editorialship. Someone isn't reading the proofs. Is this the way to run a paper?

MDC DREAM

Editor:

South Arm Township has many hills and valleys that are beautiful.

If South Arm Township agrees to expanding Manthai Development Corp. mining facilities on Ellsworth Road, many issues need to be addressed: The number one issue has to be safety. Then road improvements, signage and buffers.

Another hot button topic is degradation of the area. Just take a look at MDC's headquarters at Heise Road and U.S. 31 South. MDC has a lot of nerve if it can't clean up it's own front yard. How in the hell can they or would they clean up another?

I have a dream too. Leave it alone.

NATIONAL CRIME VICTIMS RIGHTS WEEK

Editor:

In the time it takes you to read this letter, 10 Americans will be harmed by violent crime. Violence can touch any family. Some people recover quickly while others are affected for years or even a lifetime of physical, psychological and financial stresses. Unfortunately, many harmful stereotypes exist regarding who "asked for" something malicious to happen to them "If only a victim hadn't been where they were, at that time of night with those people."

The fact is no one asks to be assaulted. To excuse a perpetrators behavior because of something like what the victim was wearing is to say carrying a wallet means you're asking to get mugged.

This is National Crime Victims Week, when communities throughout the nation acknowledge victims of crime and the people who have helped them rebuild their lives. If you or someone you know has been a victim of crime, find out how you can help by intervening in the safest way possible. The Charlevoix County Prosecutor and Victim Advocate are here to serve those in need of services after a crime.

Help your community serve every victim, every time.

CHARLEVOIX PULLS TOGETHER

Editor:

Recently I saw Charlevoix pull together as a town and would like to say thank you. Pizza Hut held a "tip night" fund-raiser where both the city and township fire departments along with the EMS pulled together to raise money for Kimberly Isaac, a 32-year-old mother who is battling cancer.

Volunteers agreed to work at Pizza Hut with all of the tips going to Kimberly. This takes a lot of caring and generosity on everyone's part. Again, a big thank you to everyone who volunteered their time and left tips that were wonderful.

caring and nurturing individuals who are willing to help. I brought my father up here due to the mistreatment he was receiving elsewhere. I found the administration at Boulder Park ready to give me a listening ear. When I needed further help, Northern Michigan Hospital opened its doors and took the time to explain medical jargon and transitional placement. I continued to meet angels along the way.

Ruth from Sunnybank gave me the assurance and comfort during a stressful time. At Charlevoix Area Hospital, Kathy in physical therapy and Laura in speech pathology provided therapy for dad, not realizing they were providing it for me as well. The grandkids have found a safe haven at our many beaches and at the Charlevoix Public Library. Friends continue to help friends by calling each other regularly to provide meals for each other, a listening ear or an occasional outing. The care we all have given and received would not be happening in a larger bustling city. Many of you have already experienced the not so helpful, too busy, overworked, underpaid attitude prevalent elsewhere. As much as some of us complain about the politics and petty things that occur. I for one am grateful everyday to say I live in Charlevoix.

I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you for your help and support you've given me throughout my life and hope that in some small way I will be there for you as well.

19th Annual DARE golf benefit May 10 at Boyne Mountain

The Boyne City Police Department and Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office have organized the 19th Annual DARE Golf Benefit and Dinner on May 10 at Boyne Mountain.

Tee time is noon on the Alpine Course. The golf tournament is a four-person, shotgun start scramble. Dinner, which is part of the entry fee, will be served at 5 p.m. at Eriksen's Restaurant at Boyne Mountain.

Prizes will be awarded on par three holes, as well as to those golfers with the longest drive, most putts and closest to the pin. A hole in one jackpot worth $5,000 cash is up for grabs on two selected par three holes.

The cost of golf and dinner is $80 per person, and will also include a group photo for each team member. Dinner can be purchased separately for $14.50. Tickets can be purchased in advance at the Boyne City Police Department.

To register or for more information, call the Boyne City Police Department at (231) 582-6611 and ask for Bardel Belford or assistant chief of police, Jeff Gettel.

D.A.R.E.

Proceeds from the fund-raiser are used to purchase educational materials, train DARE officers and to purchase graduation supplies and instructional equipment used for the DARE program.

The DARE curriculum focuses on teaching students to resist drugs, alcohol, and tobacco, and to develop self-esteem, responsibility, resisting peer pressure and making informed, responsible decisions.

The Boyne City Police Dept. and Charlevoix County Sheriff Dept. have been teaching the DARE program since 1988 and were two of the first agencies and communities in Michigan to implement the program.

Sheriff's office offers seniors cleanup program

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is offering a cleanup program for senior citizens of Charlevoix County.

Sheriff George Lasater will be assigning county jail prisoners, supervised by the sheriff's office to assist senior citizens with raking and general cleanup of their yards.

This program also includes townships in Charlevoix County where prisoners may be assigned under supervision, to clean cemeteries, parks and other sites.

Sheriff Lasater advises only prisoners who are not a security risk to the community will be assigned to this detail.

The senior citizen portion of the cleanup program is funded by the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging Senior Millage Fund.

Senior citizens must call the Commission on Aging office at (231) 237-0103 to sign up for the yard cleanup program. Township officials may contact Sheriff Lasater at (231) 547-4461 for arrangements.

OBITUARY

Jane Glidden: March 4, 1919 - April 15, 2007

Jane T. Glidden, 88, died April 15 at Woodlawn Meadows in Hastings.

Funeral services and hurial were held April 17 at Oakwood Cemetery in Lyon Township.

Born on March 4, 1919, in Charlevoix she was the daughter of Homer and Mae (Woods) Brady. She married Herbert Glidden on Aug. 11, 1935 in Ellsworth. He preceded her in death on Dec. 22, 1974. She later married Arthur Malknecht in 1982 and he preceded her in death in 1989.

A homemaker, Mrs. Glidden was a longtime resident of Higgins Lake where she was a member of AmVets Ladies Auxiliary Post 13, Charles M. Engel VFW Post #4159 Ladies Auxiliary, American Legion Post 106 Ladies Auxiliary, Houghton Lake Elks and Grayling Moose. She was a friend of Margaret Gahagan and served on the board of the Gahagan Nature Preserve. She and her family were instrumental in the development of the preserve and funding for various projects.

Survivors include three children, Herbert R. (Marsha) Glidden of Williamsburg, Va., Lois (David) Pickering of Hastings and Kathleen (John) Faust of Petoskey; eight grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren and two great great-grandsons. She was preceded in death by two husbands; three hrothers, Homer, Jim and William Brady; two sisters, Esther Doyle and Hilda Gibson; and a grandson, Tommy Beckett.

Memorial contributions can be made to Barry Community Hospice, 450 Meadow Run, Suite 200, Hastings, MI 49058.

MOVE MINE FORWARD

Editor:

I think it's time that your readers hear the other side of the Norwood Township sand and gravel story.

I was with Wayne Wynkoop in the fall of 2005 when a man from Norwood Township Planning Commission came to visit the site.

This person who was the chairman of the Planning Commission for 2006 was visiting because of Wayne's recent application for a special use permit approval for sand and gravel extraction.

He made it very clear that he disagreed with the application because of the site's alleged historic significance.

Wayne has owned this land for 24 years. As a cousin and a friend I have assisted him with reclamation and development of the land.

In all this time there has never been an issue with the township or zoning.

Now there seems to he a tremendous amount of concern about his project.

Wayne's property is located in the agricultural district. It is not visible to any adjacent land owners and it is completely surrounded by large trees and over a quarter mile from the road. The area that he intends to work is surrounded on two sides by Fisherman's Island State Park.

Sand and gravel extraction is allowed by Norwood Township Zoning with special use approval. Many of the allowable uses in the agricultural district have the potential to create circumstances that some may find objectionable.

Farming operations create problems with flies and scatters raw manure along township roads. The smell from the manure spread on fields to fertilize the soil along U.S. 31 is as much a part of our local culture as the opening and closing of the Dairy Queen.

We do not attack farmers for doing what they do to make a living.

I wonder at the motivation for the unfair and biased attacks on Wayne and Micheline Wynkoop for trying to use their property for a use permitted by zoning?

The proposed operation does not involve wetlands and does not impact ground water. It has received written clearance for the project from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Services, Michigan Department of Natural Resources, and Michigan Department of Environmental Quality. The Charlevoix County Road Commission and the Michigan Department of Transportation have given their approval for the intended use of the road and the county has issued the necessary soil erosion permit.

Wayne and Micheline Wynkoop have spent a great deal of time and money to do the right thing. The opposition seems to feel that spreading misinformation and suing the township at taxpayers' expense is the noble and right thing.

What do you think?

Leroy Wynkoop

WHAT A GREAT TOWN

Editor:

Do you know what a great town we live in? There are many things we could complain about or wish we had — but I'd like to say thanks for what we do have. In particular our incredible healthcare.

I had the pleasure of having two children at Charlevoix Area Hospital, as well as numerous other procedures, visits to the after hours clinic, etc. Each and every time the staff was very accommodating, friendly and compassionate with their care. I would recommend our small town hospital to anyone.

Also, I wanted to thank Dr. Tinney, Chris and the rest of the staff at Pine River Medical. Along with having the two aforementioned children it seems like with one or the other we are always in need of an appointment. Whether it is just for a "well" visit, or if the kids are sick, their entire office staff is always willing to fit you in and never makes you feel like an inconvenience. Their office gives incredible care and again, I would recommend them to all.

Small towns have their upsides and downsides. I felt like it was time to comment on some of the small upsides that help make my life a whole lot easier. So, thank you Charlevoix for being a helpful and caring community.

Wilks pleads to reduced charges

BY STEVE ZUCKER
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Robert Wilks

A Bellaire man pleaded guilty, Friday, April 27 to a reduced charge in connection with an attempted robbery at a Charlevoix drug store in January.

Robert Jason Wilks, 25, pleaded guilty in Charlevoix County's 33rd Circuit Court to one count of attempted unarmed robbery, a five-year felony. In exchange for his plea, the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office has agreed to drop charges of attempted armed robbery and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony. The charges are punishable hy up to five and two years in prison respectively.

The charge stems from an attempted robbery that took place at about 8:30 a.m. on Jan. 16 at the Central Drug Store at 301 Bridge St. in Charlevoix.

Workers at the store told police that a man walked into the store, asked for a pen and paper, wrote a note demanding Oxycontin and morphine and then gave the note to the pharmacist. When the pharmacist refused, the suspect fled the store.

In court last Friday, Wilks admitted to the allegations, saying he intended to steal the drugs, but denied having a gun.

Authorities had heen handling the case as an attempted armed robbery based upon a report from one of the workers that he saw what appeared to the handle of a handgun sticking out from the suspect's waistband.

However, Charlevoix County chief assistant prosecutor Shaynee Fanara said police were not able to find any other evidence that Wilks actually had a gun with him at the time of the attempted robbery.

Wilks, who is free from custody on a $10,000 surety bond, will he sentenced on Friday, May 25.

Are Charlevoix schools offering healthy choices?

KIDS CORNER

Benjamin Gohs

In an attempt to keep today's kids from becoming the two-thirds of Michiganders who tip the scales at overweight or obese, ■ Lansing officials instated a statewide health and wellness policy.

Barbara Flis, a Detroit area parent advocate and founder of Parent Action for Healthy Kids, hosted a workshop on school wellness policies and the state of health of children in general last week at Charlevoix Public Library.

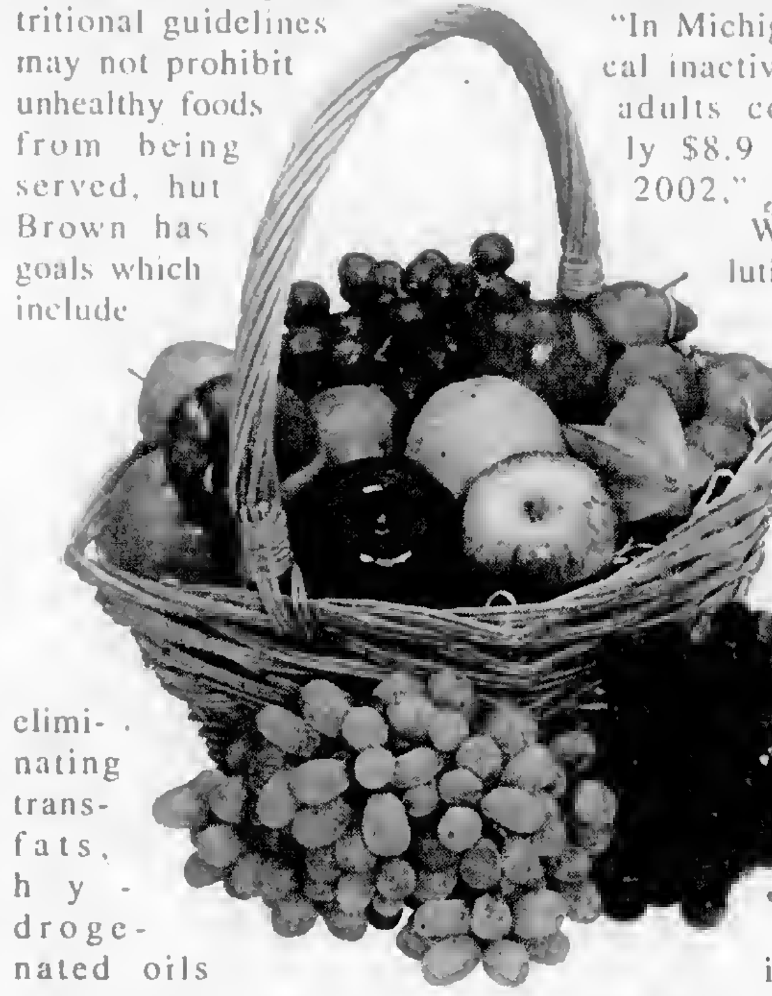
"The government keeps giving money to (95 percent of) schools to fund that school meal, but they're saying, 'Wait a minute, we're giving taxpayer money to schools to pay for the meal but we need to make sure that meal is a healthy meal,'" Flis said.

From section 204 of Public Law 108-265 of June 30, 2004, all schools participating in a school lunch program receiving funding under the National School Lunch Act or Child Nutrition Act must establish a wellness policy which includes a committee comprised of educators, parents and students; goals for nutrition education; physical activity; other school-based activities designed to promote student wellness; and nutrition guidelines.

While some school lunch programs may be in need of adjustment, a walk through the food line at Charlevoix High School reveals fruit, muffins, juice, white meat chicken strips, salads, sandwiches with multi-grain bread and wraps among various deep-fried items and casseroles.

"There are definitely healthy things," said Charlevoix Public Schools head cook, Lori Brown. "I believe in healthy choices — that's how I've always eaten and that's how I raised my children."

Pointing to display racks of chips, Pop Tarts and candy bars, she added. "If you want bad stuff, it's here, but maybe someday we won't have it."



The state's vague nutritional guidelines may not prohibit unhealthy foods from being served, but Brown has goals which include eliminating trans-fats, hydrogenated oils and energy drinks from the cafeteria.

Flis said unhealthy dietary habits and sedentary behavior account for 300,000 deaths and $100 billion in health care costs nationwide each year.

"In Michigan, physical inactivity among adults costs nearly $8.9 billion in 2002," she said.

While the solution may be tricky, Flis said, people got here by eating too much and exercising too little.

"One in three American children born in 2000 will develop diabetes in their lifetime. 62 percent (of children) did not attend physical education classes (in 2006)," she said. "70 percent did not attend physical education classes daily."

She added, "Over 80 percent of Michigan high school students did not eat the recommended amounts of fruits and vegetables and two-thirds of American adolescents do not consume at least 75 percent of the recommended amount of calcium."

Flis said the mass marketing of junk food to children is a contributing factor in the decline of their health.

"1950 was the beginning of the 'Youngster business,'" she said. "Two men played a key part in influencing the marketing to America's children: Ray Kroc and Walt Disney. They created imaginative worlds for selling many things and they linked products to the feeling, ideas and dreams of children."

Charlevoix High School principal, Gary Grundman, said his school has offered healthy food and drink for as long as he can remember.

"We lock the pop machines up for lunch so they are not available at lunch time," he said. "We've had an extensive hot lunch program for a long time. You could go back to menus we had in the old building and when we moved here we just expanded it. We still have the candy and pop machines in our building, but our building was in pretty good stead when all the regulations came down."

He added, "We have vegetarian menus and Lori (Brown) does specialty items for them."

Milk and sandwiches, an alternative to junk food, are offered to hungry students after school.

"Our job is to educate the kids so they understand choices and healthy lifestyles," Grundman said. "We do have a responsibility, but I don't think schools one way or the other can solve this issue — it's a much bigger issue. How many fast food commercials do you see in one hour of television?"

Grundman invited anyone interested to visit the school and see the hot lunch program in action.

Fast facts

Children see about 40,000 advertisements on TV per year.

Marketing to children increased from $6.2 billion in 1992 to $12 billion in 1997.

Children 12 to 19 spent $170 billion in 2002.

Children under 12 influence $500 billion of purchases each year.

Lieberman, Kurtz honored with OPIE awards

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

There may not be a red carpet or 24-Karat statues, but this year's winners of the Outstanding Person In Education (OPIE) award are excited all the same.

The annual award ceremony, scheduled for 6 p.m. on Thursday, May 3 at Sylvan Treetops Resort will honor educators like Mary Lieberman and support staff like Elaine Kurtz.

Mary Lieberman

Lieberman, a secondary resource teacher at Charlevoix High School feels her nomination is representative of the entire faculty.

"I believe that Charlevoix Public Schools is blessed to have a number of outstanding educators on their faculty," she stated in an e-mailed response to question. "I only wish that each and every one of our teachers could share this recognition with me. Being recognized by my peers as the Outstanding Person in Education from our district is the ultimate honor. I am truly humbled by their recognition of my contributions to Charlevoix Public Schools.

During her three decades working in special education, Lieberman has been a secondary resource teacher.

"I have served in a variety of roles while serving the district: District Steering Committee, Curriculum Design Team, Crisis Response Team, Community Transition Council, Student Assistance Team, Special Education Core Team Chair and Mentor for probationary teachers," she stated.

Lieberman cannot remember a time in her childhood when she wanted to do anything but teach.

"I also had two significant experiences that inspired me to pursue special education. My brother suffered a massive aneurysm while playing football prior to his senior year. When he reentered the high school after several months of rehabilitation, there really wasn't a program (or) support services that fit his individual needs," she wrote. "Also, I did have the opportunity to work as a student teacher aide in an elementary resource room where I witnessed on a daily basis the struggles and challenges faced by young disabled students."

Lieberman feels she gets much more from her job than she puts in.

"Each and every day as I work with disabled young men and women, I learn so much myself. They remind me every day about the important things in life," she stated. "The youth of today are a tremendously hardworking, capable and caring generation. Despite a number of challenges and bumps in the road, as I work with my special education students I witness a diligence, persistence and striving for personal success that is truly amazing."

Lieberman, who lives in Petoskey, has two grown children a son, Kyle and a daughter, Bethany.

Elaine Kurtz

Support staff member, Kurtz, has worked as a teacher's assistant for 10 years.

"I think everybody deserves this award. I know they've always singled one person out, but I would like to stress that we should all share it," she said. "I feel very honored and think I would like to share this award with all my coworkers."

She isn't sure when her love of education began, but like Lieberman, Kurtz said she does not remember ever wanting to do anything else.

"I have always been interested in watching the kids grow and learn different things," she said. "I've worked with kindergarten through fourth-grade. Reading is my favorite subject to help with. It's very rewarding."

She added, "I enjoy working with people in the school and find everybody very supportive of each other. It's very rewarding seeing the kids grow and learn."

The wife of John and mother of Luther and Amy thanked everyone with whom she worked and emphasized this is a team effort.

"I think anybody on the support staff could have been chosen for this award," she said. "I'm basically accepting this on behalf of the support staff."

While the award is nice, Kurtz said. "The smiles and hugs I get from kids really make my day."

Who? Charlevoix Public Schools staff members Mary Lieberman and Elaine Kurtz.

What? Chosen by their peers to be named Outstanding Persons in Education.

What's next? Both will accept their awards at a ceremony to take place at 6 p.m. on May 3 at Sylvan Treetops Resort in Gaylord.

County equalized values increase in 2006

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Graphic by Jessie Healy

Charlevoix County equalized values (CEV) were up 4.78 percent — 2.8 percent of which consisted of new construction, which is down from an increase in values of eight percent in 2006.

These numbers, recently released during the regular Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' meeting, have no effect on the year to year taxes levied against local landowners.

"The only time the assessments really have a bearing on taxes is when a transfer is involved," said Charlevoix County Equalization Director, Tom Wolf. "When you purchase property, it gets uncapped which is called a pop-up tax and the value becomes the assessed value."

Wolf said eight to 10 percent growth is the usual and isn't sure why the growth in values has slowed.

"It depends on the market. They (rates) can stay flat or they can go up. The market dictates what assessments will do," he said. "If the market goes down, we have to change the assessments to show that."

Wolf said last year's numbers may have remained high due to increased activity in the Boyne area.

Of the 4.78 percent increase, Charlevoix Township was 8.02 percent, Eveline Township was 11.65 percent, Hayes Township was 10.58 percent, Marion Township was 3.59 percent, Norwood Township was 2.47 percent, Peaine Township was 3.8 percent and St. James Township was 2.38 percent.

Property in Charlevoix County is assessed annually as directed by state law and calculated to reflect a figure 50 percent of market value.

Real property falls into five classes: Agricultural, commercial, industrial, residential and timber cutover (barren land).

"Personal property includes machinery, equipment, furniture and fixtures in businesses," Wolf said. "Every township assessor and city assessor sends out personal property statements. They fill it out almost like a self-report and they give us the cost new and year (equipment) was manufactured and then we depreciate it."

The State Equalized Value figures, scheduled for release later this summer, are the finalized record of all the values in the state.

"State Equalized Values are only different from the County Equalized Values if the state disagrees with how the county has equalized that," Wolf said. "The state can increase or subtract from, but very seldom do you see where the state added to an individual county."

He added, "That's why it's important that the county and state (figures) match. Your SEV is going to be the same as your assessed value."

Assessed and equalized values

Respective assessed and equalized values of real property and personal property respectively for townships and cities in Charlevoix County in 2006 are as follows:

Charlevoix Township — $220,242,300; $29,855,000
Eveline Township — $361,868,296; $1,437,900
Hayes Township — $324,242,600; $5,835,700
Marion Township — $110,585,100; $1,445,600
Norwood Township — $75,790,600; $1,177,900
Peaine Township — $117,759,650; $603,531
St. James Township — $73,327,077; $790,422
City of Charlevoix — $339,668,200

Charlevoix County SEVs over the past decade

1997 — $980,000,000
1999 — $1,090,000,000
2001 — $1,270,000,000
2003 — $1,480,000,000
2005 — $1,710,000,000
2007 — $1,990,000,000

Midwest Living names Charlevoix a 'Best Small-Town Getaway'

Northwest Michigan towns have landed on many a top destination list — and the trend continues this spring for Petoskey and Charlevoix with a mention in Midwest Living magazine.

The editors of Midwest Living ranked Petoskey and Charlevoix No. 2 on its "100 Best Small-Town Getaways" list. Ephraim/Fish Creek, in Door County, Wis., earned the top ranking.

To assemble the list, the magazine's editors looked at the 8,500 Midwestern towns with populations less than 20,000. Over several months, they did additional research to rank towns based on attractions, vibe, scenery, walkability, shopping, dining, lodging, arts scene, outdoor activities, proximity to major cities, multiday potential and wild card (a category covering special events such as festivals).

For the Petoskey/Charlevoix entry on the list, the magazine's editors noted: "These neighboring resort towns along the Lower Peninsula's northwestern shore began entertaining vacationers who came by steamship more than a century ago. Petoskey climbs hills along Little Traverse Bay, and Charlevoix nestles between Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix. The beach and harbor are steps from the 100 shops and galleries of Petoskey's Gaslight District and landmark Stafford's Perry Hotel."

Stafford's Perry Hotel, Andante, Jesperson's and the Inn at Bay Harbor were mentioned, and Bay Harbor's golf was described as the "Midwest's Pebble Beach."

Peter Fitzsimons, executive director of the Petoskey-Harbor Springs-Boyne Country Visitors' Bureau, said he plans to provide video footage of the area to Midwest Living, hoping that the magazine can use it as it seeks national publicity for its rankings.

"It wasn't a surprise, but it's wonderful to be included on the list and to be No. 2," Fitzsimons said.

Other Michigan communities listed among the top getaways included Saugatuck/Douglas at No. 5, Mackinac Island at No. 10, South Haven at No. 11, Leland/Suttons Bay at No. 12, Marshall at No. 25, Frankenmuth at No. 37, Manistee at No. 77, Copper Harbor at No. 79, Munising at No. 82 and Chesaning at No. 98.

Midwest Living, published bi-monthly, has a circulation base of 925,000.

Islanders, ISD residents decide seats, millage proposals

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Beaver Island voters and those across the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District will have to decide school board seats and millage requests on Tuesday, May 8.

Three seats are open on the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. This is a six-year term. The following candidates are:

Robert W. Anderson
Jay Essenberg
Mary P Jason

Two seats are open on the Beaver Island Community Schools Board of Education. This is a four-year term. The following candidates are

Kristina I. Drost
Richard L. Speck
Gail M. Weede

Islanders will also be asked to decide an operating millage renewal proposal. This proposal will allow the district to continue to levy the statutory rate of 15.7908 mills on all property except principal residence, qualified agricultural and qualified forest property required for the school district to receive its revenue per pupil foundation allowance. This renewal will last throughout 2007 and would raise approximately $1,302,000 if passed

A proposed renewal of .25 mills for the Beaver Island Historical Society will also be on the ballot. The millage was previously approved by the electors, but has since expired. If approved, this five-year millage would raise an estimated $10,535 in operational funds.

Voters must cast ballots for school board candidates and millage proposals between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. on May 8.

PLACES TO VOTE

Mainland: Voting booths will be set up at three locations in the Charlevoix Public Schools district:

- People living in Marion, Norwood and the portion of Banks Township which in Antrim County which lies in the Charlevoix School district must vote at Marion Township hall.
- People living in Charlevoix Township and the portion of Hayes Township located in the Charlevoix School District must vote at Hayes Township Hall.
- People residing in the City of Charlevoix and the portion of Eveline Township which falls in the Charlevoix School District must vote at Charlevoix City Hall.

Beaver Island:

St. James and Peaine Township residents must vote at St. James Township Hall for Beaver Island Schools and millage proposals.

Northwest students to compete at state band festival

Northwest Academy musicians in grades six through eight will compete at 3 p.m. on Friday, May 4 at the Michigan State Band and Orchestra Association Festival in the Benzie Central High School Auditorium.

Northwest Academy musicians in grades six through eight will compete at 3 p.m. on Friday, May 4 at the Michigan State Band and Orchestra Association Festival in the Benzie Central High School Auditorium.

"All the students have been working very hard to prepare for the State Festival," said Northwest Academy Director, Gary Stutzman. "It is indeed an honor for them to have earned the right to represent Charlevoix at the State Band and Orchestra Festival."

The band qualified for the State Festival by earning Superior ratings on March 3 at the District II Band and Orchestra Festival in Petoskey. Several members of this band attended the Junior High Solo and Ensemble Festival on Saturday, April 21 in Kalkaska.

Superior ratings were awarded to: Evan Kroon for trumpet solo; Christian Morrison for tenor sax solo; Sam Keehn for tuba solo and tuba/trombone duet with Aaron Schmidt; Schmidt was also awarded for his trombone solo.

Second Division ratings went to band members: Madelyn May and Christian Morrison for their saxophone duet; Christian Morrison and Casey Riley for their trumpet duet; May for her alto saxophone solo; Dalton Cooper for a clarinet solo; and Dylan Skop for his snare drum solo.

Division III ratings were given to Casey Riley and Kroon for their trumpet duet.

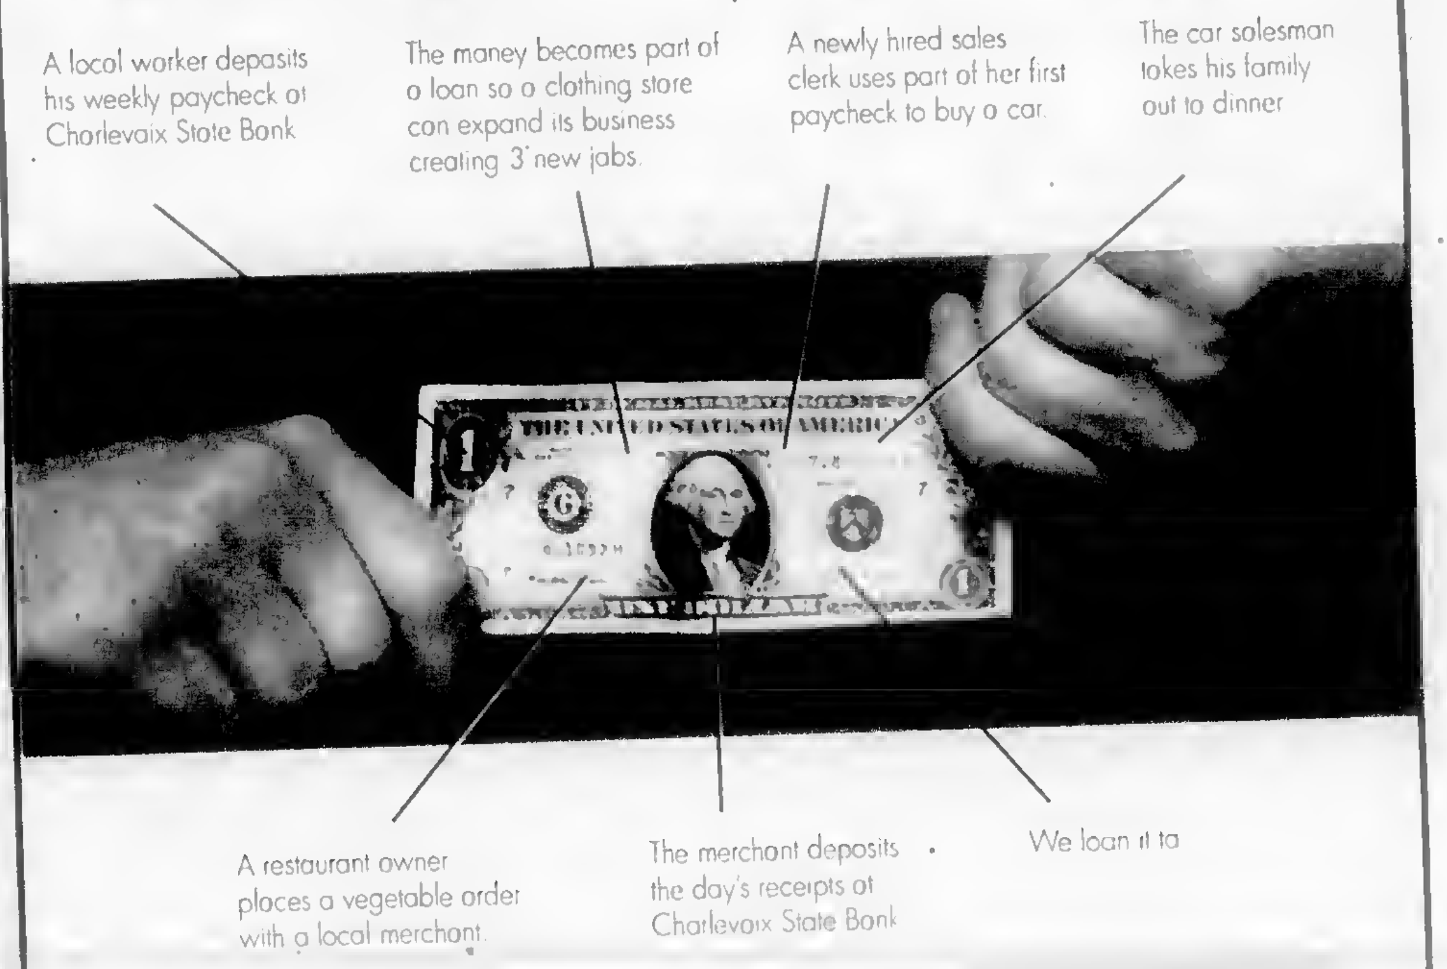
We recycle these locally!



A local worker deposits his weekly paycheck at Charlevoix State Bank
The money becomes part of a loan so a clothing store can expand its business creating 3 new jobs.
A newly hired sales clerk uses part of her first paycheck to buy a car.
The car salesman takes his family out to dinner
A restaurant owner places a vegetable order with a local merchant.
The merchant deposits the day's receipts at Charlevoix State Bank
We loan it to

When money circulates, it acts as the lifeblood nourishing our local economy. For example, when you deposit your paycheck at a bank, it flows out in the form of a loan. But to whom? And where? To us at Charlevoix State Bank these are very important questions. The dollar you deposit with us is loaned to a person or business right here in our area – not to someone halfway across the country.

It could be the seed money for a business that employs the person who buys the vacant house on your street which boosts the value of your house and makes your street safer.

Think about it.

Any bank can say it cares about the community. Don't you want to bank with one that's really doing it?

Charlevoix Manufacturing honored with Michigan Manufacturer of the Year Award

James Hater

James Hater, general manager of Charlevoix Manufacturing Company, has been named runner-up in the 2007 John G. Thodis Michigan Manufacturer of the Year Award program.

The awards, presented by the Michigan Manufacturers Association (MMA), recognize Michigan manufacturers' positive contributions to the manufacturing industry and local communities.

"Jim Hater's commitment to the Charlevoix community and to the growth of manufacturing in northern Michigan is most impressive," said John MacIlroy, Michigan Manufacturers Association president and CEO. "We are pleased to recognize his accomplishments."

Hater, at the helm of Charlevoix Manufacturing Co. since it opened in 1978, has weathered the storm in the automotive supplier industry to grow his company from 23 employees to a high of 90 in 2006. Part of the company's success has been a focus on diversification. Starting with three customers in 1978, the firm now serves 22 businesses and has reduced its automotive business from 95 percent to 40 percent to ensure its longevity.

Hater was the driver behind the formation of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and City of Charlevoix Industrial Development Committee in 1983, which is tasked with attracting and retaining manufacturing business and jobs to the region, and has remained active to the present.

He is also on the steering committee of the Day of Caring, a community-wide day of volunteerism, and volunteers his time and funding to the Charlevoix school system.

"Jim is that rare individual who not only is willing to help out, but he picks up the phone and calls me to volunteer," said Gail Cherry, career preparation coordinator with the Charlevoix Public Schools.

Hater has hosted tours of his company for students, conducted mock interviews for high school students and participates in high school seniors' exit interviews.

Hater's Michigan Manufacturer of the Year Finalist award is one of five awards that will be presented to manufacturing leaders in this year's program.

The awards ceremony will take place in conjunction with the Michigan Manufacturers Association's CEO Forum at noon on May 8 at the Henry Center for Executive Development in Lansing.

Family filing

Julana Swidorski, daughter of Kim Swidorski, human resources director at Harbor Industries, did some filing during Harbor's "Take Your Kid to Work Day" Thursday, April 26 when Harbor employees with children ages 9-15 were invited to bring their kids to work for a pizza lunch and guided tour of the manufacturing facility. In addition, Way Transportation brought over one of their big rigs for the kids to climb in and blow the horn. A total of 14 kids participated.

John Fiegen named Beaver Island Citizen of the Year

Beaver Island's 2006 Chamber of Commerce Citizen of the Year John Fiegen (center) stands with chamber president, Kathy Speck, and executive director, Steve West at the April 28 awards banquet.

John Fiegen was named Beaver Island Citizen of the Year at the 6th Annual Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce Citizen of the Year award banquet on April 28 at Nina's Restaurant.

Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce president, Kathy Speck, read excerpts from a number of nomination letters that outlined the many ways Fiegen has helped the island community in years of service for the church, the St. James Township Planning Commission, the Beaver Island Community School Board, the Community Players and his giving nature to all who need a helping hand.

He was presented with a framed photograph of an island scene and received a tribute signed by Gov. Jennifer Granholm, Senator Jason Allen and Representative Kevin Elsenheimer.

After the official award ceremonies, the audience enjoyed a sneak preview of Vic McCarty's documentary on the island slated to air on TV later this year.

Charlevoix's Scott Plude clears a hurdle en route to finishing second in the 110-meter hurdles Monday at Kipke Field. Plude won the 300 hurdles as the Charlevoix boys won the April 23 four-team Lake Michigan Conference meet. Charlevoix also won the girls' portion of the meet.

Rayders sweep Rams at doubleheader

The Rayder softball team swept the Rams of Harbor Springs in doubleheader action on April 19.

Charlevoix won the first game 4-3 and the second, 14-1.

"We played very good defense and let that carry us until our bats started to come around. We played very well as a team the girls were very focused and upbeat for both games," head coach, Tony Zimmerman, said.

Amher Hoffman pitched the first game striking out one, walking one and allowing nine hits. On offense Hoffman, Desi Faust, Charisse Rogers and Lauren Mielke each singled in that game.

In game two, Desi Faust struck out eight batters, walked three and allowed two hits for the win. Offensively, Mielke, Sasha Spencley and Rogers had two hits each to lead the nightcap victory.

The Rayders faced conference rivals Kalkaska on Monday. While results from this game were not available by press time, coach Zimmerman said his team worked on defense and minimizing strikeouts at the plate to prepare for the Blazers.

"Kalkaska is always tough, they have a great program but I feel confident that if the girls come out fired up we can come away with a couple more wins," he said.

As it stands Charlevoix softball is 4-4 overall and 2-2 in league play.

SPORTS reviewing the action

Conference wins keep baseball in the league race

The Charlevoix High School baseball team tallied four wins moving into a tough week of three conference doubleheaders in six days.

The doubleheader madness started on Tuesday, May 1 with Kalkaska, continues on Thursday, May 4 when they face Elk Rapids and ends with Traverse City St. Francis on May 8.

"They are three of the top teams in our league and it will be a great measuring stick for us to see where we are at," coach Allen Telgenhof said.

If recent games against Harbor Springs and Ellsworth are any indication of how the team will tackle the tough schedule, wins are in the baseball program's future.

On April 24, they swept a doubleheader beating Harbor Springs 3-1 and 11-5.

In game one, Chris Waha threw the complete game allowing six hits, one unearned run and one walk and striking out 12. On offense, Charlevoix had only had three hits. J.D. Speigl doubled in a run in the second inning. Waha tripled and scored the go-ahead run in the fourth inning. And in the sixth, Jon Putman singled, stole second, moved to third on a bounce out then scored on a double steal attempt at home, for an insurance run.

In game two, the Rayders were victorious in securing a five-inning mercy rule win.

Danny Waldron threw the five-inning complete game allowing one hit, no walks, one unearned run and striking out six batters. On offense, Putman went three for four, with three runs scored and two RBIs. Waha hit a bases loaded triple and scored a run. Travis Jakeway doubled. Cliff Jones singled and scored two runs. Michael Heckendorn singled, stole two bases and scored two runs. And R.J. Moore had a two-run single.

The win streak continued on April 27 when Charlevoix beat Ellsworth back-to-back 10-0 and 21-7.

In game one, Ty Telgenhof pitched five innings, allowed no runs, four hits, three walks and seven strikeouts. On offense, Waha went two for two. Heckendorn went two for three with two RBIs. Telgenhof went two for two. And Putman doubled and posted two RBIs.

In game two, Charlevoix trailed 7-4 headed into the bottom of the fourth and scored 17 runs in the fourth to win it. 19 straight Rayder batters reached base in the inning.

Telgenhof got the win in relief allowing one hit, three strikeouts and no runs. On offense, Charlevoix had 16 hits as a team. Heckendorn went three for four, with two steals and 2 RBIs. Zach Scharenbroch went three for four with two runs and three RBIs. Waha, Moore and Waldron went two for three.

The wins against Harbor Springs brought the Rayders to 2-2 in the conference and keeps the team in the league race.

Lady Rayder soccer team continues winning tear

The Lady Rayder soccer team continued its shutout tear with two Lake Michigan Conference wins over East Jordan and Kalkaska and a third win over Traverse City St. Francis.

On April 27, the Rayders defeated the East Jordan Red Devils 8-0. The Rayders remained unbeaten overall and in the Lake Michigan Conference with that home win on Friday.

Scoring for the Rayders were Meridith Rich (2), both on unassisted corner kicks, Emily Foster, Marnie Greene, Tammy Potter, Olivia Catt, Becca Madison and Bobbie Molter. Assists went to Catt, Breanna Londgren, Rich, Madison and Elisaheth Drost. Greene earned Rayder Player of the Game honors.

Tammy Potter and Bobhie Molter combined on the shutout in goal with one save apiece.

The East Jordan shutout followed a 7-2 April 26 victory over Traverse City St. Francis.

Total assists on the night went to Becca Madison (2), Ramsey, Bridget Peters and Way.

Charlevoix, playing without several starters away on a field trip, started slow but regained composure in the second half led by Madison, who earned the Rayder's Player of the game award. Charlevoix received strong play defensively from Emily Foster at center back and keeper Potter who had nine saves on the night.

Marnie Greene, Rayder Player of the Game moves in to score against East Jordan on April 27. Center back Emily Foster provides support. The Rayders shut out the Red Devils 8-0. They also recently defeated Traverse City St. Francis 7-2 and Kalkaska 7-0.

Junior varsity players called up to fill in for the missing starters included Wilkinson, Elisabeth Drost, Rachel Boss and Bobbie Molter.

The St. Francis win followed an April 23 7-0 shutout against Kalkaska.

Charlevoix goals were scored by Madison (2), Ariel Ramsey (2), Lori Zimmerman, Catt and Londgren. Assists went to Zita Anderson (2), Ramsey (2) and Rich.

Potter earned the shutout in goal.

Charlevoix traveled to Boyne City on Monday, April 30. Results from this game will appear in next week's Courier.

The photos on this page taken by Charlevoix residents and visitors were submitted to the Charlevoix Courier for this monthly feature. Photos can be dropped off at the Courier office at 112 Mason Street or e-mailed to news@charlevoixcourier.com. Information about the photographer and photo, including when it was taken and a brief description of what is pictured must also be submitted.

Charlevoix resident and first ward Charlevoix City Councilman Lyle Gennett caught this U.S. Coast Guard training exercise in action on April 19 off Michigan Beach.

Courier Teen Scene writer Kim Way and her boyfriend Jeff Golovich set up a camera and caught a sweet moment at sunset on April 21 at the pier off Lake Michigan.

Richard Burnett of Charlevoix snapped this shot of Charlevoix resident John Doskoch on opening day of fishing season, April 28. Burnett helped Doskoch reel the fish in. It is a 38 inch, 19.4 pound lake trout he caught in East Jordan on Lake Charlevoix using an eight pound test line.

Charlevoix residents Brett and Ethan Siegwart visited the Ford Memorial in January.

Mark Winn of Eastport snapped this adorable shot of his adorable Yorkies. The male Yorkie on the left, Corkie, is too hyper to ride, but his sister Cassie loves to ride. You may have seen her walking her human on the streets of Charlevoix, nestled comfortably in a front carry pouch.

That's my photograph!

Red Rock Company brings marathon to town

RUN

This is the first time the established triathlon group has offered an event in Charlevoix. Most of their business is conducted in and around Tempe, Ariz. where Jeff, the company president, lives. Their largest event, which draws 2,000 participants, takes place in Tempe.

Ron said they were interested in locating a marathon in northern Michigan and after speaking with Jacqueline Merta, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, decided Charlevoix would be their host.

"Our goal is to grown into a triathlon. We're testing the waters to see what we can draw," Ron said. "I'm excited about being able to share northern Michigan and the beauty of Charlevoix with friends who have never seen Charlevoix. I think we are going to organize a great event for the City of Charlevoix."

The run will start on the north side of the bridge in downtown Charlevoix, will extend to Mt. McSauba, Pa-Be-Shan, Old Orchard Road, Waller Road and then on to the portion of the Little Traverse Wheelway that connects at Waller Road and U.S. 31. The full marathon will take runners almost to Horton Bay Road in Bay Shore.

Parents, coaches and students with Charlevoix High School track and cross country teams have volunteered to man aid stations at every mile along the route. The stations will be equipped with Gatorade, goo shots, water, pretzels and Cliff Bars.

The finish line will be set up at Pine River Lane. Winners will receive awards and raffle prizes, featuring items donated by local merchants, will be given away. Refreshments will be available.

A pre-event pasta dinner on June 15 at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church is included in the registration fee. Runners in attendance will give testimonials and Jeff with Red Rock will review the course.

Registration fees vary and include an official event T-shirt. Marathon runners who register before June 12 will pay $55, half-marathon runners will pay $45, 10K and 5K runners will pay $25. Registration will be available for $5 more in each category on June 15 outside the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Merta said she is looking forward to working with Red Rock and sees this event, which coincides with Taste of Charlevoix, as a perfect visitor draw for the community during the shoulder season.

For more information or to register for Run Charlevoix, contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101.

Who? Red Rock Company, a triathlon organizing group.

Boat overboard

According to the City of Charlevoix Fire Department, Douglas Bergmann of Bergmann Marine was hauling a 46-foot sailboat called "The Soaring Eagle" when it tipped over in the marine driveway off Loeb Road. The fire department assisted in uprighting the boat as did cranes from Irish Boat Shop and Bergmann Marine. The boat sustained an unspecified amount of damage.

Lisa Carlson

Dale (Bo) Boss is the new Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education member.

The 51-year-old husband and father of two won Tuesday night's election with 69.11 percent of the vote. Opponent, Lisa Carlson's 323 votes weren't enough to top the 725 votes Boss garnered from the 1,064 people or 14.3 percent of voters who turned out for the election.

"Overwhelmed," was how Boss described his feelings on winning.

"I'd just like to thank the community for all the support," he said. "I staked my reputation out on a limb and I think the people that voiced their opinion want to see change in how the schools are being led."

Though he has no prior experience in politics, voters responded to Boss' platform of fiscal responsibility and proverbial belt tightening in Michigan's tough financial times with overwhelming support.

"This is going to take a team effort between the board and the community," Boss said. "I'm just really excited and ready to roll up my sleeves and get to work on the board."

Boss said he feels fortunate to have had such a good opponent.

"It made me earn the position," he said.

There was one write-in vote cast in this race.

"I pledge to do my best for the kids of Charlevoix," said the longtime general contractor and manager of the Mt. McSauba ski area. "Feel free to contact me at any time with any concerns."

Carlson, a 38-year-old registered nurse, wife and mother of two said she is happy to have gained the experience.

"I didn't know what I didn't know," she said. "And, I'd do it again. I had

The first two of five candidates to be interviewed for the Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent position were evaluated before the school board on Monday, May 7.

Dundee Community Schools interim superintendent of one year, John Raab and Manistique Schools superintendent of three years, Esther Mudge, were each asked a series of questions posed by board and audience members.

Mudge's experience includes: 1975 to 1999 as a middle and high school teacher; 1999 to 2004 as the superintendent of Whitefish Township Schools in Paradise.

Raab's experience includes: 1989 to 1999 as a middle school principal; 1999 to 2002 as superintendent of Posen Schools; and 2002 to 2006 as superintendent of Elkton, Pigeon and Bay Port Laker Schools.

a very positive experience in doing this and I now appreciate more what teachers and administrators do."

To her opponent, she said, "I wish him the best of luck."

Carlson thanked everyone who supported and encouraged her during her campaign and said she will certainly run for school board again in the future.

"I'm very happy that I did it," she added.

In other races, Char-Em ISD candidates Robert W. Anderson, Jay Essenberg and Mary P. Jason each received 629, 684 and 661 votes in Charlevoix respectively in their uncontested races. There were four write-in votes.

On Beaver Island, Char-Em ISD Board of Education candidates Anderson, Essenberg and Jason received 110, 110 and 113 votes respectively.

In the Beaver Island Schools Board of Education race for two four-year seats, candidates Kristina I. Drost, Richard L. Speck and Gail M. Weede received 125, 101 and 120 votes respectively. Drost and Weede won with 36.13 and 34.68 percent of the vote respectively.

Millages:

St. James Township voters passed the proposal to renew .25 mills for the Beaver Island Historical Society passed 94 to 21 with 39.1 percent of voters turning out. This five-year millage is expected to raise an estimated $10,535 in operational funds.

The Charlevoix Public Schools operating millage proposal passed with 638 in favor or 60.88 percent of the vote. This two-year millage is expected to raise approximately $138,170 to help restore millage money lost as a result of the reduction required by Michigan Constitution of 1063.

The Beaver Island Community Schools operating millage renewal passed with 144 votes, a rate of 80.90 percent of the vote. 32.7 percent of electors found their way to the polls. This renewal, scheduled to last throughout 2007, is expected to raise approximately $1,302,000.

Online reward program for child support offenders launched

Sheriff George Lasater

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater, in conjunction with Charlevoix County Friend of the Court Office, will feature subjects on the Internet wanted by his office for failure to appear at a child support show cause hearing when warrants to arrest are authorized by the Circuit Court judge.

The sheriff will feature Circuit Court subjects on the Web site with a photograph, description, information and amount of arrears. This effort is being promoted to expedite Friend of the Court matters for financial support of children in Charlevoix County.

The sheriff's office will offer a reward of $100 to the citizen who submits information that leads to the arrest of the featured subject.

To access the sheriff's office Web site visit www.charlevoixcounty.org/sheriff

Those information on a featured subject, are asked to contact sheriff Lasater or undersheriff Don Schneider at 547-4461.

Kim Isaac's Mother's Day message

JUST A THOUGHT

Julie Witthoeft

As you stand in line at the buffet this Mother's Day mortified by your middle schooler double dipping in the chocolate fountain, remember Kim Isaac.

Kim is a 32-year-old Charlevoix native (maiden name Wojan) who has learned a life lesson many of us never grasp. She told me she realizes the importance of enjoying every day, blowing off the little stuff and letting your faith guide you.

This Mother's Day marks five months since Kim was diagnosed with gastrointestinal carcinoid cancer — a rare cancer that has also metastasized in her liver.

When she received the shocking news following a colonoscopy, her first thought wasn't the impact on her life, it was the heartbreak of leaving her kids.

As moms we struggle with balancing household chores, work and sleepless nights with tantrums, tears and hormones. But few have to face what Kim has had to tackle with Shelby, 12, and Hunter, 9.

Tears streamed down my cheeks as she explained the pain of deciding whether to pull away from her kids so they would cultivate a stronger bond with dad that will some day sustain them when she's gone or to hold them tighter because maybe, just maybe it would be her last chance.

"It's harder to parent when your sick. It's harder to be everything," she said.

When she said those three words, "To be everything," they resonated with me. Because that is what many of today's mothers, including myself, strive for. We try to be the homemaker, the bread winner, the teacher, the moral compass and the model wife. But in our pursuit for everything we often miss Kim's message — enjoy every day, blow off the little stuff and let your faith guide you.

Kim knows there is no cure and that while surgery in January removed the tumor in her rectum there is no guarantee as to how long she has here.

"Whether it's a year or 50 years, I have to enjoy it," she told me. "I just want to make a difference and be an example for my children. I'm grateful for what God has blessed me with."

Kim said this Mother's Day she will cherish her children, her sister, Tammy Thorp a mother of four, Kim's steadfast caregiver and best friend and her own mother, Diane Wojan, who is struggling with the thought of losing her daughter.

"We've walked this journey together," she told me of these special moms. "Instead of getting caught up in the busyness I'm going to sit back and enjoy it (Mother's Day)."

The truth is, we all face the same reality Kim faces, our own mortality. So let's take Kim's lesson with us wherever we go and not bother sweating over a ham or a Mother's Day frock doused in cocktail sauce. Let's kick back and cherish our babies, ourselves and this world's amazing mammas.

Those who wish to donate to assist the Isaac family in offsetting Kim Isaac's medical expenses may direct contributions to the Kimberly Isaac Benefit Fund at Charlevoix State Bank, 111 State, St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Global warming's quiet attack on syrup

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Can global warming impact syrup production That the earth is warming gradually can no longer be seriously in doubt. We may haggle about the causes for the warming and about the speed with which it is occurring and about its effect on humans but the earth is clearly getting warmer.

A single local warm spell in winter is not serious evidence of global warming, nor is a cold snap evidence that global warming is a giant hoax, no matter what Rush Limbaugh says.

It is worth noting that the best evidence for such gradual changes, hardly noticeable on the usual human time scales, comes not from our limited weather records, but from the changes in plant and animal organisms. Those plants and animals are full-time residents of the environment and are certain to respond to it more completely than we do. If we could just get the plants and animals to tell us what is happening, we might have a better grip on those slow lifetime-long changes.

As a botanist I have spent much of my adult life trying to get plants to tell me what they are doing. Skunk cabbages have told me how they are able to melt holes in the March snows by maintaining summer temperatures in the center of their flowers. Fungi have told me how rapidly they are able to turn a maple leaf into humus. It comes as no surprise that the sugar maples growing across our northern states are telling us something about global warming.

I collect a small amount of maple sap each spring and make about a gallon of maple syrup. This was not a particularly good year for maple sap gathering. Was it just a matter of each year being different, or was it part of a long-term trend?

Timothy Perkins, a researcher at the University of Vermont has suggested that global warming is the explanation. He says that in New England the sap collecting season now begins about a week earlier than it did 40 years ago, and that it ends about 10 days earlier than it did. That represents a loss of 10 percent of the total sap-collecting period in only 40 years. Others suggest that by the year 2100 there may be few or no sugar maple trees in the United States. They will have moved to Canada, where the climate will be more conducive to their growth and development. Of course trees don't move once they have begun growth. But the old trees will die and not be replaced by new ones, and all that tasty syrup and those red-gold hillsides will be a thing of the past.

It is easy to believe that global warming may not have much of an effect on us if we live inland from the rising oceans and are not directly involved in collecting maple sap or growing agricultural crops, but when the world changes profoundly, it changes everything for everyone. I would miss readily available maple syrup and the glorious colors of autumn. Maybe we should try to figure out what we can collectively do about the warming earth. Maybe, if we can do something about carbon dioxide emissions there will still be sugar maple trees in northern Michigan for our grandchildren to enjoy.

LETTERS to the editor

THREAT OF GLOBALIZATION

Editor:

Mr. Gohs, in the Wednesday, April 25 issue of the Courier, printed a very good review of the recent discussion of globalization at the library. I feel that the discussion at the library tended to present a favorable review past, present and future, of globalization. I invite all readers to examine the possibility that globalization has instead caused considerable problems for many and may cause more problems in the future if some regulatory moves are not made in our country.

Free globalization has tended to cause free International trade instead of the fair, equal and balanced trade which was presented as needed a decade or two ago. The free trade has led to jobs moving out of our country, whole industries beginning to be transported and lowering of wages for many who are forced to compete with the wages paid in other countries.

An adverse trade balance and American industry investment abroad has caused excess dollar flow into the world's financial exchange which risks troublesome lowering of the value of the dollar. In many ways it has even encouraged easy national borrowing whose interest and principal repayment may hurt our future generations. Some future discussions should examine new regulations of trade that may be necessary in our country for future fairness and balance.

GIVE ME SOMEWHERE TO SHOP

Editor:

They stress "shop in Charlevoix" but we don't need candy, sweatshirts or nifty gifts. We could however use a store where we could buy yarn and yard goods and notions.

The downtown is like a ghost town in the winter and a store like that would be a year-round business. At present one has to go to Petoskey to get these.

The summer people knit too and some even enjoy sewing. How about it?

At one time Kmart carried yarn and Oleson's had yard goods.

We are going overboard for tourists and neglecting our year-round people's needs.

THANK YOU FASSETT SUPPORTERS

Editor:

A very special thank you to Charlevoix Senior Center director, Earl Muma, and his employees, Steve, Trudy and Tony, for all their help preparing the spaghetti dinner for the Martin Fassett Benefit on April 21. What a wonderful meal. Thank you to all that donated all those delicious desserts, they certainly completed our dinner.

Another thanks to all of the volunteers helping all throughout the meal and at clean-up time. We couldn't have done it without your help. Thank you for your kindness.

Last but not least, to all the local businesses for your donations of door prizes we are greatly appreciative of your generosity.

Once again it shows why we enjoy and love our community. We are so fortunate to live where there are so many caring and generous people ready to always help someone in need.

THANKS VOLUNTEERS

Editor:

As we celebrated National Volunteer Week, April 15-21, the Friendship Centers' Retired and Senior Volunteer Program of Charlevoix and Emmet counties wants to recognize the tremendous contribution its volunteers make to our communities.

Volunteers generously gave over 48,000 hours to 110 local non-profit agencies during the past year. Senior volunteers work tirelessly to improve our communities and truly make a difference. We are very fortunate to have a dedicated group of men and women who fulfill the needs of the community. Many local non-profit agencies could not meet their mission without the assistance of the program's volunteers.

CONGRATS ON CRACKDOWN

Editor:

Congratulations to (Charlevoix County) Sheriff George Lasater for the crackdown of deadbeat parents.

My experience with the Charlevoix Friend of the Court over 20 years ago went well. My ex lived out-of-state and the court was very aggressive in pursuing him.

I've noticed in the last several years, however, the court hasn't done enough for parents raising children. Is it funds, staffing or something else?

When the deadbeat is living right under your nose, or pacifying with an occasional payment, there's a problem.

Wishing you good luck with this program and hope it makes a difference.

DUAL ROLE, BAD IDEA

Editor:

Charlevoix schools have an excellent reputation around the state. I am a resident of this area and I do not want the people of Charlevoix make the mistake of thinking that they can combine the two jobs of principal of the high school and superintendent into one job to save money. Both of those jobs are their own full-time responsibilities.

I should know, I tried to do both of them together last year for half of a year. I have been in education over 30 years and am currently the principal of Bath High School which is a school system approximately the size of Charlevoix (we almost met in the state finals in basketball this year) and last year through the unexpected death of the superintendent I did both jobs for half of the year. It doesn't work. There's too much to be done if you want both jobs done well. There aren't enough hours in the day some days to get one of the jobs done, let alone both. When I tried this last year, both positions suffered. I could not spend anywhere near the amount of time needed trying to run a high school and still deal with what the superintendent also had to do. I didn't have enough time if I was needed with the middle school, the elementary school, the staff, negotiations, the budget, the curriculum and everything that comes down from the state to do a good job of either position.

Your board president is correct. You might be able to try a combined position if you were a very small school system. He is also correct that you will not get the type of candidates for superintendent that your school system deserves if those people know that there is the possibility of having to do both jobs.

MINE LETTER RESPONSE

Editor:

In a letter to the editor published in the April 25 edition of the Charlevoix Courier, Wayne Seger, makes a vague reference to his being involved as a professional on the Wynkoop limestone quarry project and fails to disclose that he is listed as the project engineer.

Secondly, he writes that the Norwood Zoning Board of Appeals found the use to be legally non-conforming, but failed to disclose that Judge Thomas Power overturned the zoning board decision and placed a permanent injunction against using the property as a mining operation.

His claim that the opposition is "few, localized and loud" is refuted by the outpouring of support on a petition drive against this quarry. Over 150 property owners and neighbors from all areas of the township have voiced their opposition.

THANKS COMMUNITY INVESTORS

Editor:

On behalf of the board of directors of Char-Em United Way, I would like to thank the volunteers and donors who participated in our recent Community Investment Allocation Reviews.

Twenty-eight volunteers met over four days to review funding applications from 24 agencies. Thanks to board members Carol Scholten-Elcoate, Mark Gray, Donna Newton, Ken Pallagi, Steve Andreae, Joanne Curtis, and Sabra Hayden and to our Citizen Review Team members Cathy Brown, Dennis Halverson, Stacy Hammond, Kristi Houghton, Emily Meyerson, Val Meyerson, Heather O'Brien, Virginia Panoff, Robyn Rakoniewski, Pat Seagmen, Peggy Swenor, Barb Wotila, Amy Lalewicz, Dee Vincent, Chris Rice, Darsi Spencley, Glenn Wachler, Christi Struck, Laura Kemp, Jim Rudolph and JoEllen Rudolph.

We would also like to extend a special thanks to the meeting space and refreshment donors.

Thanks to our volunteers for helping United Way make a difference in our community.

SEXUAL ASSAULT AWARENESS MONTH

Editor:

April was Sexual Assault Awareness Month. This month is set aside to both honor the survivors of sexual assault and to educate our community about the crime of sexual violence.

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan is dedicated to this mission. In my position as community prevention educator I have the opportunity to work with approximately 1,000 teens each year. I witness first hand the many damaging myths and attitudes about sexual assault that confuse teens and cause them to unwittingly make choices that can hurt themselves or those around them. The following are some of the facts that shatter the misperceptions many teens and adults hold about rape and sexual assault.

Most sexual assaults and rapes are committed by someone who is known to the victim, not a stranger. Stranger rape gets the attention of the media and is what we see in movies. The reality is that the vast majority of survivors know their perpetrator.

Self-defense classes give women a false sense of security. Studies show that these techniques can actually cause more harm because if they fail, not only is the survivor dealing with the trauma of sexual assault, she may also think she did not defend herself properly resulting in even more self-blame and guilt.

Alcohol is the most common rape drug. With increased publicity about rape drugs such as GHB and Ecstasy, alcohol (legal and easily accessible) is often overlooked. Rape drugs are dangerous and people should be educated about them, however, teens are more likely to voluntarily drink alcohol. Alcohol is a powerful tool deliberately used by the per-

Operation Petunia prep full speed ahead

The City of Charlevoix Street Department crew was out in force last week and early this week preparing street-side flower beds for the 26th Annual Operation Petunia, a community-wide petunia planting party and picnic organized by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

The event will begin with the planting at 5 p.m. on Thursday, May 24.

The volunteers will plant five miles of petunias on both sides of U.S. 31 from the Charlevoix Municipal Airport to Mercer Boulevard. The planting will take about an hour and will be directed by block captains who will answer questions and give out picnic coupons good for hot dogs, chips, cookies and refreshments. The volunteers will also be given free treats from local businesses.

Volunteer planters should dress for the weather in comfortable clothes, wear garden gloves and bring trowels. Anyone can join in on the fun — just find a spot along the petunia route and dig in.

The picnic begins at 6 p.m. in Bridge Park. Local businesses will donate food, drinks, condiments and paper products.

Approximately 500 volunteers participate each year. Dale and Marilyn Boss water the five miles of petunias throughout the summer. The petunias cost approximately $13,000 per year.

Operation Petunia is funded by generous individual and business donations. They can be made to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Inc. and mailed to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, P.O. Box One, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

These baby petunias will soon grow to perfect Operation Petunia planting size and will color downtown Charlevoix's street-side.

MHSAA to honor local game officials

James Caldwell

Two long-time Charlevoix game officials will be honored at the Michigan High School Athletic Association's 28th Annual Officials' Awards and Alumni Banquet on May 12 at the Lansing Sheraton Hotel.

Randall Holecheck will be recognized for his 20 years of service and James Caldwell for his 30 years.

They are among 189 officials with 20 years and 127 officials with 30 years of experience, who will be honored.

The honor roll of officials who have aided young student-athletes has grown to 6,855 since the inception of the banquet in 1980.

The banquet will also feature the announcement of the 2007 recipient of the Vern L. Norris Award. The honor, named for the former Michigan High School Athletic Association executive director, will be presented to an official with more than 20 years of experience who has been active in their local officials' association, has mentored other officials and has been involved in officials' education.

For more information, contact Faye Verellen at (517) 332-5046.

Marilyn and Dale Boss receive Bob Miles Award

Courtesy photo

On April 26, Dale and Marilyn Boss were given the Charlevoix Historical Society's Bob Miles Award for Historical Research and Preservation in the Charlevoix area. They are shown above holding a cake frosted with a photo of the "Petunia Limousine."

The Charlevoix Historical Society honored Marilyn and Dale Boss, "Mr. and Mrs. Petunia," with a potluck dinner attended by 68 guests on Thursday, April 26 at the Charlevoix Depot.

The Bosses were thanked for their years of contribution to both the historical society and the City of Charlevoix.

Marilyn served as society president for three terms from 1981 to 1983. She has written many columns for the Charlevoix Courier on the town's past. For 21 years she clipped and transferred Courier items and photos into 37 binders that now stretch almost seven-feet on the society's Harsha House Museum library shelves.

In 1978, Dale was instrumental in obtaining the Harsha family residence on State Street for a permanent home for the society. He also helped construct the museum addition in the early 1980s. Dale is most well-known for spearheading Operation Petunia, a community volunteer project that every year beautifies Charlevoix with over 54,000 petunias planted over five miles on both sides of town along Bridge Street, Michigan Avenue and U.S. 31. He is regarded as Charlevoix's unofficial goodwill ambassador, appearing in numerous parades with his watering tanker, the "Petunia Limousine," all over the state.

Application deadline for Zonta Club's Feindt scholarship is May 25

Charlevoix Area Zonta Club is currently accepting applications for its annual Mary Feindt Memorial Scholarship, which awards a $500 scholarship to one female high school senior who will be attending college following graduation, and who plans to pursue a math or science-related major in college.

The scholarship recipient will be chosen based on financial need and her involvement and interest in the math and/or science fields not on her grade point average or academic record.

In order to be considered for the scholarship, the student must complete the Mary Feindt Scholarship application, submit a written essay and provide two letters of recommendation from a math or science instructor which confirms the student's involvement and interest in the math and/or science fields.

Applications are available at the counselor's office at all Charlevoix County high schools or may be obtained by calling Maura A. Snabes at (231) 547-9969.

The deadline for receiving applications is May 25 to the Charlevoix Area Zonta Club c/o Maura Snabes, Scholarship Committee Chairwoman, P.O. Box 633, Charlevoix, MI 49720. The winner will be announced at the Zonta meeting in May.

Zonta is a worldwide service organization of executives in business and the professions working together to advance the status of women.

OBITUARIES

Bill Nall: Died April 30, 2007

Bill B. Nall, 80, of Blairsville, Ga., formerly of Charlevoix and Melbourne, Fla., died Monday, April 30 at his home. Bill was a western Kentuckian, although he was born in Hamilton, Ohio, where his father was drilling a large bore city well.

He attended schools in several states before entering high school in Pine Bluff, Ark. He credited that outstanding school for having courses in physics and chemistry that made it possible, at age 17 to qualify for Navy electronics training. He became an aviation electronics technician after 11 months of schooling and flew voluntarily as a PBY crewman while at the Annapolis Air Base.

After service in the Navy Air Corps, he received an engineering degree from the University of Kentucky. He was accepted in Tau Beta Pi (engineering), Pi Tau Siga (mechanical engineering), and Sigma Pi Sigma (physics) honorary fraternities and graduated with high distinction. Almost 30 years later he received a master's degree from the University of Georgia, after completing Georgia Tech and Georgia courses.

He worked 39 years for Penn-Dixie and Medusa, companies that manufactured Portland Cement. He held engineering and management positions that included 18 years as plant manager in Clinchfield, Ga.

While in Perry, Ga. he was third president of the Perry Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Perry Methodist Church and later the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. He was active in and a commander of American Legion Post 24, and in 2001 transferred to Post 163 in Melbourne, Fla. He was a 56-year member of the American Legion. He was an active member in and president of the Perry Kiwanis Club, as well as Kiwanis clubs in Charlevoix, Lakeland and Melbourne, Fla.

He was a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers for over 50 years and was registered as a professional engineer in Ohio and Michigan.

After retirement from the cement industry he joined with Doug, Doug Jr., and Scott Way of Way Transportation in forming Northern Michigan Dust Control and helped establish reputations for environmentally sound and effective work in controlling dust from unpaved roads and other traffic areas.

He is survived by his beloved wife, Ida; uncle Jason Nall of Wingo, Ky.; brother-in-law, James Register of Ocala, Fla.; nieces, nephews, cousins, stepchildren, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Bill was preceded in death by his parents, Boyd and Willie Lester Nall; and a sister, Ella Register.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

Mountain View Funeral Home & Crematory in Blairsville, Ga. was in charge of cremation.

Catherine Hynes: Died May 2, 2007

Catherine M. Hynes, 78, of Charlevoix, formerly of Detroit, died Wednesday, May 2 at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

A memorial mass will take place at 11 a.m., Wednesday, May 16, at St. Francis Xavier Church in Grand Rapids, Rev. Jose Quintana will officiate.

Interment will take place in St. Andrews Cemetery in Grand Rapids.

Catherine is survived by her sisters, Margaret (Richard) Martin of Charlevoix, Bernadette (James) Whalen of Lombard, Ill., Mary Ann Hynes of Chicago, Ill., Jane Schneider of Grand Rapids.

The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is serving the family.

Jacqueline MacGillivray:
May 13, 1926 - May 4, 2007

Jacqueline P. MacGillivray, 80, of Charlevoix, and formerly of Vassar, died Friday, May 4 at her home in Charlevoix.

She was born May 13, 1926, in Flint, to Norman and Delores (Wilmot) Dennert. On July 14, 1945, she married Raymond E. MacGillivray in Flint, and he preceded her in death in 1994.

Surviving Jacqueline are her children, Raelyn MacGillivray of Bridgeport, Conn., Archie Lee MacGillivray of Bostwick Lake, Roger MacGillivray of Henderson, Nev., Karen (Jeff) Hourtienne of Clio, Dorian MacGillivray of Charlevoix; eight grandchildren, Dylan and Kelsey, Mitchell and Shannon, Meghan and Carly, and Molly and Raymond; and two great-grandchildren, Mac and Jayce.

Jacqueline was a good woman, wife and mother.

A funeral took place on Monday, May 7, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Rev. Nancy Rohde officiated. Interment took place in Glenwood Cemetery in Flint.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, P.O. Box 233, Boyne City, MI 49712.

petrator to make the victim more vulnerable to an assault.

Rape is not about sex. Rape is about the perpetrator's goal to control and over-power another person. Rape is a choice — a choice to commit a personal crime against another human being.

It is never the victim's fault if they are raped. Unfortunately we live in a society with victim-blaming attitudes and an undertone of belief that somehow a person deserves to be raped. The way a woman dresses or presents herself has nothing to do with being raped. Rape is a crime of opportunity and power, not desire.

Social change is a slow process. However, the awareness and education these students are receiving will give them tools to make positive choices now and in the future. These youth will soon be moving into adulthood and will have a major impact on social beliefs about sexual assault.

Gibson, Timms call it quits on city council

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Two of four City of Charlevoix government seats will be filled by new faces in November.

Last week, first ward Charlevoix city councilman Bob Timms and third ward council member Shirley Gibson announced they do not plan to run for reelection.

Their seats as well as those of second ward councilman Gene Beer and city clerk Carol Ochs have expired.

Timms, who is known for his penny pinching track record, beat former City of Charlevoix Planning Commissioner Steven Bennett in a close race in November 2005. He is ending his second consecutive term.

Bob Timms

"I've been on 23 years off and on. I think I'll let it slide this time. I'll let someone else try it," he said.

Gibson, who was first elected in 2001, said her leave from council isn't a permanent one.

"I need to take a break for a year or two. If the people want me back in a couple years, I'll be back," she said.

Beer said he is undecided at this time and Ochs said she plans to run again.

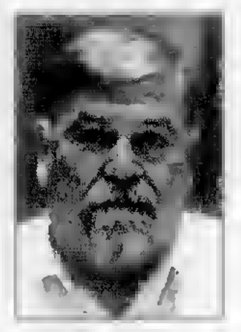
Shirley Gibson

Each of the four open seats carries a two-year term.

The deadline to file for the three Charlevoix City Council seats and the city clerk's seat is 4 p.m. on May 15. As of May 4 no one had filed to run for any of the vacancies.

If three people file for any single office, a primary will take place on Aug. 7 to narrow the field to two who will face off at the Nov. 6 general election.

Council members will take office on Nov. 19. The clerk will take office Jan. 2, 2008.



Gene Beer

Filing petitions are available at the Charlevoix city clerk's office at city hall. To be eligible, candidates must be registered voters in the City of Charlevoix and must obtain 25-40 petition signatures of residents in the ward in which they live. The completed petitions must be returned in person by the candidate to Ochs as eligibility also includes completion of an affidavit of identity.

For more information, contact Ochs at (231) 547-3250.

What? Shirley Gibson and Bob Timms, two of three members of Charlevoix City Council whose seats have expired, do not plan to run for reelection.

What will become of the open seats? Potential candidates must file nominating petitions by 4 p.m. on May 15.

What does petition completion entail? Filing petitions are available at the Charlevoix city clerk's office. To be eligible, candidates must be registered voters in the City of Charlevoix and must obtain 25-40 petition signatures of residents in the ward in which they live.

No decision reached on Norwood mine

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Wayne Wynkoop's proposed limestone mine in Norwood was given neither yea or nay during last week's two-day special meeting.

After more than seven hours of public comment, assertions by attorneys and experts amid allegations of impropriety and claims the meeting was held illegally, the Norwood Township Planning Commission opted to review the information further and reconvene at the tentative time of 6:30 p.m. on Monday, June 11.

"There is a lot of information to digest and we are going to submit some questions to the applicant," said planning commission member, Denny Way.

During the three hours of the Thursday, May 3 meeting, nearly 40 people spoke against the mine while four spoke in favor of the project.

"We wanted to make sure everyone who had something to say had a fair chance to speak," Way said. "We don't want someone to walk away and say, 'Norwood Township did not give us the chance to voice our opinion.' We appreciate everyone for being there. It's good to see people getting involved."

The applicant and his opposition made their respective cases during the more than four hour meeting on Wednesday, May 2.

Wynkoop's engineer, Wayne Seger, outlined the 25-acre project saying limestone found above the water table would be removed from the site, which will consist of a gravel pit, stockpile, scale, office and access roadway and that no violations, environmental or otherwise, have occurred.

Wynkoop's lawyer, Edgar Roy III, addressed several issues raised by the opposition including whether the meeting notice was valid, whether Wynkoop had a conflict of interest in his capacity as both township supervisor and special use permit applicant and whether the property's former owners retain the controlling interest on mineral rights.

Roy said the notice was valid, Wynkoop never appointed anyone to any public body and whether he had the controlling interest in mineral rights was not germane to the planning commission's duties.

"Who knows which judge may decide that issue, if it even becomes an issue," he added.

Roy addressed one of opposition group, Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety's biggest arguments, that mining is not an allowable use on Wynkoop's property, by citing the 2002 ordinance.

"Somebody decided, or collectively some board ultimately adopted, an ordinance that allows mining in the ag(ricultural) district," Roy said. "You mine gravel where you find it. This isn't a drive-in. This isn't a campground. This isn't the kind of use that you can pick up and choose where the gravel is mined."

He added, "The law gives special deference to mining operations. There have to be very serious consequence to preclude the rezoning of mining activity."

attorney Karen Ferguson told planning commission members they couldn't make a decision at the meeting because it was not noticed properly under the Open Meetings Act.

"We had people check at the township hall today and this meeting was never posted, so the bnsiness you conducted here tonight is illegal," she said. "When the court looks at proper procedure it can void the decision on these defects alone."

In the days following the meeting, Way said, "Our attorney looked at that and felt that was not a valid issue. The posting was done at the township hall."

Ferguson also told the commission they failed to disclose all personal and business relationships, communications and ex parte site visits they may have had with Wynkoop with regard to his project.

"When it comes to appearance of impropriety and conflict of interest, public perception is the key. When a supervisor sits on a township board, he has power of appointment over planning commission members," she said.

Pat Harmon, manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, testified that the stretch of Norwood Road from Wynkoop's property to U.S. 31 is adequate for large trucks hauling gravel, but indicated the road commission's inability to predict how much damage would be done over time.

"Norwood Road is unable to withstand 60 trips a day by fully loaded double bottom trucks weighing in excess of 40 tons," said Norwood resident Bill Gnodtke. "60 trips a day times six days a week, four weeks a month, for six months a year is over 8,500 trips on seal coated road."

Ferguson accused Wynkoop of voting against planning commission members who allegedly asked difficult questions of him concerning his project.

"We have asked for an independent planning commission, one that owes nothing to Mr. Wynkoop and we did not receive it," Ferguson said.

While he said he never visited the Wynkoop property, wetland expert and environmental consultant, Dr. Christopher Groebel, has concerns about what environmental impacts and what impact noise, dust and vibration may have on Wynkoop's neighbors if the project is allowed.

In addition, Groebel called Wynkoop's site plan, "Woefully inadequate."

Students fight for Uganda's Invisible Children

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

Nestled inside a sprawling cardboard box town in the parking lot at Chicago's Soldier's Field were four students with Charlevoix roots and a shared vision of a better future for the people of northern Uganda.

Mitchell Klooster and Nate Dube of Charlevoix met fellow Charlevoix High School graduates Jacky Heckendorn of Detroit and Nate Turner of Indiana in the Windy City on Saturday, April 28 to help fight a war that has plagued Africa's northern Uganda for over two decades.

They were four of over 5,000 people who gathered there for the "Displace Me" event. Similar events were held simultaneously that day in 15 major cities across the United States.

"We were all there for the same reason. It wasn't about us. It was about showing support and power in numbers," Klooster said. "We left our homes to bring them home."

For the past 21 years, a war has been waged between the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) and the Ugandan government. Klooster said innocent civilians are caught in the cross hair of the conflict.

"The government of Uganda has failed to protect its citizens from this rebel militia that has abducted thousands of children, subjected them to torture or sexual violence, and forced them to fight in a violent guerilla army. And while peace talks are currently underway to bring much-needed resolution to this humanitarian crisis, the most devastating aspect of this war still exists: The Internally Displaced Persons (IDP camps)," he explained. "People haven't seen their homes in 10 years."

According to information from the Invisible Children Organization, 10 years ago, more than 1.8 million Ugandans were forcibly evicted from their homes and transported to overcrowded camps which now face desperate conditions. Dependence on foreign aid, lack of food and water, alcoholism, sexual abuse, HIV/AIDS, inadequate sanitation and lack of education have caused immeasurable damage to two generations of northerners and the near-total destruction of Acholi culture.

"It's heartbreaking. When I was 5 to 12 years old, I was worried about lemonade stands and girls. 5 to 12 year olds shouldn't be worried about gunfire and where to get food — they shouldn't be scared. I wish they could worry about lemonade stands and girls like I did," Klooster said.

Nate Turner of Indiana, Jacky Heckendorn of Detroit and Nate Dube and Mitchell Klooster of Charlevoix, all Charlevoix High School graduates, met in the Windy City on Saturday, April 28 to help fight a war that has plagued Africa's northern Uganda for over two decades. The film highlighting the realities of the war, "Invisible Children" will be shown on May 10 at Charlevoix High school and on May 19 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

According to information from the Invisible Children Organization, today more than 1.5 million northern Ugandans remain far from secure, suffering nearly 1,000 deaths per week due to the inhumane living conditions.

The recent Displace Me event was an informational gathering that aimed to simulate a displacement camp which typically house 10,000 to 60,000 people each. Campers were allowed to bring only water and Saltine crackers which were confiscated when they arrived and rationed. Speakers from existing camps offered intermittent testimonials to bring their reality to the attendees.

They then sat down and wrote letters to Senators urging them to join the fight for Uganda's displaced citizens and engaged in a 21-minute moment of silence.

"It's a silent war no one really knows about," Klooster said. "These people are just as much our brothers and sisters as people in the U.S. — we can't just forget about them. It's not OK to let people suffer."

The Ugandan crisis has been brought to life for many Americans through the documentary, "Invisible Children," chronicling the experiences of three college students who visited there.

The Charlevoix Community Reformed Youth Group led by youth pastor, Ted Polleys, has organized two upcoming showings of the film. The first will take place at 9:30 a.m. on May 10 in the Charlevoix High School auditorium. The second is a community showing, fund-raiser. It will feature live music starting at 6 p.m. followed by a showing of the film at 8 p.m. on May 19 at Charlevoix Public Library.

"The whole idea is to be intentional, grassroots, one-on-one — getting people excited and asking questions about what is going on in Uganda. Giving them information," Polleys said.

The group has also organized a T-shirt sale campaign featuring a shirt with a picture of an Ugandan child that reads, "Ask me about Uganda." The cost is $12 each and all proceeds are directed to Invisible Children.

For more information about the Invisible Children video, organization or mission, visit www.invisiblechildren.com.

TEEN SCENE inside the halls

Students party night away at prom

Playing it safe at parent sponsored after parties

BY KIMBERLY WAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

For many, senior prom is among the few highlights in the four years that make up our high school careers.

Along with graduation, sporting events and homecoming, proms rank right up there.

At Charlevoix High School, prom night was Saturday, May 5 at the Bay View Inn in Petoskey. The red carpet themed event had many teens spiffed up for a night of fun. DJ Pink Noise provided popular tunes while students danced the night away on a decorated dance floor.

Many parents loaded with flashing cameras lined the red carpet that led to the main door of the inn. Pretending to be paparazzi, photographs taken were then uploaded to a power point that was played later on during the night.

Prom king, queen, prince and princess were voted on throughout the night as well. Guests were asked to vote for a male and female from the senior class for king and queen, and another male and female from the junior class for prince and princess. The lucky winners were seniors Ian Hughes and Erica Hedrick and juniors Cliff Jones and Omega Hang.

Students were properly supervised while attending the dance, but it's what happens after the last dance that gets students in trouble. BASES program director Celia Kelly visited the school for an assembly on April 24 to advise students of their possible consequences.

Kelly stated that alcohol is the only substance that numbs the brain, so when overdose occurs, emergency care is needed. She also warned students about the effects of using marijuana and the possible consequences that come with using the illegal drug.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office school liaison officer Rob Scholey also attended the assembly to advise students what would happen if they showed up to the prom drunk or high. If a student were to show up to the prom drunk, he or she would be given a ticket and would be sent/escorted home.

If a student were to show up to the prom high, he or she would be spending the night in jail because law enforcement takes that offense very seriously.

"Jail is not fun. It's not designed to be fun," Scholey said.

To keep kids away from this sort of mess, many parents provided after prom parties.

John and Zita Winn hired a hypnotist to entertain many students at their home Saturday night. Barney and Kris Way rented the bowling alley so that a maximum of 40 kids could hang out at a supervised location from midnight to 2 a.m. Greg and Denise White allowed their daughter to invite a group of friends to camp out in tents in their backyard. These three families are only a few of the supervised parties put together to keep kids out of trouble on prom night.

Efforts for the 2007 prom did not go unnoticed. The junior class put together a wonderful dance with appropriate decorations, and many adults helped keep teens out of trouble by providing drug and alcohol education and after prom parties.

Kimberly Way is the writer and coordinator of Teen Scene. This page will appear the second Wednesday of the month in the Charlevoix Courier. She can be contacted by e-mail at way_kim@hotmail.com.

Paying for fuel at the pump and post office

Stamp rates to increase on May 14

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

> "We spend a lot of money on fuel. It's huge for us"
> Blaise Rivers
> CHARLEVOIX POSTMASTER

The pump isn't the only place people will pay for fuel cost increases. The hike will also be felt at the post office.

Charlevoix postmaster, Blaise Rivers, said increased labor and fuel costs are to blame for postal rate increases to take effect May 14 across all mail classifications. All new rates are scheduled to go into effect May 14, except those for periodicals (magazines and newspapers), which are scheduled to go into effect July 15.

The Charlevoix Post Office employs 21 people and fuel costs account for 20 percent of their budget. Labor costs including retiree health benefits required by the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act, signed into law on Dec. 20, 2006.

With the price of regular unleaded in Charlevoix holding at $3.19 per gallon and nationwide having maintained an average of about $3 per gallon over the past year, businesses like the Post Office are making needed adjustments.

"We spend a lot of money on fuel. It's huge for us," Rivers said.

For the average Joe, the postal rate increases will mean a jump from 39 to 41 cents on first class mail weighing 1 ounce. This is letter sized mail and is the type of mail the local Post Office handles the most pieces of. Postcard stamps will increase from 24 to 26 cents.

A remaining unknown that will mean money for loyal eBay users is the Priority Mail rate increase. Rivers said Congress made a last minute decision to scale back the originally proposed Priority Mail increase.

He added that at this time he hasn't received figures outlining the amount the increase will generate in the first year.

The last time rates were increased was in 2005 when the cost of a first class stamp went from 37 to 39 cents. Rivers said the Post Office doesn't follow a two-year increase schedule but like any business has to respond to cost fluctuations as they come.

"(Rates increase) whenever we can no longer make ends meet," he said. "We don't survive on tax revenue, we are completely self-sufficient. No other government entity pays its own way like that."

Rivers said while the rate increases mean a higher cost for users, they won't mean better service. But he said an unrelated turn of events will improve service locally.

That decision was hiring of 20 new employees at the Gaylord Post Office mail processing facility where weekday Charlevoix mail is directed for sorting and distribution.

"That will be helpful. It's been an issue for us for some time. Because of a lack of staff their being able to get trucks to us in a timely fashion has affected my operation. I only have so many people and lost operating time," Rivers, who has been Charlevoix postmaster since 1998, said of the rectified staffing issue in Gaylord.

For those who don't want to face future increases or rate unknowns, the U.S. Postal Service is offering Forever stamps featuring a picture of the Liberty Bell that are 41 cents each and are good for first class mail forever, regardless of price changes.

Bible Baptist Church opens food pantry

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Hundreds of needy people a month have been served by a new food pantry in the Charlevoix area since Christmas 2006.

According to assistant pastor and manager of the Bible Baptist Church's Bread of Life Food Pantry, Philip Green, the people of his organization intend to serve even more of their fellow citizens this year.

"We started it because of the great need of everybody especially coming through the hard winter we had," Green said. "There were lots of folks in the area having problems with food and we also had people calling constantly wanting to know if we had a food pantry."

While the church has no benevolent fund for needy families, the parishioners have taken donations for those in crises in the past. However, Green said, with the new food pantry, people can be served any time.

"We get food monthly from the Manna Food Project in Petoskey, so we have a lot of food at the beginning of every month," Green said. "The first Thursday we have all the food set out in a large room for everybody to see and pick through from 5 to 7 p.m. and then the food goes into the pantry room."

He added, "They can set up an appointment to see food and get food — I had four appointments last week where people called and said we desperately need some food."

Hunger is an issue to which Green has no problem relating.

"When I was growing up we hardly had any food and if it wasn't for my grandma in North Carolina — she would send a box of cereal in the mail and load us up with food — it was a struggle seeing how my mom and dad handled the situation," he said. "Northern Michigan is so expensive with food prices and now gas prices going up, we'll help anytime somebody says they need help, we answer with food because it's the bread of life."

Though so many people seem to be hurting in Michigan's ailing economy, Green said any amount of help can go a long way.

"People could donate some time. People could donate some money to help us keep afloat because we don't charge anything for the food," Green said. "We give food out at no charge but everything is a charge to us. We pray constantly week to week that donations come in."

He added, "Donations are welcome and that is the reason we've been alive so far because some people have donated $10 here or $25 there."

Anyone in need of or wishing to help should call the church at (231) 547-4300 or visit the Bible Baptist Church located off M-66 one half mile south of K-Mart.

Charlevoix Zonta names Young Women in Public Affairs award winner

Jill Drenth

Charlevoix Area Zonta Announces Young Women in Public Affairs Award Winner Jill Drenth, a senior at East Jordan High School, was named the winner of this year's Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award.

The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award competition is designed to encourage women to pursue decision-making positions in their communities in order to impact the policies that affect the lives of women locally and throughout the world. The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs program looks to the young women of today who will be the leaders of tomorrow.

Drenth was chosen as the Charlevoix Area Zonta winner because of her involvement with her community, her focus on her career goals and her understanding of and involvement with global issues and cultures. Drenth has a 4.0 grade point average, is class valedictorian and plans on attending Saginaw Valley State University to study nursing.

Drenth demonstrates her commitment to the community through her volunteer work with the Jordan River Clean-up Day and a Vacation Bible School counselor and has been on a medical mission to Guatemala as a freshmen. She is also very involved in school activities, including National Honor Society, SADD, basketball and volleyball.

Zonta is a worldwide service organization of executives in business and the professions working together to advance the status of women. The Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award is one of the many programs for young women sponsored by Charlevoix Area Zonta. Applications for next year's award will be available from Charlevoix Area Zonta in late fall, 2007.

4th Annual "Taste of Charlevoix" – June 16

The 4th annual "Taste of Charlevoix" will be held on Saturday, June 16, from 11:00am to 4:00pm in downtown Charlevoix. Area restaurants and food/beverage vendors will showcase their specialties, along with local entertainment and activities for the children. Wineries from the Leelanau Peninsula and Old Mission Peninsula will be in attendance, as well as regional breweries. Musical entertainment will be provided throughout the event. The children's area features the Rayder Jump House and an inflatable slide, face painting, cookie decorating and more.

Zaccaro's Market to Open – June 15

Northpointe Food Ventures, LLC announces the opening of Zaccaro's Market at 221 Bridge Street in Charlevoix on June 15. "This market will be a way for us to test some of our signature items that will be showcased in our future Traverse City store, such as our amazing rustic breads, prepared food items and other private label sauces and tapenades. Cindy Warner, Managing Partner of Northpointe Food Ventures, LLC states: "We felt that the downtown Charlevoix market was ripe for such a venture with their expanded marina, recent Cool Cities designation, and long term growth initiatives. We want to be part of the fabric of the growth of Charlevoix as it emerges as one of the coolest cities in Michigan."

Sheriff's office offers seniors cleanup program

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is offering a cleanup program for senior citizens of Charlevoix County.

Sheriff George Lasater will be assigning county jail prisoners, supervised by the sheriff's office to assist senior citizens with raking and general cleanup of their yards.

This program also includes townships in Charlevoix County where prisoners may be assigned under supervision, to clean cemeteries, parks and other sites.

Sheriff Lasater advises only prisoners who are not a security risk to the community will be assigned to this detail.

The senior citizen portion of the cleanup program is funded by the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging Senior Millage Fund.

Senior citizens must call the Commission on Aging office at (231) 237-0103 to sign up for the yard cleanup program. Township officials may contact Sheriff Lasater at (231) 547-4461 for arrangements.

The realities of prostate cancer treatment

Ken Doty:
Living with Cancer

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

In part two of the series "Ken Doty: Living with cancer." Doty talks about how the disease is treated and how those treatments have affected him.

Doty said it is as important to be with a loved one when the doctor gives his prognosis as it is to ask questions and take charge of your treatment.

"I learned very, very soon you take somebody else with you," he said. "Someone with a clear mind to hear what is being said."

Doty said diagnosis involved some less than comfortable procedures.

"They stick an 18-inch long tube the size of your thumb up your (rectum). It feels like a rubber band snapping your insides when they cut samples off," he said. "All eight samples had cancer. I went through CT scans, a PSA, bone scans and met with doctors in nuclear medicine and a chemical oncologist."

Doctors then use various systems and scales to determine how aggressive the cancer is and how far it has spread.

A digital rectal exam will not reveal stage-one prostate cancer, but it will reveal stage-two cancer. Cancer is considered stage-three after it spreads from the prostate and stage-four cancer can be found anywhere else in the body, but typically in lymph nodes.

After Doty was diagnosed with stage-four prostate cancer in October, 2006, he didn't waste any time in getting ready for the treatment.

"I stopped drinking pop. I stopped eating McDonald's and Burger King and started on supplements, antioxidants and vegetables and went to drinking water to try and detoxify my body," he said. "I tried to get in the best possible shape I could, but the primary thing is the mental thing. You just have to go on."

Doctors gave Doty hormone therapy to lower his testosterone levels because testosterone allows cancer to grow and he was given EBRT (External Beam Radiation Therapy) where x-rays, other than those used to view bone, are sent into the body to kill the cancer.

"I go in and they gave me tattoos of little (lead) dots on my sides and front pelvic area that allow them to line me up between little laser beams," Doty said.

The dots allow doctors to adjust the treatment table so the radiation can be aimed exactly at the diseased area.

"A little over a week into it you're tired, there is burning when you go to the bathroom (and) loose bowels," he said.

In one of Doty's short journal entries amidst his 26 treatments he wrote, "Feels like I ate and drank Mexican."

Doty, who said, "It's nothing to wrack up $9,000 in a week," speculated that his five-year treatment period will cost between $150,000 to $200,000.

Doty's last radiation treatment was Feb. 28, but it took over a month for the pain to subside.

"Once I started the radiation, I lost my appetite and I have no problem sleeping for 12 hours, waking up for a few hours and then taking a two-hour nap, but the pain and symptoms have subsided," he said. "There is a myth that, because you have prostate cancer and surgeries, you become half a man — they're false. I've lost some hair and the hormones and radiation affect sexual performance somewhat, but I'm almost 50, I shouldn't be like an 18-year-old."

Constant trips to various hospitals and constantly feeling drained often presents problems for those trying to fight cancer while supporting a family, but lucky for Doty, the Charlevoix County Building Department is paperless and wireless which has allowed him to work from home when necessary.

"I could be sitting on the couch in my robe talking to a contractor (on the phone) and taking care of things," Doty said. "Without the county commissioners, that would be former commissioners as well as new commissioners saying, 'You've got the technology to make this work;' most employers wouldn't do that."

He added, "Everybody in the building department has stepped up to help do things, but that's the way this department is. We've always been like a family."

As a Michigan High School Athletic Association basketball referee for 29 years and a coach for more than 20 years for both Boyne Falls and East Jordan school systems, Doty wasn't about to give up his favorite pastime, so he hired an assistant coach out of his own pocket for days when he was simply to tired to coach the kids.

"The doctors themselves wanted me to continue coaching because they knew I'd be doing physical exercise," he said. "And that keeps the body going and that's what they want. They recommended that I not give up anything, but that I slow down."

He added, "(Coaching) gave me a purpose everyday. No matter what happens to somebody in life, you can continue to do things."

No matter what happens, Doty said he will go on.

"I plan on beating this and going on. If this stuff (treatment) doesn't work, we'll go on to the next options," he said. "I enjoy life too much to stop fighting."

Doty's advice for others struggling with the doubt this disease often brings: "Get it done. And then, if you have it, there's so many options for treatment. There are so many new things that are starting to come out — don't ignore it."

A positive attitude and strong faith are integral to getting through each day of what Doty called, "Watchful waiting."

"I wish I could change that (watchful waiting) to more wishing and wanting," he said. "Every little ache or pain you're questioning, 'Is this supposed to be this way? Am I supposed to feel like this?' because you just don't know."

This is the second in a four-part series entitled "Ken Doty: Living with cancer" that will highlight the realities of prostate cancer. Part three in the series will follow Doty as his doctors tell him how effective his treatments have been.

Entertainment guide, 'The Graphic' expands to 52 weeks check it out on the web:

www.thegraphicweekly.com

The Petoskey News-Review's 49-year-old arts, entertainment and culture guide has expanded to a weekly publication.

FREE
GRAPHIC

The Graphic has been a free weekly publication in the summer only, switching to a monthly publication in the fall, winter and spring. By switching to a weekly publication throughout the year, the staff hope to tap into the year-round market of visitors and residents.

It will also be expanding its coverage area to include much of northern Michigan, from Mackinac Island to Atwood and Gaylord to Charlevoix.

"We are excited to include the Gaylord area in our coverage and look forward to providing these readers with interesting, informative and entertaining articles," Graphic editor, Jeremy McBain, said.

In addition to this change, McBain said the staff will be adding many new features to the publication to further inform and entertain its readers. New features include stories on weird and unusual jobs called "Making a living," tips on getting the most out of your shopping trips called "Shop Smart," ideas on new food, drinks and activities to try called "Try This," as well as a greatly expanded calendar of events and music listings. It also will keep past popular features such as "Artsy," which focuses on the local art community, and "Hot Spot," which introduces readers to the happening spots in the area.

"This will be the publication visitors and residents will want to pick up when deciding what to do and where to go," McBain said. "It will be the entertainment bible of northern Michigan."

To further reach readers, The Graphic is also launching an online edition at www.thegraphicweekly.com. This site will include all of the popular features of the print edition of The Graphic, as well as video and audio clips, blogs and a full calendar of events for the entire area.

"This site will be a useful resource for readers that they can interact with while looking for new things to try and places to go in northern Michigan," McBain said.

To meet these expanded needs, The Graphic has also hired a full-time writer, Maggie Peterson, a December 2006 graduate of Central Michigan University.

Looking to the future

On Friday, April 27 Northwest Academy Kindergarten through fifth-grade students celebrated Job Day. They dressed up in the uniform of the career they want to do when they grow up, and shared with the other students what kinds of things they will do in their job. Some professionals from the community also came in to share about their job. (Left) Alicia Whennen, 5, looks through a leveler brought in by James Malewitz from Performance Engineering.

Strap on sneakers and join breast cancer battle

The 2007 Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk will take place this Saturday, May 12 in Charlevoix.

The theme for the upcoming walk, "Lend a Hand — the Factor of Five" encourages walkers and supporters of the fight against breast cancer to find five people they know who are willing to "Lend a hand" towards the walk's success.

There are a number of ways to participate including collecting contributions using a walker registration form available at Charlevoix County Chambers of Commerce, the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, Charlevoix Area Hospital, local health clubs and Prudential Preferred Properties' Charlevoix office.

Individuals are welcome to come out and show support by walking or by creating a team of walkers.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and the walk will follow at 10 a.m. leaving from Bridge Park in Charlevoix. Walk routes ranging from 2.5 to 5 miles will be offered. Refreshments will be served in the park at the close of the event.

In the past, this walk has raised over $100,000 for breast cancer research, and cancer victims through hospice, Charlevoix Area Hospital and Camp Daggett scholarships.

Five years ago it was decided that the money raised by the walk would be dedicated to local cancer-related needs and has been directed to the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund, which operates under the umbrella of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

The fund was started with money given in memory of Judy Edger who died of breast cancer in 1999. Edger was an enthusiastic supporter of the Sue DeYoung walk during the last years of her life and her name was added to the walk following her death.

Proceeds from this year's event will benefit Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency's Breast and Cervical Cancer Screening Program and Hospice of Northwest Michigan.

Individuals can volunteer their time with the walk organization committee by contacting Amy Salatino at 547-7663 or Nicole Kurtz at 330-6060. Both Kurtz and Salatino are members of the Sigma Phi Sorority's Kappa Sigma Chapter which is assisting in organizing the event.

Those wishing to make a contribution may do so by sending a check to the Charlevoix County Community Fund (CCCF), P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727. Donors are asked to print Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund in the memo line.

Corporations and individuals can also direct their contributions to the endowment portion of the fund. By electing to do this, a donor is eligible for a 50 percent tax credit as well as a charitable deduction on their federal tax form for those who itemize deductions.

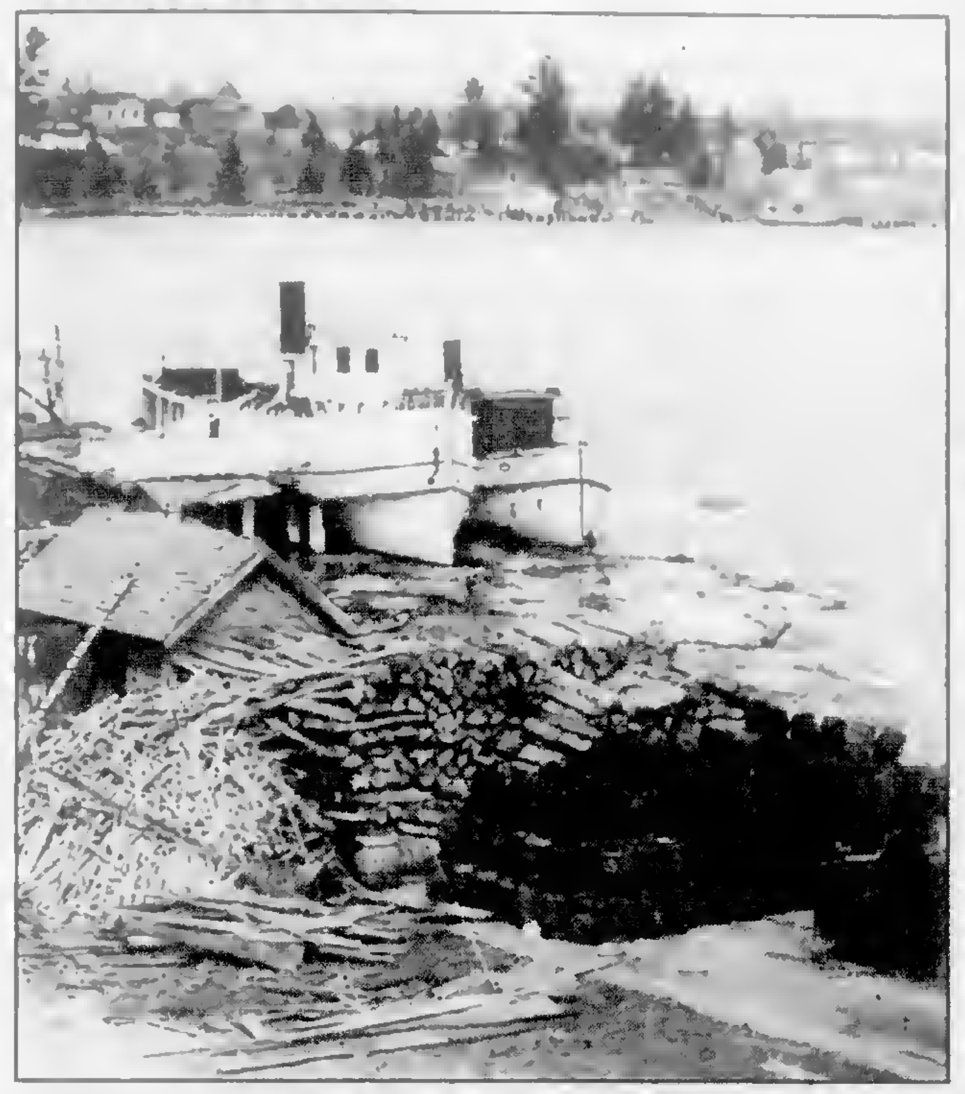
Marina FLASHBACK

In an effort to remind readers of how the East Park and municipal marina property have evolved, the Courier has teamed up with the Charlevoix Historical Society to bring readers a photo history of the property. This will run weekly in a "Then and Now" format with a picture from the past and the current construction schedule.

THEN...



(Left) The Mason Street dock is pictured at left in the early 1900s. Over the years, the Round Lake waterfront deteriorated as fishing declined and many of the smaller boats that had assisted schooners and passenger liners in and out of the harbor were not needed. More vessels became powered by steam and the passenger liners came to rely on themselves to get into dock. With reduced usage, many of the docks were not maintained, the waterfront began to rot and eventually a walk along the embankment became an exercise in avoiding broken and slivered planks, garbage, rats, burning trash and burrs. By the 1920s the Round Lake waterfront was a disgrace.

NOW...

Background

The $10 million East Park and marina renovation project is being tackled in three phases.

Phase 1 includes the seawall replacement, removal of the 17 existing piers, installation of new sheet pile running the length of the park 850-feet, and other miscellaneous work. Installation of the new docks, Phase 2, includes installation of a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220-feet into Round Lake at the furthest point. Phase three includes demolition of existing buildings and construction of the new performance pavilion and harbormaster's facility as well as site work, landscaping and underground excavation.

PROGRESS REPORT WEEK OF APRIL 30:

Curbs and sidewalks poured at Charlevoix Public Library marina overflow parking lot, gravel spread and compacted, density testing.

Took delivery of underground piping for storm drain.

Molon installed three of four storm outfalls.

Flotation Docking took delivery of concrete anchors and set them in the water.

Dock A (most northern dock) anchored and attached to seawall.

UPCOMING EVENTS WEEK OF MAY 7:

Installing concrete anchors in their position.

Pour base of asphalt at the library parking lot.

Remaining storm outfall at base of Antrim Street to be installed.

Molon continues installation of steel cap on top of the seawall.

This report was generated by Pat Elliott, City of Charlevoix Street Department superintendent. If you have any questions, please contact Elliott at (231) 547-3276.

Sheriff's office offers Boating Safety classes

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office will be offering Boater's Safety classes from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. June 2 at Charlevoix Public Library.

Those who currently have an on-line boating safety certificate, must take a proctored test and receive a state honored boating safety certificate. The state only honors on-line course completed certificates that have been verified by a proctored Michigan exam. Proctored exam time is from 7-8 p.m. on July 9 at the Boyne City Middle School and 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. on July 16 at the East Jordan District Library.

The class is free-of-charge and pre-registration is not required. Minimum age for class attendance is 12. Students should bring date of birth information with them for registration purposes. It is recommended that students eat prior to class or bring a small snack to class. Due to the short duration of the course, there will be no meal time. Students receiving a satisfactory test grade will receive their Michigan Boating Safety Certificate at the conclusion of the course.

Completion of this class is mandatory for individuals born after December 31, 1978 to operate a personal watercraft, for juveniles between the ages of 12 and 16 to operate a boat and for parents that allow their children between the ages of 12 and 14 to operate a personal watercraft. A parent must be riding with the child during operation.

For more information, call the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office Marine Division at (231) 547-4461 ext. 320.

Library offers Kathy Briggs' Fantasy in Fabric display

The Charlevoix Public Library is pleased to announce the display of "Fantasy in Fabric," a collection of art dolls created by local artist, Kathy Briggs.

Briggs, a Charlevoix art doll maker and art quilt maker, began her artistic career in 1997. Her work has been featured in magazines and books including "Art Doll Quarterly," "Soft Dolls and Animals" and "Doll Making as a Transformative Process" by Pamela Hastings. Her dolls have been featured in national shows. Briggs received the Best of Show award at the Jekyl Island Doll Symposium in 2000 for her doll "Question of Time." Her dolls have also been a part of the Hoffman Challenge Traveling Collection.

The colorful fabrics, combined with the whimsical features of the dolls create a lively exhibit.

"Her dolls are quirky, happy and bring a sense of joy to everyone looking at them," said Val Meyerson, director of the Charlevoix Public Library.

Briggs began putting small dolls on quilts in 2000, and this combination of art media culminated in a large wall quilt that included two 30 inch dolls. The quilt is titled "Mardi Gras Masquerade" and the dolls are "Harlequin" and "Jester." This quilt was chosen to be part of the exhibit at the Houston International Quilt Show in 2005, and is a creation made in tribute to the memory of New Orleans before Katrina.

Briggs teaches doll-making classes at local quilt shops and on-line. Fantasy in Fabric will be on display through mid-June at the Charlevoix Public Library, located at 220 West Clinton St. in downtown Charlevoix and is open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

For more information, call (231) 547-2651.

The works of Charlevoix resident Kathy Briggs (above) featured at the Fantasy in Fabric display will be on display through mid-June at the Charlevoix Public Library, located at 220 West Clinton St. in downtown Charlevoix and is open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Relay for Life kick-off celebration is May 10

Are you ready to Relay? Charlevoix County residents will kick off the 2nd Annual American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Charlevoix County at 6 p.m. on May 10 at the First Presbyterian Church Fireside Room, located at 207 Williams St. in East Jordan.

Residents are invited to attend the kick-off celebration to learn more about Relay For Life and how they can become part of an exciting 24 hours that can lead to a cure for cancer.

The Relay For Life of Charlevoix County will take place on Aug. 11 and 12 at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

Relay For Life is the society's signature event, dedicated to increasing awareness and raising funds to fight cancer. Teams of family, friends and co-workers camp out for 24 hours, taking turns walking the track. Each team is asked to have a representative on the track at all times, a reminder that cancer never sleeps.

The event includes entertainment and family activities, an inspiring victory lap by survivors and a poignant luminaria ceremony at dusk that remembers those that have faced cancer.

Jackie Letts qualifies for President's Council Award

Jackie Letts

Jackie Letts, a Chartered Benefit Consultant, with Bingham Insurance Services in Charlevoix, has qualified to receive the President's Council Award from the Leading Producers Round Table of the National Association of Health Underwriters.

The President's Council Award is given to individuals who have demonstrated professional excellence in the sale of health and disability income insurance and sales management.

Letts joined Bingham Insurance Services on Jan. 1 and specializes in employee benefits. In addition to qualifying for the President's Council Award, she recently attended the National Association of Health Underwriters Capitol Conference in Washington DC. This is an annual meeting where association members from across the country gather to meet one-on-one with Senators and Congressmen to discuss current and upcoming legislation with regard to the health insurance industry.

"We all know our health care system is in need of reform," Letts said. "I'm proud to play a part in making sure the voice of small employers is heard as those changes are being discussed and considered by our legislators."

For more information, contact Bingham Insurance Services at (231) 547-4062.

St. Marys Cement receives environmental award

St. Marys Cement Inc. cement plant in Charlevoix received the Overall Environmental Excellence Award from the Portland Cement Association (PCA) and Cement Americas magazine as part of the 2006 Cement Industry Energy and Environment Awards. The award was presented at Portland Cement Association's spring meeting in La Jolla, Calif.

On March 19, St. Marys Cement Inc. cement plant in Charlevoix received the Overall Environmental Excellence Award from the Portland Cement Association (PCA) and Cement Americas magazine as part of the 2006 Cement Industry Energy and Environment Awards. The award was presented at Portland Cement Association's spring meeting in La Jolla, Calif.

Portland Cement Association presents the Overall Environmental Excellence Award to a plant demonstrating merit in multiple categories including outreach, environmental performance, land stewardship, innovation and energy efficiency.

In addition to accepting this honor, the plant was also a runner-up in the Land Stewardship and Outreach categories.

In 2006, the plant installed a new indirect firing system that reduced both fuel consumption and emissions. The plant also replaced power plant fly ash with on-site shale, overburden and purchased bottom ash to reduce mercury emissions. Close to a residential area, the facility conducted a noise study that lead to the design and installation of silencers resulting in less noise for the surrounding community. Working with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, St. Marys maintained a fish-stocking program for the Chinook salmon fingerlings and worked to encourage the regional resurgence of the bald eagle by constructing nesting platforms on its property. In 2006, the plant launched a local newsletter to inform the local community about environmental projects at the plant.

The Cement Industry Energy & Environmental Awards honor individual cement facilities that exemplify the spirit of continuous environmental improvement and support this spirit with action. These plants go beyond government regulations and local laws to ensure that their processes contributed to making their communities better places to live and work.

"Cement companies take very seriously their responsibilities to towns where their employees and customers live," said Charlie T. Sunderland, Portland Cement Association chairman and CEO of Ash Grove Cement Company. "The awards program recognizes these ongoing efforts to continuously challenge manufacturing policies and procedures to minimize our environmental footprint."

A presentation will take place in Charlevoix later this spring.

The awards program was created in 2000 by the Portland Cement Association as part of its renewed environment and energy strategic plan for the U.S. cement industry.

Don Jess joins Charlevoix Insurance Agency Inc.

Don Jess

Don Jess, a resident of Charlevoix since he was three years old, has joined the Charlevoix Agency Inc., agency president Don Voisin announced this week.

Jess, a standout athlete at Charlevoix High School, graduated in 1994. He attended Alma College and graduated in 1998 with a degree in business administration and a major in accounting. While at Alma, he was business club president, fraternity treasurer and participated in football, basketball and track.

In 2003, Jess was hired as the Charlevoix High School varsity football coach. The team qualified for the state playoffs in both 2005 and 2006.

In April 2007, Jess became licensed by the State of Michigan as a property and casualty insurance agent. He will represent all the companies of the Charlevoix Agency Inc.

Married, Jess and his wife Jennifer have one child, Brady. Jennifer is an elementary teacher in the Petoskey school system.

Family interests include hunting, fishing, camping, golfing and all types of coaching.

For more information, contact Jess at (231) 547-4441. Charlevoix Agency Inc. is located at 112 Clinton St. in downtown Charlevoix.

Northpointe Food Ventures to open Zaccaro's Market at 221 Bridge St.

Who? Northpointe Food Ventures, LLC, owner/operator of The Boathouse and J&S Hamburg in Traverse City and Village Inn Pizza in Charlevoix.
What? Opening Zaccaro's Market.
When? June 15
Where? 221 Bridge St. in Charlevoix, the former site of Seasons.

Northpointe Food Ventures, LLC, owner/operator of The Boathouse and J&S Hamburg in Traverse City and Village Inn Pizza in Charlevoix, recently announced that they have leased space at 221 Bridge St. in Charlevoix for a Zaccaro's Market that will open on June 15.

"This market will be a way for us to test some of our signature items that will be showcased in our future Traverse City store, such as our amazing rustic breads, prepared food items and other private label sauces and tapenades," Cindy Warner, managing partner of Northpointe Food Ventures, LLC said. "We felt that the downtown Charlevoix market was ripe for such a venture with their expanded marina, recent Cool Cities designation and long-term growth initiatives. We want to be part of the fabric of the growth of Charlevoix as it emerges as one of the coolest cities in Michigan."

Northpointe is still on track for a late 2007, early 2008 relocation of J&S Hamburg and opening of its Traverse City Zaccaro's Market and initial Assaggio Wine Bar and Kitchen.

Rayder baseball wins three of four in doubleheader play

The Rayder baseball team won three of four important games last week to bring the team to 9-5 overall and 5-3 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

The winning week started on May 1 with a doubleheader against Kalkaska.

"Kalkaska has been one of the top teams in our league for years and they made it to the final four just last season. Winning two against them was a good step forward for our program," coach Allen Telgenhof said.

In game one of the Kalkaska match-up Charlevoix scored 18 runs in the first inning and had a three-inning mercy rule. The final score was 21-1.

Chris Waha was the winning pitcher, throwing three innings, allowing one run and earning four strikeouts.

"The guys played extremely well. That first inning was unbelievable. We had just scored 17 runs in an inning against Ellsworth and in our very next inning, we scored 18," Telgenhof said.

The second game was a closer match-up with Charlevoix shutting out Kalkaska 3-0. Danny Waldron threw the no-hitter, only one batter reached base and that was on an error. Coach Telgenhof said this was his team's best defensive game of the year.

Charlevoix scored one run in the first inning when Cliff Jones singled, stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on a Waha sacrifice fly. The Rayders scored two insurance runs in the fifth on a Danny Waldron single sandwiched around a couple of Kalkaska errors.

The team faced Elk Rapids May 3 splitting the doubleheader.

In game one, Elk Rapids shut Charlevoix down 2-0.

Charlevoix managed only five hits and were hurt by three runners being picked off at first base. Waha pitched well but suffered his first loss of the season.

Charlevoix rebounded to win game two, 6-3.

The Rayders trailed early but scored two in the third, three in the fourth and one in the sixth for the win.

Jon Putman, started and was the winning pitcher. Waha pitched a scoreless sixth inning to get the save and struck out three batters in the one inning of work.

"We hated to see our eight-game winning streak end in game one but the guys responded, coming back in game two to hopefully start a new streak," Telgenhof said. "I was very impressed with the way Nic Williams swung the bat. He drove in two big runs in the fourth inning and then scored an insurance run for us in the sixth in game two. I am also very happy with the way Clayton Mitchell has been playing for us. He's new to the varsity, being just brought up as a freshman and thrown into conference play but he's responded nicely."

On Monday, May 7 the Rayders faced Traverse City St. Francis who hold first place in the Lake Michigan Conference.

"The key will be our bats. Do we score runs like we did against Kalkaska or do we struggle like we did against Elk Rapids?" coach Telgenhof said.

Results from this doubleheader were not available by press time.

Softball team takes two of four

The Rayder softball team took home two wins in four games they played on May 1 and 3.

The team split with Lake Michigan Conference rival Kalkaska in doubleheader play on May 1.

In the first game Kalkaska shut down the Rayders winning 10-0. But the defeat didn't kill the Rayder attack and Charlevoix came back to win 5-4 in game two.

"The first game we did not play well at all we came out flat and that was the difference. We made some mistakes and did not hit the ball well at all. The second game we were down 3-0 and fought our way back for the 5-4 victory," coach Tony Zimmerman said.

Against Kalkaska, Sasha Spencley and Caitlyn Mitchell had two hits each. Desi Faust and Leah Kelly each had a hit. Faust was the winning pitcher in game two striking out five, allowing six hits and three walks. Amber Hoffman was the losing pitcher in game one she struck out four, gave up eight hits and walked one.

The Lady Rayders went on to split the doubleheader May 3 against Elk Rapids.

The Elks won the first game in seven innings 7-6 and the Rayders won the second game 13-3.

"In the first game we played good defense but we did not come out fired up and did not hit the ball very well. We played catch up before going into the top of the sixth were we tied it up 4-4 and then took the lead in the seventh 6-4 but could not hold Elk Rapids and they won 7-6," Zimmerman said. "The girls knew we let the first game slip away and they were not going to allow that to happen in game two. We played very aggressive and did not let up at all. The girls wanted that win bad and they worked hard and earned it."

In the first game Ericka Faust had two hits while Desi Faust and Janay Drost each singled. Desi Faust was the losing pitcher in game one. She allowed eight hits, walked one and struck out three.

Headed into play this week against Traverse City St. Francis, Zimmerman said his team needs to increase its intensity and focus.

"I expect us to very focused and ready for this contest. They are a good team and we will have to be ready to go and play solid defense and be aggressive at the plate to come away with a couple of wins," he said.

The Lady Rayder softball team is 6-6 on the season and 4-4 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Stingrays Swim-a-thon

The Charlevoix Stingrays swim team recently completed their semi-annual Swim-a-thon. Team members participated by swimming a set number of lengths within a one-hour time frame and collecting pledges for their efforts. Pledge money is used for swim team scholarships, team equipment and to offset meet costs. Chrystal Schemanski, 15, swam 150 lengths in one hour and Anna Voci, 11, (pictured above), raised a team high $391. For more information about the Charlevoix Stingrays swim team, call the pool at (231) 547-0982.

Soccer scores two wins to remain undefeated

The Lady Rayder soccer team earned two more shutout victories last week to remain undefeated in the season.

The winning week began on April 30 when Charlevoix faced Boyne City and won 1-0 in overtime.

Boyne City keeper Lindsey Baic turned away 36 shots before the Rayders finally broke through in overtime to remain unbeaten. The Ramblers were packed in the penalty box and played strong defense in making Charlevoix's shots predictable for their keeper. Boyne managed only four attempts on the night and were turned away by Rayder keeper Tammy Potter.

All-stater Becca Madison broke through the Boyne wall and fired a rocket at Baic who deflected the ball to waiting Rayder Olivia Catt who ended the match burying the ball into the net. Catt earned Rayder Player of the Game honors for her efforts.

They followed the Rambler defeat with a 2-0 May 3 win over the Elks of Elk Rapids. The Rayders improved to 8-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference and overall with the home win over Division 3 Elk Rapids.

Charlevoix opened the scoring 20 minutes into the game. Potter sent a punt well past midfield (60-70 yards) which was missed by the Elk's defensive line. Catt took advantage of the situation and scored on a breakaway. With just three minutes remaining in the first half, the Elks were called for a foul on their defensive 20. Ariel Ramsey touched the ball for the assist on the indirect kick as Madison buried the shot in the net.

Charlevoix had the better of play throughout the night, managing 19 shots to the eight saves made by Potter in the win. The Rayders controlled the midfield with outstanding play from KC McCary, Madison and Zita Anderson. Coach Tom Conlan said Charlevoix's defensive effort was perhaps the best of the season to date, led by center back Emily Foster and senior Teresa Potter. Foster earned Rayder Player of the Game honors, turning back numerous breakaway attempts by the Elk Rapids strikers.

The Rayders have a busy week, having traveled to East Jordan on Monday, May 7, hosting a strong Suttons Bay team on Tuesday and gearing up for conference rival Harbor Springs on Thursday.

Boys' track claims first, girls' second at Heidi Steiner meet

Darron Munson

Charlevoix's Darron Munson won three individual events and Boyne City's Nathasha Bell won two as each earned their respective Athlete of the Meet Awards Monday, April 30 at the 16th Annual Heidi Steiner Memorial Track and Field Meet at Bellaire High School.

Munson won the 400- and 200-meter dashes and the long jump in leading the Charlevoix boys to first place with 144 points. Kingsley, 107, was second, while Traverse City St. Francis, 105; Bellaire, 75.5; and Suttons Bay, 74; rounded out the top five.

Bell won the girls' 100 and 200, setting one meet record and tying the other, as she earned the Division III Female Athlete of the Meet Award. Munson was named the Division III Male Athlete of the Meet Award.

Munson, a senior, won the 200 in 22.96 seconds, the 400 in 51.80, and the long jump with a leap of 18 feet, 9 inches.

Bell, a sophomore, won the 200 in a meet-record 26.86 seconds, and she took the 100 in 12.72, tying the meet mark.

St. Francis won the girls' team title with 130 points, followed by Charlevoix, 125; Boyne City, 89; Kingsley, 82; and East Jordan, 73.

The Charlevoix boys also got victories from Ray Jones in the shot put, Nick Wimmer in the 3200, Jacob Wimmer in the 800, and from its 800 relay team.

Charlevoix also won the co-ed 1600 and 3200 relays.

The Charlevoix girls got victories in the 400 relay and from Katie Withrow, 400; Emily Heffling, 300 hurdles; Alina Dhaseleer, 3200; and Alyssa Smith, long jump.

Local wrestler takes state honors

Zeke Daman, a sophomore at Charlevoix High School, placed third at the Michigan USA Wrestling State Freestyle Tournament on Saturday, May 5 at the Kellogg Arena in Battle Creek.

Daman was 4-1 entering the final round, with all of his wins by tech. With 18 wrestlers competing in the 119 Cadet bracket, the competition was intense.

SPORTS reviewing the action

Rayder tennis team falls 6-3 to Rams

The Rayder tennis team fell to Lake Michigan Conference rival Harbor Springs 6-3 on May 3.

Coach Erik Lundteigen said the team has been plagued by weather related cancellations. He's hoping for consistent, stable weather as the team heads into post-season play.

"We really need the practice. We need to get the most out of each practice," he said.

Individual results were:

- First, singles: Dan Swenor lost to Harbor Springs 6-0, 6-0.
- Second, singles: Ty Haske lost to Harbor Springs 6-3, 6-3.
- Third, singles: Weston Bryan lost to Harbor Springs 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.
- Fourth, singles: Alex McKenzie lost to Harbor Springs 6-0, 6-3.
- First, doubles: Justin Klooster and Trevor Mays lost against Harbor Springs 6-4, 6-3.
- Second, doubles: Brad Cyr and Kris Bartling won against Harbor Springs 6-2, 6-2.
- Third, doubles: Alex Molter and Collin McDonough won against Harbor Springs lost 6-1, 7-5.
- Fourth, doubles: Taylor Witthoeft and Kevin Greyerbiehl lost to Harbor Springs 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.
- Fifth doubles: Scotty Silberhorn and Thomas Parrish won against Harbor Springs 6-1, 6-0.

Applications for Ferris State golf camp scholarship due May 13

Several lucky golfers that participated in the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association's 2006 summer program will be awarded scholarships to attend the prestigious golf camp at Ferris State University this summer.

Dean Davenport, executive director of the popular summer program, announced that the association's board members approved renewing the scholarship program with Ferris State University. Awards will be made to five deserving golfers for scholarships enabling them to spend a week on the campus of Ferris State. Applicants must have participated in more than half of the past summer's sessions and be at least 12 years of age to be eligible. Applications are due by May 13.

Application packets were mailed recently to over 50 youngsters who qualified for consideration. Winners are selected because of their dedication and interest in golf, their potential and the manner in which they respond to the official application questions.

During the past eight years, 78 junior golfers from the Charlevoix area have been awarded scholarships.

Local PGA professional from the Belvedere Golf Club, Steve Braun again added greatly to the camp scholarship fund by taking pledges for his "100 Holes in a Day" fund-raiser last fall.

Dennis LaCroix, board president, said, "Steve's effort is greatly appreciated by all of us connected to the program. His dedication and interest in young golfers is typical of the excellent cooperation we get from everyone including the courses that host our golfers: Dunmaglas, Antrim Dells, the Belvedere, Municipal and the Charlevoix Country Club."

Last year, after the six-week program, two scholarships were awarded to deserving juniors who displayed outstanding character and provided younger golfers a good role model. The scholarships allowed them to attend the popular Boyne Academy in early August. Plans are to repeat this new scholarship program this year.

More information regarding this year's Junior Golf Program and the June 11 registration process will be announced soon.

Tip of Mitt offers Boat Smart course on May 8, 15 and 22

The Tip of the Mitt Power Squadron is offering a "Boat Smart" course in Charlevoix.

The course will feature fundamentals and safe practices for boat owners and their families and will involve practical boating information covering docking, rules of the road, important knots, emergencies, state and federal regulations, radio procedure, anchoring, trailers, rough weather techniques and an overview of other related topics.

The classes will take place from 7 to 9 p.m. on May 8, 15 and 22 at the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

Three interviews remain in super search

SUPER

A few of the questions asked include:

HOW WOULD YOU ESTABLISH STRONG PARTNERSHIPS BETWEEN THE SCHOOL SYSTEM AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT, BUSINESSES AND THE COMMUNITY IN GENERAL?

Mudge: She worked on a building project which had "gone awry" and opened the lines of communication in Manistique because, "Relations had deteriorated between community leaders and the schools."

Raab: "One of the things a superintendent needs to do is be visible, not only in the schools but also visible in the community and involved in the community."

Raab has held positions in the various communities in which he worked as a city council member, housing commission member, planning commission member, Rotary, Lions Club, chamber of commerce and churches.

WHERE DO YOU SEE YOURSELF IN FIVE TO 10 YEARS?

Mudge: "In 10 years I see myself wintering in Florida. Frankly, I could retire. I'm not ready to retire. I like my job. I like working in education. It's what I know."

Raab: "I hope I'm still in education and I see myself being part of the community."

HOW WOULD YOU BRING BUDGET REDUCTION STRATEGIES TO THE SCHOOL BOARD?

Mudge: "We need to keep those necessary cuts as far away from the children as (possible). Districts are often accused of balancing the budget on the backs of one particular group or one particular organization and you can't do that. It's very painful. We've been doing that for many years now and we've made cuts — it's very difficult to make half a million dollar cuts for several years."

Mudge said her district has cut nearly 10 percent of administration costs and has been forced to fire employees the district couldn't afford to keep.

Raab: "I've had a variety experience with budget reductions, unfortunately. Not only budget reductions because of less money being received, but in different districts have had student enrollment drop which caused even more reductions in the budget. When you look at budgets, you want to look at what cuts will least affect students and that has been my philosophy."

Raab said he has looked at combining administrative positions, cutting costs by shopping around for materials, comparing insurance costs and asking for input from teachers and school employees.

HOW WOULD YOU TAKE ADVANTAGE OF CHARLEVOIX SCHOOLS' RESOURCES AND HOW WOULD YOU GARNER ADDITIONAL RESOURCES?

Mudge: "We just traveled to Newberry to see how they did their food (program) and we came back with ideas to increase our lunch profits by at least $15,000. That was very exciting.

Mudge also said grants can be written to entice performing arts groups to the district and that the auditorium should be used as often as possible and for more than simply school events.

Raab: "We've looked at everything from charging more for our sports programs — we upped ticket prices within the league — and we tried charging for bus trips. There are a number of things we've done."

WHAT WOULD YOU PINPOINT AS YOUR MOST CHALLENGING ISSUE?

Mudge: "The challenge that was the most important to me and that made me the most angry was trying to get rid of an employee that was not an ethical person."

Mudge said loopholes and exhaustive negotiations with unions frustrated her.

"It took me most of the year to get rid of an employee like that. That person had no business working with (children)."

WHAT ARE THE TWO BIGGEST ISSUES FACING KINDERGARTEN THROUGH TWELFTH-GRADE SCHOOLS?

Raab: "Improving student achievement is one of those and I think and the next one...is financial."

Raab said it is important to remind the community and legislators at the state level that the financial problems with the schools are a reality.

And, he added, "We have to keep people accountable all over the place, not just in your organization, but outside to Lansing. We need to keep our legislators aware of the needs we have."

Of the more than 30 people who applied to replace outgoing interim superintendent, Jim Cooper, five were chosen for first round interviews. The final three interviews will begin at 5 p.m., today, Wednesday, May 9 at Charlevoix High School's media center with adjunct professor at Spring Arbor University, Stephen Lewis.

Lewis will be followed by Jan Quarless, superintendent at Dollar Bay-Tamarack City Area Schools at 6:30 p.m. and Chet Janik, superintendent of Buckley Community Schools at 8 p.m.

According to representatives of Char-Em ISD, the group coordinating the superintendent search, second round interviews are tentatively scheduled for May 14 and 15.

What happened? First round interviews of five candidates to replace outgoing interim superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Jim Cooper. The first two interviews, Esther Mudge and Jon Raab, took place on Monday, May 7.

Mudge's professional experience? Current Manistique Schools superintendent of three years. A middle and high school teacher from 1975 to 1999. Superintendent of Whitefish Township Schools in Paradise 1999 to 2004.

Raab's professional experience? Current Dundee Community Schools interim superintendent of one year. A middle school principal from 1989 to 1999. Superintendent of Posen Schools from 1999 to 2002. Superintendent of Elkton, Pigeon and Bay Port Laker Schools from 2002 to 2006

What's next? The final three interviews will begin at 5 p.m., today, Wednesday, May 9 at Charlevoix High School's media center with adjunct professor at Spring Arbor University, Stephen Lewis. Lewis will be followed by Jan Quarless, superintendent at Dollar Bay-Tamarack City Area Schools at 6:30 p.m. and Chet Janik, superintendent of Buckley Community Schools at 8 p.m.

When will second round interviews take place? Second round interviews are tentatively scheduled for May 14 and 15.

STEPPING OUT in Charlevoix

Did you KNOW? STUMPED

Courier readers were stumped by this installment of 'Did you know?' which asked where this restaurant and lunch-room of Boy City was located?

National Boy City was the creation of Juvenile Court Judge Willis Brown of Chicago, Ill. who dreamed of a camp where boys of any socio-economic level could learn to live as model citizens, with emphasis on religion and athletics. In 1909, a tent city that could hold as many as 1,000 boys went up at Pine Point. Judge Brown incorporated the camp in 1910 and erected rudimentary wood buildings that housed the restaurant, a post office, city hall, bank, daily paper, Chautauqua traveling programs and other functions. Pere Marquette railroad trains stopped at the camp, and Lake Charlevoix steamers stopped at its dock. But Judge Brown couldn't raise enough funds that next winter to keep his dream going, so the camp had to fold after the 1910 season.

Schools: Funding slashed, jobs lost

High school principal announces retirement

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Michigan legislators now have nearly two weeks to produce an alternative to Gov. Jennifer Granholm's plan to cut per pupil funding by as much as $125.

According to a May 2 press release, Granholm proposed these cuts only as a last resort.

"I proposed a comprehensive solution in February to address the budget crisis and make Michigan competitive," she stated. "Lawmakers have rejected my blend of budget cuts, reforms and revenue. Without their support for new revenue, they are forcing our state into an untenable position. Fewer children and seniors in Michigan will have access to health care, and the cost of that care for those of us who do have it will go up if the Senate Republicans allow this proposed cut to become a reality."

"I have said repeatedly that I do not want to gut school funding with just a few weeks left in the school year, and I have said repeatedly that I do not want to make deep cuts to health care that will hurt our most vulnerable citizens," Granholm stated. "But, we must have a balanced budget and, therefore, I have no other option. The Legislature has failed to act on a comprehensive plan, and today we see the consequences of that failure."

But ask local educators and they will tell you they do not care who gets the blame for the financial rug being pulled from beneath them.

Charlevoix Public Schools could lose as much as $160,000 if the governor's full reduction is passed into law.

"We're looking at projected revenue and expenses and we'll have close to a million bucks in projected deficit," said interim superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Jim Cooper. "So we've met administratively and the principals have gone back to their buildings and had them look at their buildings

Student with knife kicked off bus

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
EDITOR

A Charlevoix High School freshman was kicked off the bus for the remainder of the year following a May 3 incident involving a pocket knife on a middle and high school bus route.

According to interim Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Jim Cooper, that day a bus driver reported an incident had occurred during his afternoon run involving two students and an onlooker.

Seat belt enforcement stepped up May 21 through June 3

Law enforcement officers will be out in northern Michigan during the next few weeks to ensure motorists make the decision to buckle up.

More than 560 law enforcement agencies will participate in the Buckle Up or Pay Up, Click It or Ticket mobilization from May 21 through June 3. About 240 of those agencies will conduct grant-funded safety belt enforcement zones. The Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning administers federal funding for these zones in 55 counties, including Charlevoix County, to increase safety belt use across the state.

"Michigan has achieved a great safety belt use rate, but about 6 percent of the state still doesn't buckle up," Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning director, Michael L. Prince, said. "We will continue enforcement zones the weeks surrounding Memorial Day to encourage even more people to save lives by wearing safety belts."

Michigan law requires all drivers and front seat passengers to be buckled up and children under 4 to be in an approved child safety seat. It also requires passengers 15 and younger to be buckled up in all positions.

A list of planned safety belt enforcement zone times and locations can be found at www.michigan.gov/ohsp.

Charlevoix schools face $1 million deficit

FUNDING

and costs and we will have some layoffs depending upon a couple people who could retire and depending upon how those things play out."

He added, "And then the domino effect starts with seniority and staffing. We've got a couple variables where we can't identify people who would be laid off, but we can identify positions. It's a mixture of retirements and layoffs, the equivalent to three-and-a-half teaching positions and we will not replace an administrator."

Charlevoix High School principal Gary Grundman announced his retirement in recent weeks. Cost saving measures to help reduce the tentative $1.2 million deficit could include having no assistant high school principal, adding duties to the athletic director's position and reducing costs across the board by 10 percent on school supplies and other related service expenses.

"What we've been able to do with cuts is look at all kinds of things," Cooper said. "We've looked at eliminating a few extra hours where a person is compensated for an extra hour to do administrative work or do something with their program and we're looking at eliminating a counselor so we have one counselor in each building."

He added, "Basically, what that comes up to is a projected $750,000 in cuts."

One positive event was the Headlee override which was approved during last week's election.

"That's $138,000 we have now that we would not have had," Cooper said. "Add that on to looking at some of these retirements, if they pan out and we're looking at close to $150,000, we still either need to cut or supplement with the fund balance."

The fund balance is currently near $1.1 million with $900,000 of that restricted, meaning it is scheduled, though not promised, for future costs.

The frustration educators feel over losing funding is only multiplied by the fact that the pilfering comes at the end of the school year.

"Not only is it darn near the middle of May and we're being told money is being taken from us, but we're not being told if we're getting any money for next year," he said. "I think it's quite clear we'll only get change when parents and community members are fed up with this process and put enough pressure on legislators."

Cooper said he understands that education isn't the only sector suffering.

"But we're always told by our legislators that education is a top priority and it's not treated as a top priority," he said. "Until some of our high profile districts close, we're not getting the attention of people. When a couple of these districts which are experiencing the same problems as we are have to close in an area where there are a lot of votes, then maybe that's what it will take to make some change."

He added, "If something doesn't happen in this state, in our economy and with school finance that's (mass closings) exactly what you're looking at."

School funding reality

- Schools statewide could lose as much as $125 per pupil if legislative action isn't soon taken. It will become law, June 1, unless the Michigan Legislature passes a law approving another amount to be cut.
- Charlevoix Public Schools could lose almost $160,000 if the proposed $125 per pupil loss passes.
- Charlevoix Public Schools face a $1.2 million deficit between revenue and expenditures for the 2007-2008 school year.
- School officials are looking at reducing costs across the board by 10 percent.
- The $750,000 in cuts could include: Not replacing a principal and several teachers who may retire; cutting hours of some employees and eliminating a counselor.
- The Headlee override millage, which recently passed, will drop the deficit by an additional $138,000 leaving approximately $150,000 in shortfall.
- If all projected values are correct, Charlevoix Public Schools could take the $150,000 shortfall from their $1.1 million fund balance.

Two injured in May 12 four-wheeler rollover

At 5:46 p.m. on Saturday, May 12; the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to an four wheeler accident in a wooded lot neat 17800 Old Orchard Trail where two females were injured after the vehicle they were riding overturned. The driver, Brenda Jane David, 37, lost control of her 2006 Honda Ranger ES350 and flipped over hackwards while attempted to climb a hill with extremely rough terrain.

The driver and passenger, Trunette Walters, 42, were both injured during the crash. David was unable to move, but Walters was able to run about a quarter mile to summon help.

Charlevoix EMS transported both to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Riders were not wearing helmets and alcohol is believed to have been a contributing factor in the crash. The accident is still under investigation. The extent of their injuries is not known at this time but do not appear to be life threatening.

The insidious nature of social insurance

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

The decision to brand oneself for life should be free of flippancy, but after a woman at the Baltimore branch of the Social Security Administration said she didn't have the form I wanted, I raced to Petoskey to meet my tattooist with the English-sounding name to be inked while incensed.

Nigel didn't flinch when I asked him to work, he just baked the needles, adjusted my chair and said, "You're going to be explaining this one when you're 80."

Before I get to the tattoo, I admit no issue with the ill-conceived Social Security system even if it makes a back alley shell game look respectable by comparison. If you want to sink your bucks in a plan which relies on people dying faster than they are born, have at 'er baby, but those of us who got a "C" or higher in high school economics might want to avoid anything bearing the Charles Ponzi seal of approval.

Some folks are happy to relinquish 7.65 percent (the self-employed pay 15.3 percent) of the first $97,500 they earn, which might not be a bad idea was the money invested in a mutual fund. But Social Security is no more sophisticated than taxing the young to pay the old.

What really twists my proverbial plums is this federal fraud carries mandated participation. I demanded Lady Baltimore send me the government's official "Opt-out" form. She said, unless I was a minister, none existed. I may refuse Social Security benefits upon retirement, but I can not stop paying for them.

"How dare Uncle Sam punish citizens who work hard and save money in the name of aiding those who shirk their responsibility?" you ask.

There was nothing new about socialism or Big Brotherism in 1935 when Franklin Demagogue Roosevelt rolled out his not-so-New Deal — How clever to monitor citizens by tying their identity to the welfare benefits of the old and feeble.

"But Gohs, the government swore up and down they would never use your Social Security number for ID purposes," you say. I too was shocked to learn representative democracy could be infiltrated by thieves and liars, but what to do?

The democrats won't kill Social Security because their constituents need $1,000-per-pill medication to defy natural law by living with heart failure until the age of 112. And while your reps on the right would love to send gramps packing from his $300,000-a-year nursing home, Republicans cannot give up Social Security's preexisting database so vital to fruition of the Real ID Act of 2005, the most intrusive plan yet devised to spy on Americans.

A colleague forwarded the most recent American Civil Liberties Union "Sky is falling" alert warning me Real ID was coming, as if I should be more terrified of it than being numbered at birth like an automobile.

Myriad threats and their imagined solutions are the best way to control the masses — starving seniors, terrorism and the need for a nationwide identification database just happen to be the vogue slogans currently invoked by our omniscient overlords, but make no mistake, Akbar Al Boxcutter and Omar Bin Shoe-Bomb will find ways to get their so-called "Real ID." All your fearful compliance will have accomplished is to entice an enthusiastic squeeze by those with a governmental grip on your throat.

In the end, capitalists have a responsibility to care for the physical and fiscal needs of themselves and their families, or go without. If a few grandmothers must dine on Purina in the name of liberty then so be it, but anonymity and autonomy are far too important to the pursuit of happiness to have anchors like moralism and fear-driven policy hung from the necks of Americans.

After some serious thought and feeling as much like a whipped dog as a toaster, toothbrush or any other product bearing a serial number, I had my Social Security number permanently penned on the inside of my forearm. I figured if the government is going to treat me like a concentration camp captive, I might as well resemble one.

Upon hearing of my latest episode someone said, "Aren't you afraid of having your identity stolen?"

I would like to believe I am more than nine numbers on a blue paper card.

Trusting relationships can bring tranquility

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

The ability to feel confident and certain that someone will safeguard an object or keep our feelings of confidence in them is trust.

We expect this trait to satisfy us in our daily lives, with our friends, children, spouses, government, banks, schools and day care providers. The list is endless.

Even our spending money echoes the sentiment "In God we trust."

Every election brings fresh faces and with it the question of whom we will trust. Bank mergers take place and new trustees on board may give us pause. Will our funds remain secure? Infidelity of a spouse brings the doubt whether one can recreate the feeling or ability to trust again. Large companies with greedy CEOs question our ability to do business with them and therein we may lack trust. Hospitals' and schools' financial instability create insecurity among the populace. It's a wonder that we can still trust in anyone or anything.

This world isn't much different in some ways from the challenges our grandparents faced. We need to go back to the basic value of trust.

This important trait affects us all in some form, whether it's referring to our physicians, psychologists, mechanics, ministers, lawyers or our next-door neighbor.

The inability to trust creates a stress that may plague your self-confidence, and even your emotional and physical well-being.

By having faith in mankind and knowing in your heart that others are trying to do their best with fewer resources and every intention of being a good person we need to create trust again. It is perfectly fine to ask questions and communicate your feelings and concerns on any issue. This helps to dispel lack of trust and also gives you an educated view on what is accurately happening. It is important and imperative with information widely available on any issue, to do your homework. You may need to get a better understanding with any area in your life where you are feeling a lack of trust. Communication and follow through are the key words to stemming the tide that creates the emotion attached to the inability to allow someone or something to safeguard our needs.

We learn to trust as children when our parents followed through with what they said they would do. As adults we need to remember to practice this concept ourselves. As grownups it's our responsibility to follow through, be truthful and communicate. This may not bring about total world peace but it's a start.

So before you begin to play the blame game or find yourself upset by someone's actions, take time to educate yourself with facts and trust others to do their job.

When you begin to trust others, you will bring about peace in your own life and you'll need to accept the fact that you will not understand everything. Trust me on this one.

LETTERS to the editor

GET SERIOUS ABOUT INVASIVE SPECIES

Editor:

In addition to the zebra mussel, that we are all aware of, more than 100 invasive species now call our Great Lakes home. One of their key modes of transportation is in the ballast water of ocean going ships. The state Department of Environmental Quality and attorney general now face a lawsuit that challenges the constitutionality of a state law meant to stop more from hitching a ride. The lawsuit, filed in federal court by shipping interests, claims that the state law which requires ships docking at Michigan ports to obtain permits and not discharge untreated water in the lakes is unconstitutional because it interferes with interstate commerce.

State lawmakers passed and Gov. Granholm signed the pro-environmental, feel good, legislation two years ago. It became effective this year. So far, Michigan is the only state to impose rules that attempt to deal with the serious invasive species problem. As it stands now our elected officials have done economic damage to the state and have not achieved any worthy and important environmental goals.

The cost is substantial, in the half a million ballpark, for fitting ships with equipment to sanitize ballast water before discharge. Ship owners will simply choose to unload cargo at other ports in nearby Great Lakes states or Canada to avoid the expense. This is bad news for Michigan jobs and state tax revenue. Further, the state may lose what could be a lengthy and expensive federal court battle while even more nasty invasive things find their way into our beautiful lakes.

This state law is a perfect example of elected representatives seeking a great sound bite, "I voted to protect our lakes from invasive species." They have ignored the enforcement reality and in fact have done more harm than good. The invasive species problem is an interstate and international one that screams for regional or federal action.

Congressman Bart Stupak is co-sponsoring the Great Lakes Collaboration Implementation Act. Among other lakes related matters it would implement a federal standard for any ocean ship equipped with a ballast tank entering a U.S. harbor and deals with the transfer and discharge of ballast water. This is a sensible course of action that should gain wide bi-partisan support and will have an impact beyond making voters feel good.

Our state elected officials need to get out of the business of lawmaking involving the international commerce in invasive species. They should pass a unanimous resolution dealing with the issue and encourage our elected federal representatives like Stupak, our two senators and those from other surrounding states to move forward aggressively to deal with the problem.

KNOW EXCUSES

Editor:

Know excuses. Battering is always a choice. Batterers will minimize, deny, justify, distort, lie and blame others for their behavior to escape consequences. "I got drunk and didn't know what I was doing." "I'm really stressed out and can't control my anger." "She's always nagging on me. Why can't she just do what I ask?" "I told her I didn't want her working so far away. It's too hard on the kids." "She's just making a mountain out of a molehill. I barely touched her."

The American Medical Association estimates that almost four million men severely assault their intimate female partners or spouses each year. The U.S. Department of Justice reported that men's violence against their intimate female partners is the leading cause of injury for women and is the cause of at least 35 percent of all emergency room visits. Every day approximately four men kill their present or former intimate female partner. Roughly 75 percent of those men murder the women they were partnered with during or after a separation. In a typical week in Michigan, one female is the victim of intimate partner homicide.

With recent incidents of domestic violence making headlines in northern Michigan, it is important to remember these are not isolated crimes. Domestic abuse is happening every day in our country and community. Domestic abuse murders are committed because the abuser is sensing a loss of control in the relationship, typically because the victim has taken some action that challenges his authority. A cognitive choice is then made by the abuser to maintain that control by killing her, threatening or murdering family members, or assaulting others that are trying to support her. These extreme control tactics have nothing to do with the abuser being an alcoholic, having mental health issues, or being unable to control his anger. They are, instead, the last tool the batterer has in his arsenal to maintain control over his intimate partner.

Most men do not batter. However, those who do must be held accountable for their controlling behaviors. Domestic abuse is a pattern of power and control that can include mental and verbal abuse, as well as sexual and physical violence. Society oftentimes seeks to diagnose abusers' behaviors in order to provide treatment for their violence or buys into myths that work to excuse the abuse. We challenge this community to recognize the roots of domestic abuse — sexism and oppression against women — which requires overarching social change around the treatment of women. Additionally, batterers need to be held accountable for their behavior through the legal system and in our day-to-day lives by all of us standing up to say "Domestic abuse is not OK and there are no excuses."

THANKS BASEBALL SUPPORTERS

Editor:

The Charlevoix High School Rayder baseball team would like to thank all the businesses and individuals that made this year's Rayder Baseball Golf Classic a big success. With their generosity, the 70 participants and the help of volunteers, nearly $5,000 was raised to help defray the costs of field upkeep, equipment needs and travel expenses that are above and beyond the school's budget for the program.

Now there is much concern about carbon dioxide in the atmosphere causing global warming. Does the carbon dioxide produced by jet aircraft flying in the upper atmosphere have more harmful effects than carbon dioxide produced at sea level?

POSTAL PATRONS GIVE

Editor:

Thank you residents of Charlevoix for your overwhelming support in the annual Letter Carriers' Food Drive. You are responsible for actually filling the shelves at the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry. At noon on Saturday, May 12, the shelves of the pantry were almost bare. By 4:30 p.m., when all carriers had returned from their routes, the shelves were more than full. Your generosity this year, a year of struggle for many in northern Michigan, will be a true blessing to many, many people in Charlevoix.

Thank you letter carriers for your hard work on a day when delivering mail alone is a tough job. A special thanks to volunteers Nicki, Patty, Chris, Steve, Jesse, Harley, Roxanne, John and Dave for lending your Saturday in service to Charlevoix.

Without residents and volunteers like each of you, this food drive would not be possible. Take pride in knowing that you have helped stamp out hunger in Charlevoix.

OPPOSED TO NORWOOD MINE

Editor:

I object to the special use permit being contemplated by Norwood Township for the mining of limestone.

The mining of limestone is inconsistent with the current zoning of the property and surrounding property, current zoning does not permit it. Limestone mining commenced without a special use permit. Where is the necessary documentation with regards to traffic studies and safety?

Where is the study on noise emitted from the operation? There is observational evidence suggesting that noise is intrusive and impacts the quality of life of many residents.

The plans of the mining operation continue to evolve and grow. However, the site plan submitted doesn't address these changes. Now the township is being asked to approve a washing operation. Will the operation wash with water, and if so what is the source of water? What are the plans for the return to the groundwater system? Does the washing involve the use of chemicals? How would they be treated to negate any environmental impact?

How long will the property be mined? To my knowledge there is no timetable in the proposal. How deep will the quarry be and where is the current water table? Aerial photographs show a large amount of water, more than I would consider attributable to rain and spring melt, as the applicant claims? Where are the reclamation plans for the land? Where is the provision for a performance bond associated with the operation of the mine and reclamation of the property?

What assurance beyond the applicant's statements do we have that the site will have all the necessary permits, will not damage the environment and will not negatively impact the citizens of Norwood Township?

There have been many ethical questions raised, that have been documented. I have concerns that these ethical issues may impact the objectivity of the proceedings. I do not feel that these questions and issues have been adequately addressed.

Who has fiduciary responsibility to the citizens of Norwood Township? Who pays for the township's expenses associated with this special use permit request? Why have salaries and per diems been raised at a time when government is looking for ways to reduce expenditures, when taxpayers are seeking relief and our school's financing is in question?

In summary this special use permit should not be granted. It is inconsistent with current land use and zoning and the application is incomplete. It does not provide a greater good to the community in terms of quality of life, significant job creation or added tax base. Last, I have concerns regarding who is responsible for protecting the property rights of the citizens of Norwood Township.

NATION WITHOUT PRINCIPLES

Editor:

We are living in an era characterized by some of the worst corruption of principle and integrity that we've ever seen in America. In the 1990s the Clintons were the embodiment of that destruction of moral conscience and even when our nation elected and re-elected a Republican president and congressional majority, Republican leadership was unwilling to stand up and confront the corruption of the principles that make and keep us free. And that's a sign that we as a people are no longer willing to demand the discipline required to sustain true liberty — not of our leaders, nor of ourselves. And thanks to the gutless silence of today's political leaders on both sides of the aisle, we've reached a depth of corruption where as in Bible times, we are not just sinning, we are in love with our sin.

AIR FORCE LEGEND AND CHS GRAD JIM BOWMAN TO RETIRE THIS SUMMER

The U. S. Air Force Academy, Colo. recently announced the pending retirement of Air Force Academy athletic director Jim Bowman, a class of 1951 Charlevoix High School graduate, who plans to step down this summer.

Bowman first came to the academy in 1958 as a physical education instructor. He was named head junior varsity football coach in 1960. He led the junior varsity for four years before taking over the freshman team. Bowman coached the freshmen until 1975 when he went back to the junior varsity head post. After the 1975 season, Bowman stepped down from coaching to devote his full duties to recruiting support.

In his five seasons as the junior varsity head coach, Bowman compiled a 24-4-1 record. His 1963 and 1975 teams went undefeated. In his 11 seasons as the freshman coach, Bowman led the squad to a 37-28 mark.

His extensive experience in all phases of intercollegiate athletics has helped him contribute immensely to one of the most successful programs in the country.

"I have enjoyed working for and with so many great people," Bowman said. "It has been a privilege and honor to have been part of this great program."

Zonta's May 19 Literary Delights to feature three Michigan authors

Tickets are on sale now for Literary Delights Gourmet Luncheon featuring three Michigan authors.

The event, sponsored by the Charlevoix Zonta Club will take place from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, May 19 at Charlevoix Public Library.

Featured authors include Liesel Litzenburger, Kristen Jongen and Janet Sinke.

Litzenburger, who grew up in Harbor Springs, will speak about her novels "The Widower" and "Now You Love Me." She has been awarded residencies at the MacDowell Colony and Yaddo. She is joined by Kristen Jongen of Traverse City. Jongen is an artist and has been recognized for her inspirational poetry. She shares her unique talents and positive outlook in her original cards, posters and her first book, "Growing Wings."

The third author, Janet Sinke, hails from St. Johns. She is a nurse who came to writing when Parkinson's disease made her change her career. She brings life and charm to youthful stories that focus on grandchild, grandparent relationships. Her book, "I Wanna Go to Grandma's House" won the 2005 Ben Franklin award and the 2005 Mom's Choice Bronze Award.

Reservations for this author event are required. The cost is $40 per person.

To order tickets, call Linda DeGrow at (231) 547-4109 or visit the Bridge Street Book Shop at its new location in the Glen's plaza.

Proceeds from the event are used for Sights on Success, a youth program held each fall.

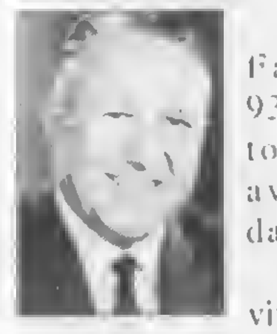
OBITUARIES

Ronald Fairbanks: April 5, 1914 - May 6, 2007



Ronald Fairbanks

Ronald J. Fairbanks, 93, of Ironton, passed away Sunday, May 6.

He is survived by Grace (nee Kubish), his wife of 74 years, and their children, Charles Fairbanks (Puddy) of East Jordan, Bruce Fairbanks (Peggy) of Littleton, Colo., and Shayne McCook (Ron) of Tempe, Ariz.

Ron and Grace are blessed with 14 grandchildren; 40 great-grandchildren; and one great great-granddaughter. Ron's sister, June Riley, and brother, Leo Fairbanks, live in Charlevoix.

In 1933, Ron and Grace, both born in Traverse City, moved to Charlevoix and started Fairbanks Bakery. Their first day in business was a huge success with $17 in sales, selling bread for 10 cents a loaf or three loaves for 25 cents. They operated the bakery in Charlevoix until 1950, when they bought The Silver King Donut Company in Grand Rapids and later started Fairbanks Pastries. Ron, a master baker, was a past president of the Western Michigan Bakers Association, taught extension courses in bakery skills at Ferris State University and Michigan State University's Kellogg Center, appeared regularly on the Carol Duvall television show, and was a founder and member of the board of directors of the Kent County Skills Center that teaches vocational skills to high school seniors. He was the last surviving member of the Rocking Chair Hunters of Beaver Island.

In lieu of flowers, the family would appreciate contributions to Charlevoix Area Hospital. Funeral services took place on Friday, May 11, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Rev. Harold E. Kruse officiated. A graveside service at Brookside Cemetery and reception at the First Baptist Church followed.

Ronald Russell: Nov. 24, 1942 - May 9, 2007

Ronald Dale Russell, 64, of Charlevoix and Ellsworth, died Wednesday, May 9, at his home in Banks Township, Antrim County.

He was born Nov. 24, 1942, in Charlevoix to Clarence and Ruth (Frasier) Russell. Ron was a lifelong resident of Charlevoix, living for the past 16 years in Antrim County.

He was a carpenter and worked for Al Shindorf Builders for over 20 years. Ron loved classic cars, and enjoyed going to shows and collecting.

He is survived by his children, Kevin B. (Amy L.) Russell of Ellsworth, Tara (Tim) Russell-Weir of Howell, Tim D. (Tina) Russell of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Kendra and Brenden Russell, Lexi and Katy Lambert, Kyleigh Weir, Faithann, Riley, Shelby and Cody Russell; brothers, Douglas (Alida) Russell of Grand Rapids, Richard (Mary) Russell of Charlevoix; sister, Elaine Parsons of Grand Rapids. He is also survived by his sister-in-law, Dorothy Russell who raised Ron with her husband and his brother, Jack.

Jack preceded Ron in death as did his other brothers, Gerald, Bill and Don.

Ron's family suggests that memorial contributions be made to the American Cancer Society or to the Safe Harbor Baptist Church in Charlevoix.

A funeral took place on Monday, May 14, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Pastor Pete Aronson of the Safe Harbor Baptist Church officiated. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

LETTERS to the editor

It's an era when our nation doesn't just violate principles, it holds evil principles in authority over us. We live today in a country where people want to live without shame, guilt or conscience, while they practice every degradation and atrocity and pretend that nothing is wrong. We have probably rarely ever been tempted to feel ashamed to be an American but we are being tempted now. This crisis of character may be the greatest crisis that this republic has ever faced. It's a crisis greater than the Revolution, the Civil War or both world wars, because even at war, the most dangerous threat to America lies within its own borders. We must reacquaint Americans, from our school children to our leaders in Congress, with the truth of principle found in our Declaration of Independence. The foundation of our government teaches that our rights come from God and it's our duty to exercise those rights responsibly. We must ensure that the principles of the Declaration once again become the "hidden springs" of every visible greatness of America. We must strive to influence those in education, media, public service and all our elected officials to put principle back into politics.

Should we lose the character and capacity for decent judgment that's required to sustain our freedom, then we will surely witness the loss of our liberty. It matters little what the polls or economic forecasts or international news may look like today as there is a day of reckoning before us. Americans pretend there is a way we can hold on to our God-given rights while denying the God who has granted those rights, while denying that right and wrong exist at all. The cowardice of those in authority must stop or we will lose all vestiges of freedom.

Are you a spectator or a player and will you get involved before it's too late? Contact your political representatives Capitol (202) 224-3121 White House (202) 456-1414.

BIGGER SKATE PARK NEEDED

Editor:

My name is Aaron Duckworth and my goal is to get a bigger and better skate park. The reason is there's not a lot of room and everybody could run into each other. There also is not a lot of equipment and some of the jumps are too small to catch air.

Another thing is there could be more accessories and there would be more room to accelerate and it would allow larger jumps. But most of all there would be more kids.

My last reason is there could be a dome for all year fun. And there would be more kids to tell their friends to come skate. But with the dome your wheels will stay dry.

KCB plans for weed free petunia season

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Winter is a not-so-distant memory yet summer isn't quite here and that can mean only one thing: It's petunia time.

The 26th Annual Operation Petunia is scheduled for 5 p.m. on Thursday, May 24 along five miles of U.S. 31 from the municipal airport to Mercer Boulevard.

"I'm very excited and very hopeful," said president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Erin Bemis. "We have a new distributor we're getting flowers from. We have a better working relationship and the flowers are more mature when they go in the ground than in the past. So, it will give the flowers a better chance to root in the soil."

She added, "And we're replacing all the dirt throughout town, which is actually ahead of schedule."

Salt, sand and other foreign material find their way into the petunia bedding and degrade the quality of the flowers.

"We looked at replacing a third of the soil each year instead of all at once, but we determined it would be better to do it all at once," Bemis said. "It definitely is more expensive (since) Keep Charlevoix Beautiful pays for the removal of the old soil and purchase of the new soil and any amendments to it."

She added, "This (dirt) will make growing conditions premium for the petunias."

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful members are taking some steps to help prevent and combat the overgrowth of weeds which occurred along some sections of the petunia beds in 2006.

"We're actually planting test sections and planting a different kind of petunia," Bemis said. "They are the same colors as (regular) petunias, but they are different in their growing patterns."

Bemis said the heartier petunias will be used in areas other than the beds along Bridge Street.

It costs nearly $13,000 to purchase this year's petunia crop.

The City of Charlevoix awarded the contract for weed pulling to the Charlevoix Band Boosters for $20 per person, per hour, not to exceed $16,000.

"We're also looking into putting a pre-emergent in which will form a protective layer over the dirt around the plant to help keep weeds from sprouting," Bemis said. "So, we're looking to eliminate as many weeds as we can, but this will hopefully cut back on how many times we need to weed."

The yearly event will culminate in a picnic beginning at 6 p.m. in Bridge Park featuring hot dogs, chips, cookies and soft drinks.

"It's just a great community event," Bemis said. "It's a fun family activity with entertainment, food and it's a way to give back to the community."

The nearly 500 planters expected to participate should dress for the weather. Wear comfortable clothes, garden gloves and bring a trowel.

Charlevoix businesses donate the refreshments and paper products.

Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent search narrowed to two

BY LOUISE NELLE
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Finalists in the Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent search are Jan Quarless and Chet Janik.

Quarless and Janik were the last two standing out of five candidates selected for the first round of interviews which took place May 7 and 9.

The other three were Stephen Lewis, a professor at Spring Arhor University, Esther Mudge, Manistique Schools superintendent of three years, and Dundee Community Schools interim superintendent of one year, John Raab.

Second interviews for Janik and Quarless took place at 5 p.m. on Tuesday, May 15. Results were not available by press time.

Quarless has been a superintendent since 2004 at Dollar Bay-Tamarack City Schools. Before that time, he led a career in athletics as an assistant principal and athletic director at Belding High School and as a head football coach at both Southern Illinois University and Eastern Michigan University.

Janik has heen a superintendent since 2004 at Buckley Community School. His past experience includes working as a special project coordinator with Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District and as a college outreach director at Northwestern Michigan College.

During the puhlic interview on May 9, members of the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education asked candidates a series of questions. Janik and Quarless' responses to some of the questions were as follows:

HOW WILL YOU HANDLE BUDGET REDUCTIONS AND WHAT STRATEGIES OR VISIONS DO YOU HAVE FOR OUR DISTRICT?

Quarless: "The first thing is where we can get money? Secondly, you have to be creative. I'm not a big proponent of cutting programs. I would be very careful of that. You have to look at big issues like staffing, health benefits and retirement."

Janik: "I will keep as many teachers as possible and keep the quality of education high."

Jan Quarless

WHERE DO YOU SEE YOURSELF IN FIVE TO 10 YEARS?

Quarless: He said he sees himself making a commitment during those 10 years to a school district, but also sees himself retiring. He added that be is at the end of the road, but if he is having fun who knows what lies in store.

Janik: "I'm not planning on retiring in the near future."

HOW WOULD OTHERS DESCRIBE YOU?

Quarless: "For the most part they would say, 'He's a pretty good guy, enthusiastic' and there's tremendous loyalty towards people I work with daily."

Janik: "They would describe me as being very open and upfront and my communication has been a strength. I've been very open with parents about what the issues are."

HOW DO YOU HANDLE BEING APPROACHED BY UPSET PARENTS?

Quarless: "Welcome them into the room. My doors are always open and if they are excited or angered they can come in and see if it can be addressed."

Chet Janik

Janik: "If a parent is concerned enough to come in you have to listen to them. Try to make them feel comfortable and be very specific about why they are upset. People have to feel that they are respected and their opinions are being valued."

WHAT DO YOU CONSIDER THE TWO GREATEST CHALLENGES FACING K-12 EDUCATION TODAY?

Quarless: Quarless focused on at-risk students and finances. He said raising standards can be problematic for students who may not excel at certain subjects. In terms of finances, he said the challenge lies in finding a way to make the system work.

Janik: "Cutting and higher standards. Cutting state aid will be a disaster ... It's a very difficult situation but you can't let finances steer the ship. The last thing we do is cut the quality of education."

'Circus' variety show on stage at CHS

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix High School performing arts class will be clowning around under the big top when they present their annual spring variety show.

An ice cream social at 6 p.m. on Saturday, May 19 in the Charlevoix High School common area will precede the antics of these students as they perform their final project of the year at 7 p.m.

"The theme is 'Circus,'" said extracurricular and play director, Connie Ford. "The students have designed it, written it, selected materials they want from other authors to show what they have learned through the school year."

She added, "The class is a mixture of interpretive activities, acting, music actives and using professionally written materials while at the same time, learning how to evaluate and write acceptable skits and materials. At the spring musical they do everything from set design to building the set and they start from scratch without the instructor or myself showing them how to do it."

Music and short skits will highlight the event.

"There is music, but not as much as usual," Ford said. "They (students) wanted to go more with acting this year."

The performing arts pupils have been working on their respective projects for nearly a month in between individual events competition.

"We just had state finals last weekend (May 5 and 6) where we came in sixth overall in class C/D," Ford said. "Our duo took fifth — they were finalists, our multiple took eleventh which is semifinalist and our third event missed the semifinals by one speaker point."

Tickets for the ice cream social and show are $7 for adults, $5 for students and seniors and $20 for a family. Tickets are available in the performing arts office at Charlevoix High School prior to the event or at the door this Saturday.

Zonta offers $400 business scholarship

Charlevoix Area Zonta Club is currently accepting applications for its Jane M. Klausman Women in Business Scholarship, which awards $400 to a young woman living in Charlevoix County currently studying business at the undergraduate level.

Applicants must have completed two to three years in an accredited undergraduate program, demonstrate outstanding academic credentials, identify the relevance of the applicant's academic program to the business field and outline the applicant's professional and career goals as they relate to advancing women in the field of business.

Applications are available at the Petoskey and Traverse City college campuses or may be obtained by calling Maura A. Snabes at (231) 547-9969. The deadline for receiving applications is May 25 to the Charlevoix Area Zonta Club c/o Maura A. Snabes, P.O. Box 633, Charlevoix, MI 49720. The winner will be announced at the Zonta meeting in early June.

The recipient of the local award will also have her application forwarded to the district, which awards an additional $400 to the district winner.

The Jane M. Klausman Women in Business Scholarship was established to encourage undergraduate women to enter careers and seek leadership positions in business-related fields.

Small Hands create big art fund-raiser

Huge imaginations and tiny hands have produced an amazing art exhibit.

The Second Annual Small Hands Big Art collaboration between Gallery On Main in Bay Harbor and the Charlevoix Children's House Montessori School, is a children's art exhibit which runs from May 19-24. The exhibit will also include a public silent auction fund-raiser from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on May 24. Hors d'oeuvres and live entertainment featuring Acoustic Stew from C2 Gallery will be featured.

Gallery manager, Larissa Flynn, who is a parent of a Charlevoix Children's House alumnus, is heading up the event.

"I just love the process and seeing these kids at a young age experimenting with real mediums rather than a Crayola marker on copy paper. What they come up with is amazing, fresh and exciting," she said.

School director, Barb Godwin-Chulick, said this is an ideal opportunity to expose the students ages 2-and-a-half to 6 to the artistic process while helping the school with needed funds.

Children's House students viewed original works of art which were placed in the Montessori school and from them gained inspiration to create their own works.

The approximately 24 pieces of children's artwork have been professionally framed and will be sold to the highest bidder at the May 24 silent auction.

Some of the mediums used include real watercolor on rice paper, ceramics glazing, hatik fabric dying and canvas painting.

The funds raised will go toward helping the school install a new roof and toward the purchase of classroom materials.

Gallery on Main is located at 4184 Main St. in Bay Harbor. Call (231) 439-2745 for more information.

Librarians honored at Rural Libraries Conference

Two librarians at the Charlevoix Public Library have been honored with awards. At the Library of Michigan's Rural Libraries Conference on May 8, Beth Strawbridge, adult services librarian at Charlevoix Public Library was awarded the Access/Collection Award and Linda Adams, adult and teen services librarian, was awarded the Patron Services Award.

Strawhridge, recognized for her outstanding work towards collection development, works diligently towards creating a balanced, interesting collection for the patrons of Charlevoix Public Library. The collection includes books, music CDs, audio books, DVDs and electronic subscriptions. Strawhridge managed in the last year to increase the library's holdings, exceeding the original goal.

"Prior to moving into the library's new facility, we owned approximately 2.5 items per capita and now, we own 4.5 items per capita. Beth managed to oversee this huge increase in our holdings," said Val Meyerson, library director.

Adams strives to meet and exceed the strategic planning programming goals set forth by the board of trustees, manages an author series, computer training classes, cultural programming, health series and a travel series.

"We never dreamed so many people would attend programs at the library, but we have very consistent audiences at most of our events," Meyerson.

3rd Annual Tri4Fun Women's Triathlon this Sunday in Charlevoix

File photo

Charlevoix resident Michelle Rick-Biddick (above) is organizing the third annual noncompetitive Tri4Fun Women's Triathlon which will take place this Sunday, May 20, in Charlevoix.

Registration is underway for the third annual non-competitive Tri4Fun Women's Triathlon.

Forms are available at Harbor Health and Fitness, located at 110 Clinton St. in Charlevoix and at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool located at 11905 U.S. 31 North in Charlevoix. Women ages 14 and older are eligible to participate.

The triathlon will take place at noon on Sunday, May 20. A mandatory pre-race meeting will take place at 11 a.m. at Charlevoix Public Library, located at 220 West Clinton St.

The event will include a scenic 20K bike, a 5K run and a half mile indoor pool swim. The bike portion starts in Petoskey and winds along the shore of Lake Michigan and ends at the community pool. The run extends from the pool, along a rural road and loops back to the pool property.

Participants can register to partake in all three events individually or as a team. Registration fees are $100 for a team of two or three and $50 per individual.

The triathlon is a fundraiser for two local cancer support groups in Charlevoix and Emmet counties, Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders and Circle of Strength.

For more information contact Michelle Rick-Biddick at (231) 547-4369 or e-mail tlc.fitness@hotmail.com.

Safeguard yourself from identity theft

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to raise identity theft awareness in the community and offer citizens these helpful tips for protecting themselves from this growing danger.

1. Do not carry more than one credit card with you on a daily basis.

2. If you find that any credit card is lost or possibly stolen, report it to the issuers immediately.

3. Instead of using your debit card to pay online, try using your credit card as most offer some protection against fraud.

4. If you do order online, keep a copy of the Web site's description of what you ordered, the seller's information and any e-mail messages you received regarding the purchase.

5. Keep your virus protection software up to date and consider installing a firewall on your computer.

6. Memorize your PIN or passwords instead of writing them down.

7. Make yourself a copy of your credit/debit cards and driver's license. Keep these copies in a safe place so that if your wallet is lost or stolen you will know exactly what is missing and who to call to cancel your credit cards.

8. To discard your receipts, shred them instead of throwing them away in a public garbage.

9. Instead of just cutting up unused credit cards, cancel them.

10. If you are expecting a new card to be delivered, check your mailbox on a regular basis.

It is also recommended that you check your credit report at least once a year. To get a copy of your report, log on to www.annualcreditreport.com or call 1-877-322-8228.

Peace of the pie

Mary Tate, a Charlevoix resident and member of the Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom attended the May 7 Charlevoix City Council meeting and requested council's support for the establishment of a United States Department of Peace. She is pictured above sharing a pie with first ward councilman Bob Timms and mayor Norman Carlson Jr. City Council took no vote on this matter. The aim is to establish legislation that would create a cabinet-level Department of Peace and Nonviolence. The matter is currently before the House of Representatives (HR 808). Citizens across the nation have brought pies to their Congressional offices to talk about the Department of Peace legislation, and to let their leaders know that "Peace Wants a Piece of the Pie." For more information on this legislation and the campaign, visit The Peace Alliance Web site at www.thepeacealliance.org.

Official Notice

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
REGULAR CITY COUNCIL MEETING SYNOPSIS

Monday, May 7, 2007 – 7:00 p.m.

Council Chambers, City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI

The Charlevoix City Council met on the above date with Mayor Norman L. Carlson, Jr. presiding. All Council members were present.

The following proceedings took place:

Watch Beatlemania unfold May 26 at the Crooked Tree Arts Center

At 7 p.m. on Saturday, May 26 everyone is invited to watch Beatlemania unfold on episodes of The Ed Sullivan Show in the Ross Stoakes Theatre at Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Viewers are encouraged to come in 1960s Beatles costume. Prizes will be awarded.

This is one of many events planned in conjunction with an exhibit featuring 84 photographs of "The Beatles" on exhibition at Crooked Tree Arts Center from April 27 through July 8. The photos were shot in the early 1960s by LIFE photographer William Eppridge.

Local Beatles aficionados will share pieces of their private collections during the first week of the exhibition including concert tickets, signed record albums and possibly the jukebox owned by John and Yoko Lennon.

The free Beatles exhibit is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays at Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Rounding out the two-month exhibit is a performance by "Shout," a tribute to the Fab Four at 8 p.m. June 16 on stage at Crooked Tree. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for students. Tickets are on sale now at www.crookedtree.org or by calling (231) 347-4337.

Registration underway for June 16 Pink Ribbon Ride

Saturday, June 16, will mark the fifth anniversary of Bike4BreastCancer's Pink Ribbon Ride, in memory of Kathy McDonald.

The event will take place at Veteran's Park in Boyne City, where McDonald made her home, and founded the Charlevoix/Emmet County Chapter of Bike4BreastCancer to benefit area women. Cyclists of all ages and abilities are invited to participate.

The addition of a 65-mile route to the existing program is sure to challenge even the most advanced cyclist. A 7-mile route along the southern shore of Lake Charlevoix to the Village of Advance is geared toward family participation. In addition, a 20-mile ride to the Ironton Ferry and a 42-mile tour around Lake Charlevoix are planned for the more serious cyclist. Food and beverages will be available at the park and rest stops along the routes.

During its five-year history, the Bike4BreastCancer Charlevoix/Emmet County Chapter has donated over $50,000 in support of programs offered by both Northern Michigan Hospital and Charlevoix Area Hospital. A total of 85 percent of all proceeds from the Pink Ribbon Ride remained in the local community, with the other 15 percent going to the national organization. Beginning this year, 100 percent of the proceeds will stay in our community and be shared by the two hospital foundations.

On site registration for the 65-mile route will begin at 7 a.m. the day of the event, with all other riders welcome to register and begin their routes from 7:30 to 9 a.m. Lunch is provided at the park for all participants at 12:30 p.m. Cost is $25 per rider. Children under 10 are free when accompanied by a registered participant.

Pre-registration and further information is available at www.bike4breastcancer.org.

Contributions may also be mailed to Bike4BreastCancer, P.O. Box 242, East Jordan, MI 49727.

Bike4BreastCancer is a national 501c3 nonprofit organization.

Sheriff's office offers Boater's Safety June 2

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office will be offering Boater's Safety classes from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. June 2 at Charlevoix Public Library.

Those who currently have an on-line boating safety certificate, must take a proctored test and receive a state honored boating safety certificate. The state only honors on-line course completed certificates that have been verified by a proctored Michigan exam. Proctored exam time is from 7-8 p.m. on July 9 at the Boyne City Middle School and 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. on July 16 at the East Jordan District Library.

The class is free-of-charge and pre-registration is not required. Minimum age for class attendance is 12. Students should bring date of birth information with them for registration purposes. Students receiving a satisfactory test grade will receive their Michigan Boating Safety Certificate at the conclusion of the course.

Completion of this class is mandatory for individuals born after Dec. 31, 1978 to operate a personal watercraft, for juveniles between the ages of 12 and 16 to operate a boat and for parents that allow their children between the ages of 12 and 14 to operate a personal watercraft. A parent must be riding with the child during operation.

For more information, call the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office Marine Division at (231) 547-4461 ext. 320.

Harbor Industries Inc. named Best and Brightest

For the third year in a row, Harbor Industries Inc. of Grand Haven and Charlevoix, has been honored as a recipient of the Michigan Business and Professional Association's (MBPA) West Michigan's 101 Best and Brightest Companies to Work For 2006 award.

This award program was created to recognize the renaissance and economic prosperity of our communities through innovative human resources practices and tools for human resources improvement. In addition, recognized honorees are those companies that demonstrate imagination and conviction to create organizational and business results through their policies and best practices in human resources and who acknowledge employees as their greatest asset.

Harbor Industries employees, including Cindy Parker Euscher, vice-president of sales services, Tim Parker, vice-president of operations, Kim Swidorski, director of human resources and Deb Rink, benefits manager, represented the company at the awards luncheon early this month.

Harbor Industries Inc. is a full-service manufacturer of point of purchase displays and store fixturing. Harbor Industries' corporate headquarters is in Grand Haven. Harbor operates a 280,000 square foot, state-of-the-art manufacturing facility in Charlevoix.

Fox's full throttle fund-raiser

On May 11 and 12 Fox Motors of Charlevoix hosted the first Fox Funds for Schools event. This new event was developed to help local schools with fund-raising. The students invited their friends and family to Fox Charlevoix to test drive new Chrysler and GM vehicles. Fox agreed to contribute $20 to Charlevoix High School for each test drive. The Daniel and Pamela DeVos foundation agreed to match the Fox Motors contribution. (Above) Pete Scholten brought his Spanish students in to work the event that raised $4,600 for the Charlevoix High School Spanish club.

Rayder track teams dominate again

Madeline Jeakle took second in the high jump event for Charlevoix May 10 at the East Jordan Invitational.

A dominating performance by Charlevoix's boys' track and field team culminated in a meet-record 3 minute, 30.31 second performance in the 1600-meter relay at the East Jordan Invitational on Thursday, May 10.

The Rayders finished with 134 points to win the 14-team event. Charlevoix also won the girls' meet with 107 points, securing a Rayder sweep.

The Charlevoix boys also won the 800-meter relay, and Darron Munson was a double winner, in the 400 and 200 meters.

In the boys' meet, Harbor Springs was fourth, Ellsworth, ninth; East Jordan, 10th; and Boyne City, 12th.

Charlevoix's girls' team had two individual winners: Ashley Pett won the discus and Alyssa Smith was first in the long jump.

Harbor Springs was fourth, Boyne City fifth, East Jordan seventh and Ellsworth 10th.

RAYDER BASEBALL GOLF CLASSIC SAYS "THANK YOU!"

The Charlevoix High School Rayder Baseball team would like to thank all the businesses and individuals that made this year's Rayder Baseball Golf Classic a big success. With their generosity, the 70 participants and the help of volunteers, helped raise nearly $5,000.00 to help defray the costs of field upkeep, equipment needs and travel expenses that are above and beyond the school's budget for the program.

A special thank you goes to the host of our event Antrim Dells. To Mike, Kathy and Patrick and the rest of the staff, thanks for all your help.

The Rayder Baseball team wishes to thank the following tee sponsors: Charlevoix Floral, Charlevoix State Bank, DCL, Dry Harbor Marina, Harbor Barber, J. Arnold Painting, Dr. Jay Balasz DDS, Kwikie Duplicating, Lakeshore Tire, Northern Utility Contractors, South Point Collision, Wojan Window and Door, Work N' Play Shop, Ton Inglis, Running Wise and Ford, Wilmot Electric, Fox Motors, St. Mary's Cement, Midwest International, Chee Peng Chinese Restaurant, Norb's Maintenance Service, Radio Shack of Charlevoix, Boyne City and Petoskey, Way Builders, Carlson's Home Improvements, Citizens Bank, Bosman's Mercantile, Bay Winds Federal Credit Union and Tom and Jeanne Rankl.

Also, we would like to thank the local businesses that contributed to our raffle and silent auction. They include; The Clothing Co., Bosman's Mercantile, The Sunglass Shoppe, Island Airways, Guiseppe's Italian Grille, Stover Creek Detailing, Complete Muffler and Auto Service, Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant, Edgewater Inn, ACE Hardware, Subway, Scovie's Gourmet, Scovie's Waterfront Grille, Paul Bunyan Lanes, Beaver Island Boat Co., Mary Ann's Take Out, Village Inn Pizza, Cinema III, Charlevoix Country Club, Marvin's Garden, Dairy Queen, Burger King, Friske Orchards, Traverse City Beach Bums, Sears, Momentum, Charlevoix Golf Club, Lakeshore Tire, Belvedere Golf Club, A-Ga-Ming, Antrim Dells, New Creations Hair Salon, Harbor View Café and South Side Gym.

Please patronize these businesses that give back not only to our event but also to many school and community programs. Without their support, many of these programs would not be possible.

We look forward to next year's event. If you would like any information on Rayder Baseball, go to www.rayderbaseball.com. GO RAYDERS!

Baseball wins four of six improving to 13-7 overall

Rayder baseball went four for six in three doubleheaders last week to improve their overall record to 13-7.

Play opened May 8 when Charlevoix split with Traverse City St. Francis winning the opener 5-2 and losing 11-10 in game two.

In game one, Chris Waha was the winning pitcher, with 12 strikeouts in six innings. On offense, Waha singled and hit a double while Michael Heckendorn had two hits and two RBIs. Other hits came from Cliff Jones, J.D. Speigl, R.J. Moore and Clayton Mitchell.

But things didn't go the Rayders' way in the second game.

"In game two, we thought that with a win we would be in a good position to win the conference. After we batted in the third, we led 10-2 and I think we got a bit complacent thinking we had the game wrapped up. St. Francis ended up scoring the winning run on a suicide squeeze in the bottom of the sixth," coach Allen Telgenhof said.

Charlevoix split with Gaylord two days later on May 10, falling in game one 11-2 and squeaking out a 7-6 win in game two. Cliff Jones was the winning pitcher with six strikeouts in six innings.

Charlevoix ended play sweeping Harbor Light on May 11.

In game one, Charlevoix scored two in the bottom of the sixth to pull out the 2-1 win. The winning run scored when Heckendorn squeeze bunted Cliff Jones home with one out.

In game two, Charlevoix came from behind again, trailing 3-0 after three-and-a-half innings scoring three in the fourth to tie and then scored one in the fifth for the 4-3 win. The lead run was scored by Alex Foster on a Jon Putman single.

The Rayders faced Boyne City on May 15, will face Sutton's Bay on May 17 and will compete in the Mt. Morris Invitational on May 19. Results from these games will be in next week's Courier.

Soccer drops first game of season to Suttons Bay

The Lady Rayder soccer team's winning streak was broken by Suttons Bay but the team rebounded from the loss with a shutout over rival Harbor Springs.

The Rayders ran into a tough opponent in dropping their first match of the season on Tuesday, May 8. Division 3 Sutton's Bay led by Alexi Korson's two second half breakaway goals continued their unbeaten streak. Sutton's Bay defeated Charlevoix 3-0.

Charlevoix had the better of the play in the first half, stopping Korson several times and out shooting Sutton's Bay 13-5. However, the Rayders couldn't find the back of the net. The Lady Norsemen had the shot advantage 8-7 in the second half and made their attempts count while their keeper played a stellar match.

The Rayders received strong midfield play from KC McCary, Zita Anderson and Becca Madison. Defensively, Emily Foster stopped Korson on several runs and Charlevoix keeper Tammy Potter earned Rayder Player of the Game honors for 13 saves, including several on breakaway attempts.

"This game is just what the doctor ordered for the Rayders, a chance to play a tough quality opponent in preparation for the district tournament. We learned a great deal tonight and know what we need to do to improve. We'll get another chance at Suttons Bay in the regular season finale on May 25," Charlevoix assistant coach, Tom Conlan, said.

Charlevoix followed the loss with a May 9 4-0 shutout over Lake Michigan Conference rival, Harbor Springs.

Charlevoix had 31 shots to two for the Rams.

Scoring for the Rayders were Lori Zimmerman (2), Meridith Rich and Olivia Catt.

On May 7, Charlevoix beat East Jordan 8-1. Goals went to Zita Anderson (2), Zimmerman, Ariel Ramsey, Catt, KC McCary, Bridget Peters and Madison Way.

The Rayders improved to 10-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference, 10-1 overall. Charlevoix traveled to Grayling on Monday. Results were not available by press time.

Tennis finishes fourth at conference tourney

Traverse City St. Francis won three flights and finished runner-up in three others Thursday, May 10 in winning the Lake Michigan Conference boys' tennis tournament at the Petoskey High School courts.

The Gladiators finished with 16 points, while Harbor Springs and Elk Rapids tied for second with 12 each. Charlevoix was fourth with 10, followed by Grayling, 3; and Boyne City, 1.

Harbor's Mike Asbury won at No. 4 singles, while Charlevoix's Trevor Mays and Justin Klooster won at No. 1 doubles, and teammates Brad Cyr and Kris Bartling won No. 2 doubles.

Also for the Rayders, Alex Molter and Colin McDonough were runners-up at No. 2 doubles, while Harbor's Todd Phillips was runner-up at No. 2 singles, as was Harbor's No. 1 doubles team of Kyle Anderson and Josh Pickering, and its No. 4 doubles team of Chad Cottrill and Patrick Berryer.

Charlevoix singles results: 1-Dan Swenor def. Andy Wymonn (G), 6-0, 6-0; fell to Aaron Mayes (ER), 6-1, 6-1; 2-Scott Olson (G) def. Ty Haske (C), 6-1, 6-4; 3-Dan Werth (ER) def. Weston Bryan (C), 6-4, 6-3; 4-Spencer Dean (G) def. Alex McKenzie (C), 7-6 (4), 6-4.

Charlevoix doubles results: 1-Justin Klooster-Trevor Mays (C) def. St. Francis, 7-5, 6-4; def. Kyle Anderson-John Pickering (HS), 2-6, 7-5, 6-4; 2-Brad Cyr-Kris Bartling (C) def. Boyne City, 6-4, 6-1; def. St. Francis, 1-6, 6-2, 6-4; 3-Alex Molter-Colin McDonough (C) def. Elliott Jackson-Sam Jackson (HS), 7-5-3-, 6-3; fell to St. Francis, 6-3, 6-4; 4-Kevin Greyerbiehl-Taylor Witthoeft (C) def. Boyne City, 6-0, 6-1; fell to St. Francis, 6-1, 6-1.

May is Stroke Prevention Awareness Month, a time to remind people that stroke is a major health threat.

FACTS ON STROKE: (SOURCE: AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION)

1. Every 45 seconds, someone in America has a stroke, 700,000 people every year.

2. Heart disease and stroke are the number one and three causes respectively of death in the United Sates.

3. Stroke is often preventable.

4. Heart disease and stroke don't just affect adults. The healthier you are now, the healthier you'll be when you're older.

WHAT ARE THE RISK FACTORS THAT YOU CAN CONTROL?

Smoking: If you smoke, resolve to quit. Smoking cigarettes puts you at much greater risk for having a stroke and is the single greatest cause of preventable death in the United States.

Secondhand smoke: Constant exposure to other people's tobacco smoke also increases your risk, even if you don't smoke.

Birth Control Pills: If you're a woman who uses birth control pills and you smoke, your risk is even higher. The bottom line is if you smoke, quit. When you stop smoking, no matter how long or how much you've smoked, your risk of stroke drops.

High Cholesterol: Know your numbers to know your risk. A simple blood test can show if your blood cholesterol level is desirable, borderline-high or high 200 mg/dl , which is the level at which the risk for heart disease and stroke starts to rise.

High Blood Pressure: Have your blood pressure checked each time you visit your doctor. High blood pressure is often called the "silent killer" because it has no symptoms.

Diabetes: Have your glucose levels checked regularly, especially if diabetes runs in your family.

Physical Inactivity: Get up and get moving. The U.S. Surgeon General recommends at least 30 minutes of physical activity on most, and preferable all, days of the week.

Regular physical activity helps reduce your risk of heart attack, heart disease and stroke.

Obesity: Obesity isn't an appearance issue, it's a health issue. Obesity is a major health problem for all Americans. If you're obese or overweight, you have a much higher risk of developing heart disease because excess weight puts a strain on your heart. You can often decrease your heart disease risk factors by losing as little as 10 to 20 pounds.

THE WARNING SIGNS OF STROKE

Call 9-1-1 immediately if you see or have one or more of these signs or symptoms.

1. Sudden numbness or weakness of the face, arm or leg, especially on one side of the body.

2. Sudden confusion, trouble speaking or understanding.

3. Sudden trouble seeing in one or both eyes.

4. Sudden trouble walking, dizziness, loss of balance or coordination.

5. Sudden severe headache with no known cause.

For this month of May, let's all learn how to prevent and overcome stroke.

Not just survive, but thrive, live stronger and longer for you, your family and the community.

Attend the following program and services at the Charlevoix Senior Center during the Month of May.

- 10 a.m. Thursday, May 17, Cholesterol, Blood Pressure and Stroke Talk
- 11:30 a.m. Monday, May 21, Let's Get Moving Northern Michigan Kickoff, a walking program for seniors in Charlevoix County.

For more information regarding health screenings for stroke prevention, call Jean McDonough at Charlevoix Area Hospital at (231) 547-4024 or Sue Cook at the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging office at (231) 237-0103.

Sue Bergmann RN, BSN is the director of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging. She can be contacted by calling (231) 237-0103.

Criminal charges not pursued in bus incident

KNIFE

File photo

(Left) While a knife discovered on a Charlevoix middle and high school bus route was not large enough to legally be deemed a dangerous weapon, school officials thought its presence serious enough to merit a student bus suspension.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office was called in to investigate.

Rob Scholey, deputy sheriff and school liaison officer, said the investigation found the freshman took out a 1.5 to 2 inch pocket knife during the afternoon ride home and showed a middle school student. The size of the blade is less than the 3.5 inch blade size that by law constitutes a dangerous weapon in a weapons free school zone and so no criminal law violation occurred.

Scholey also said the two students said no threat was involved. Scholey said in his four years as school liaison officer he has dealt with about one to two weapons complaints each year the majority of which carry no intent to harm.

"Obviously the sheriff's office and others are sensitive to these complaints with the world and the state it's in," he said.

While no criminal charges will be filed, the student's possession of the knife did break the school's weapons policy and Cooper and his staff initiated disciplinary action and precautionary measures.

"That (possession of a pocket knife) did in itself concern us enough," Cooper said. "The student did bring a knife to school and knows better. We don't want that activity taking place in our schools, on buses or anywhere else."

The student was indefinitely suspended pending the investigation by law enforcement and returned to school on May 10. Cooper also required the student's parents pursue a psychiatric evaluation of the child to ensure there exists no risk to the student or other children. The results were submitted May 10 and showed there to be no threat.

"It's really important to not only address the disciplinary issue, we need to find out if there's a more severe problem and eliminate the possibility of anything happening to another student," Cooper said.

Jason Spegele, a Charlevoix resident with a sixth-grade student attending Charlevoix Middle School and riding the bus route on which the incident occurred, said the incident calls into question whether middle and high school students should share a bus route. There are eight middle and high school bus routes, all of which are mixed with students from both buildings.

Cooper said he doesn't feel the Charlevoix school district has a problem with intermingling ages on buses.

"We aren't naive to bullying issues. But I can't say I've found it to be a problem in this district," he said.

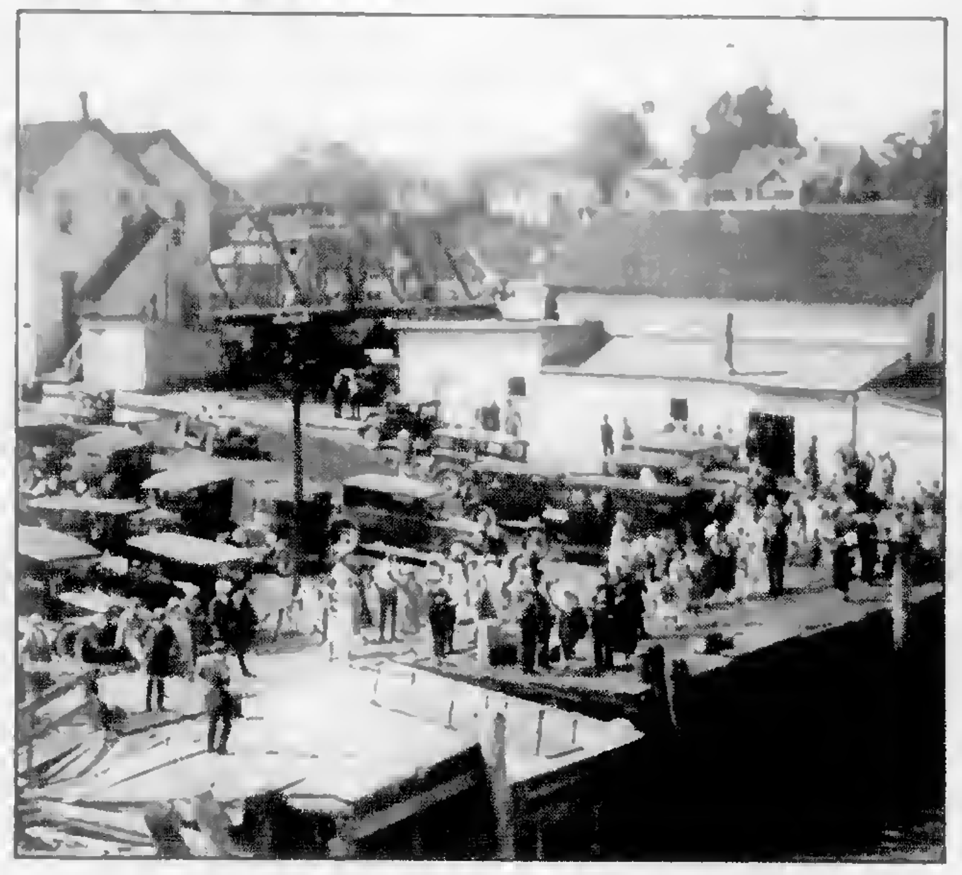
Marina FLASHBACK

In an effort to remind readers of how the East Park and municipal marina property have evolved, the Courier has teamed up with the Charlevoix Historical Society to bring readers a photo history of the property. This will run weekly in a "Then and Now" format with a picture from the past and the current construction schedule.

THEN...



(Left) By the end of the 1920s the Round Lake waterfront had deteriorated to the extent that only Wilbur's Dock, later the city dock, was maintained. Here, resorters and their automobiles gather on the dilapidated dock to begin their journeys home. It wasn't until the 1930s that the city finally realized something had to be done and obtained almost the entire western waterfront of Round Lake and began the renovation process.

NOW...

BACKGROUND

The $10 million East Park and marina renovation project is being tackled in three phases.

Phase 1 includes the seawall replacement, removal of the 17 existing piers, installation of new sheet pile running the length of the park 850-feet, and other miscellaneous work. Installation of the new docks, Phase 2, includes installation of a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220-feet into Round Lake at the furthest point. Phase three includes demolition of existing buildings and construction of the new performance pavilion and harbormaster's facility as well as site work, landscaping and underground excavation.

PROGRESS REPORT WEEK OF MAY 14:

Poured base of asphalt for marina overflow parking lot at the library.

The final storm outfall is being installed (southernmost outfall).

Continuing to install concrete anchors for floating dock.

Dock A and B anchored and attached to seawall.

Angle iron for the support of concrete promenade was installed.

Sanitary liftstation for performance pavillion was installed. (Phase Three)

Underground excavation work should continue this week. (Phase Three).

UPCOMING EVENTS WEEK OF MAY 21:

Safety ladders will be installed at the seawall.

Dock C will be anchored and attached.

Molon continues installation of steel cap on top of the seawall.

This report was generated by Pat Elliott, City of Charlevoix Street Department superintendent. If you have any questions, please contact Elliott at (231) 547-3276.

Athletes battle cancer

On May 20 Michelle Rick-Biddick, organizer of the Tri4Fun triathlon, led bicyclists into Charlevoix along the Little Traverse Wheelway. Over $7,000 was raised to benefit the Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders and the Circle of Strength. This year Tri4Fun doubled their participation in all three events, totaling 93 swimmers, bikers and runners.

Council competition calls for August primary

BY STEFANIE CARANO

First Ward Charlevoix city residents will be called to the polls early this election season.

Eight citizens have petitioned to run in Charlevoix's City Council elections. Because more three candidates are running in the city's First Ward, a primary election has been scheduled for Aug. 7. Candidates are Mary Eveleigh, Dennis Kusina and John McNabb. Current First Ward councilman Bob Timms did not file to run.

High school principal to retire

Gary Grundman

After nearly three-and-a-half decades of service to teachers and students in several districts across Michigan, school will soon be out for Charlevoix High School principal, Gary Grundman — for good.

Grundman recently took time out of his busy end-of-year schedule to speak with the Charlevoix Courier.

THE DECISION TO LEAVE

"It was a very difficult decision for me," he said. "I still really enjoy the kids and I think it's an honor to work with the staff. They're wonderful teachers and I still have the utmost respect for the parents in the community. Charlevoix is a wonderful place."

Following 12 years in Charlevoix Public Schools, Grundman officially retired last year but remained a contracted employee as a cost-cutting measure for the school.

What's next for outgoing Charlevoix High School principal Gary Grundman?

RETIRE

performance, but I chose not to exercise my option to (continue as principal)," he said.

HOW HE GOT HIS START

"My initial reason was that I really enjoyed coaching kids and I enjoyed athletics and I had a love for history," Grundman said. "I was an athlete. I played football, baseball and hockey, but my favorite was ice hockey and I played college football at CMU (Central Michigan University) but I always loved hockey the best."

The husband and father of two got his start as a teacher and football and baseball coach at Newaygo High School and then went on to take his first principalship at Harbor Beach High School in Harbor Beach. He then headed back to Allen Park High School in Allen Park where he grew up and attended school. Former Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Dr. John Sturock now works for Allen Park Public Schools.

"We grew up about five blocks apart from each other. He knew my older brother," Grundman said of Sturock.

WHAT HAS CHANGED OVER THE YEARS

"Some things are actually the same as when I went to school back in the (19)60s," he said. "I think the biggest change is the demands being placed on schools in so many different areas: Health, sex ed(ucation), wellness."

He added, "It seems like every two to three years there's another major force placed on schools to do more. Everybody wants to beat up education and I'll tell you right now we're doing, educationally, more than ever before and our students are achieving at a higher rate than ever before."

WHAT HE WILL MISS

"The kids — just the relationship you develop over four years with the kids, helping them with problems, sharing in their joys, successes and watching them grow from ninth-graders to young adults," he said. "I just really enjoy working with the kids."

THINGS HE WON'T MISS

"Paperwork. In the years I've been an administrator I've watched it go from being an annoyance to a nuisance to sometimes being overwhelmed by it," Grundman said. "That and testing. I think testing is great, but it's gotten out of hand. It takes too much time out of the instruction of the student."

WHAT HE WILL DO NOW

"I'd like to stay around education. I would love to teach at the college level," Grundman said. "My wife and I really love living here, but we do have some land in the Upper Peninsula that we've kind of dreamed would be a great place to build a retirement home. I'm looking forward to doing something else after 34 years."

But, he added, "I have no regrets, absolutely no regrets."

ADVICE FOR HIS REPLACEMENT

"Get ready to put in long hours and I hope they enjoy it as much as I enjoyed it," he said.

Grundman's secretary of five years, Cherie Helm, said she is sad to see him go.

"He's been a very great boss. He's always had the kids' best interests at heart, which has (sometimes) made him make unpopular decisions with parents," she said. "He has a good sense of humor and he's probably been the best boss to work for as far as his (temperament). He is easy-going, kindhearted and that would go to all his employees and mainly the students."

She added, "I'll miss his camaraderie and good luck in his ventures in the future."

GRUNDMAN'S LAST DAY IS JUNE 30

"I just want to thank the parents and the community for all their support over the 13 years — it's been great," he said. "Working with kids (has) been a joy. I think I've had one of the greatest jobs that I could have had."

Web site promises more interactive Courier

EDITORIAL

When Charles J. Strang, the son of King James J. Strang, leader of the Michigan Mormons based on Beaver Island, published the first edition of the Charlevoix Journal in June 1883, he wasn't thinking of reaching a global audience.

The paper has since changed hands 12 times and time has brought with it technological changes and demands from readers that Strang could have never fathomed.

We live in an age when people want information now and they want it not only in print but by video and podcast. The Charlevoix Courier has delivered a trusted weekly newspaper since Albert Schaller's reign when the signature Wednesday publication day was first introduced on March 10, 1965 and continues to the present.

Our goal remains to serve as a forum for better understanding of the Charlevoix community. Now is the time to continue to deliver that product and meet that goal with an information age edge.

This week the Courier launched a Web site at www.charlevoixcourier.com that should feel familiar to loyal readers but should also serve as an easier way to keep up with the steady stream of news that our vital community produces.

Our aim is to help readers make sense of Charlevoix by giving them a wider more diverse view of current news and connecting them to other readers.

We'll do that by posting breaking news as it happens to the site and offering online forums where site users can debate current affairs.

Readers will have the ability to:

- Monitor local and regional news.
- Participate in discussion forums.
- Contribute photos.
- Communicate with Courier reporters and the editor.

In many ways this next step is simply an extension of what Strang aimed to do in the late 1800s — deliver information to readers. But we are capable of doing it faster, on a broader spectrum, in an interactive format.

In print and online we will continue to emphasize relevant, reliable local news you can't get anywhere else.

Please explore the Charlevoix Courier's online features and write us at news@charlevoixcourier.com to share your thoughts.

A note from new Courier staff writer Stefanie Carano

STAFF WRITER

Stefanie Carano

I believe that every single experience in a person's life shapes who they are and what they believe. Some of these experiences make larger impressions on thoughts and ideas than others, but what every person presents to the world is made up of all their experiences, as intricate as their own cells.

My experiences include living in Alabama, Florida, Ohio, Detroit and Charlevoix. Living in a type of place where people have stopped caring about what happens in their community and become disengaged, when they turn a blind eye to things that can prove destructive, is part of why I wanted to write for the paper. I intend to help keep the community strong with the understanding that every event in Charlevoix impacts the daily experience of its citizens and determines the quality of life in the community.

Winter in Charlevoix is hard but it brings out a perseverance that continues into spring and summer that ensures the survival of local businesses and family farms. This experience has encouraged me to improve my health and my relations with my family and to pursue my passion for journalism. I'm happy to be writing for this community, always searching for truth and am committed to fair news.

Pumping up politics with cash

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

There is general public agreement about what is fair and right in sports. And performance enhancing drugs are not generally considered to be fair or right.

If there is serious evidence for the illegal use of performance enhancing drugs, then whatever achievements an athlete has reached may be taken from him. We are uncomfortable with the idea of a permanent sports record that is the result of unfair competition. We feel it is unfair competition if one of the competitors has had muscle or blood pumped up artificially and the other has not.

Maybe we could use those same ideas of fairness and rightness in other areas of human activity, like politics, for example.

The steroid of choice for politicians is money. It can pump up politicians and make them at least seem more powerful than they really are. With money it is possible to buy notice in the press and on television. The relationship of money to recognition is not perfect, but less money almost always means less notice for a candidate. For example, reporters do not follow a candidate who has low voter recognition. Any candidate with poll figures in single digits is not on anybody's radar screen or television screen.

By analogy to the problem of sports and performance enhancing drugs, competition between candidates with vastly differing amounts of monetary resources is unfair, possibly even not right. One candidate has been pumped up by the monetary resources available and the other has not. In strictly legal terms the Supreme Court has determined that to a considerable extent, money is speech. Which means that it is very difficult to withhold from any candidate money which is freely given to them, or legally acquired.

An increasing number of potential candidates for state or national public office are people of sufficient personal wealth to fund at least the beginning of a campaign. People without large personal fortunes or lacking very wealthy and generous friends are in a position of having to acquire funds from people who might sensibly expect something in return. It might be as little as continued easy access to the candidate when and if he or she is successful, or it could be the promise of specific votes. The disparity in available funds sounds like a fairness and rightness problem to me.

Could it possibly be fair for all candidates for any given office to have the same small amount of money to manage their campaign? It would be at least as fair as trying to insure that some baseball players don't pump themselves up with steroids while others do not or that some bikers don't artificially enhance their red blood cell count. Such an arrange-

LETTERS to the editor

LETTER RESPONSE

Editor:

In his letter of April 25, entitled "Mining accusations unfounded," Wayne Seger states that "I spent a short amount of time in pursuit of confirming the statements." Perhaps had he spent more time, he would have gotten his facts correct.

Seger mentions that I "motioned for one and voted favorably for two gravel pits in Norwood." The truth of the matter can be found in the minutes of the meetings.

In the case of Mr. Rosenthal, the Norwood Township Planning Commission heard a request on July 2, 2001 for a temporary permit to remove soil, sand, and topsoil to create a pond. Tom Mielke motioned and Mr. Payton seconded (Editor's note: Shea-Light supported).

In the case of Mr. Parsons, a request was made by Mr. Parsons on Sept. 5, 2002 for a temporary fill dirt permit which was motioned by Mr. Payton and seconded by Shea-Light.

All of this information is available in the minutes of the meetings.

Neither permit was for "gravel pits in Norwood Township." I did not make a motion in either case. Seger should get his facts in order before writing such a letter.

Marion Shea-Light
Norwood Township

NEIGHBORS UNITED

Editor:

Does it make any sense at all to have another mining operation (gravel pit) on little Ellsworth Road when there is already a strip mine and two other excavation pits on the two-mile stretch of the road? Of course it doesn't, and residents on the road are adamantly opposed to the idea.

These residents would have to put up with the irritating noise of the rock crushing and grinding from dawn to dusk, six days a week, dust from the rock crushing process which is hazardous to farmland and animals, and yes, humans. There's also a potential for accidents as the entrance/exit will be between two steep hills. Traffic coming over the hills will have gained momentum and will not be able to stop quickly enough to avoid collisions with the trucks loaded with tons of sand and gravel. I also see a threat to wildlife back in the woods and a decrease in people's property values.

Some residents believe, and rightly so, that adding another gravel pit and mining operation to the already existing ones is totally unacceptable. There is absolutely nothing positive to be gained for them if this happens. These folks who have dubbed themselves "Neighbors United," will not be shoved aside. They deserve to be heard. They will be heard.

We hope the powers that be, namely the South Arm Township Planning Commission, will listen very carefully and render a fair and compassionate decision in their favor. Right on "Neighbors United."

THANKS PANTRY SUPPORTERS

Editor:

Thank you to all the people of the Charlevoix area who put bags or boxes of food at their mailboxes this past Saturday, May 12, for the annual food collection by letter carriers. And thank you also to those same letter carriers who took time to pick up the food items as they made their regular postal deliveries.

This annual "Stamp Out Hunger" campaign by postal workers always results in a huge collection and re-stocking of our pantry shelves at a time of year when there are not many other food collections going on.

We are most grateful for the time and effort displayed by everyone who contributed in any way to this worthy cause. A special thanks to Kelly Morris from the post office, who promotes the collection, and to the youth of Safe Harbor Baptist Church. Under the direction of Dave Fowler, they sorted the food items at the pantry.

We appreciate all of you and your concern for the pantry.

BEST MAN FOR THE JOB

Editor:

Can you name five members of the Rayder girls' varsity basketball team? Five members of the boys' varsity basketball team? Five members of the Charlevoix Academic All-stars team? (Hint: The Academic All-stars never made it to the Courier.)

We have two final candidates for Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent. When asked about the two greatest challenges facing K-12 education today, Jan Quarless and Chet Janik agreed that they are finances and standards. Certainly the State of Michigan's economy threatens our current educational system. However, Quarless noted that standards are problematic because "students may not excel at certain subjects." Janik said "You can't let finances steer the ship. The last thing we do is cut the quality of education."

I wonder which of these two gentlemen is most likely to guide us toward economic recovery.

BRING ON A FABRIC STORE

Editor:

Yeah to Helen Johnson (who wrote a letter to the editor entitled "Give me somewhere to shop" published on page 5 of the May 9 edition of the Courier).

She took the time to write what I've been thinking for at least a year. We need, ideally, a JoAnn Fabrics. That way we would have crafts and fabrics all in one place. It is a pain to drive to Petoskey for decent thread and craft items and with the price of gas the cost is also becoming a factor. Don't start with the Wal-Mart issue either, their craft and fabric area is a disaster.

LIGHT AT M-66

Editor:

A light at M-66 would help prevent deaths. I picked this topic because there have been a couple of deaths and accidents there and it would be safer for kids to walk or ride across M-66.

For the walkers and the riders it would be a lot safer. The light would tell them when to go and when not to go. The light would also help prevent accidents and deaths.

Editor's note: This is the second in a series of letters submitted to the Courier for publication by sixth-grade students at Charlevoix Middle School. More letters will appear in future issues of the paper.

LETTERS POLICY

Readers are encouraged to write letters to the editor addressing pertinent topics of community interest. The Courier editor reserves the right to edit or reject letters for length, correct grammar, libel and content.

Letters to the editor must be signed by the author, and the name of the author will appear with published letters. Letters should only have one author, but we will accept up to three separate signatures on a letter. We do not publish unsigned letters.

Letters should be typed, double-spaced, and not exceed 450 words. The deadline for letters is noon the Friday before publication.

An address and daytime phone number should accompany the letter for verification purposes.

Send letters to: Charlevoix Courier, P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix, MI, 49720, fax to (231) 547-4992 or e-mail at news@charlevoixcourier.com.

count. Such an arrangement wouldn't be perfect, but at least there would be rules that everyone could understand, and the playing field would be more level than it is now.

One of my political heroes for decades has been Dick Clark, a long-ago candidate for the U.S. Senate from Iowa who, finding himself without serious financial resources, began his campaign by announcing that he was going to buy a good pair of hiking boots and walk across the state of Iowa, meeting potential voters on the way — no campaign bus, no airplanes rushing him from meeting to meeting — his only press conferences at the side of the road. This candidate was a Democrat, and in some of Iowa's 99 counties he was likely to be the only Democrat. Initially he didn't have a chance. But the media followed him daily and he was ultimately elected to the United States Senate. He found a way to do what was needed without enormous resources.

Maybe our problem isn't just that as citizens we would benefit from less money for campaigns. Maybe we could somehow stimulate or promote new ideas of how to manage a campaign with limited resources. That would be fine preparation for people who might be invested with the power to spend our money if they are elected.

St. Mary announces first Angel Scholars

Three Charlevoix High School students preparing to graduate with the class of 2007 who attended St. Mary School from Kindergarten through sixth-grade are the first to receive the St. Mary Angel Senior Scholarship.

Jacob Wimmer

Brecklind Golovich-Keie

Lauren Bradley

Jacob Wimmer, the son of Chris and Beckie Wimmer, Brecklind Golovich-Keie, daughter of James and Renée Keie, and Lauren Bradley, daughter of Linda and Buck Bradley, were all awarded $250 college scholarships. Each submitted an essay of no more than 250 words on how their experience at St. Mary School impacted their lives.

Essays were reviewed and the winners determined by a panel consisting of teachers, St. Mary School principal Keisha Veryser and Anne Kelly, a parishioner and former St. Mary School teacher.

Aside from attending St. Mary School scholarship eligibility also requires applicants to pursue a two or four-year program at a college, university or trade/technical program.

In fall 2007, Wimmer and Bradley will both attend the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor and Gölovich-Keie will attend Lake Forest College in Chicago, Ill.

Brecklind's mother, Renée Golovich-Keie, who is the Kindergarten teacher at St. Mary School, established the scholarship in conjunction with her fellow teachers at the school and St. Mary Church parish employees.

St. Mary School currently offers a preschool through sixth-grade program in which 76 students are enrolled.

For more information about the scholarship, contact St. Mary School at (231) 547-9441.

Ethel Knepp steps down as Hayes Township zoning administrator

Retirement celebration at 7 p.m., May 23

Ethel Knepp

After 25 years of service as Hayes Township zoning administrator, Ethel Knepp is retiring from that position at the end of the month.

Knepp's goal as administrator has always been to make zoning reasonable for everyone and administered in such a way that everyone can understand it. Her efforts in zoning are evidenced in her work with the Hayes Township Master Plan as well as the township's zoning ordinance.

"Ethel Knepp prides herself on being available and accessible to everyone. Township residents, builders and developers have come to rely on her leadership, honesty, forthrightness, knowledge and history," Hayes Township clerk, Marlene Golovich, said. "Her shoes will be very hard to fill."

Ethel plans on staying involved with the township as supervisor and a consultant to the new zoning administrator, Jonathan Scheel, who will assume his duties on June 1.

The Hayes Township Planning Commission will have a work meeting at 6 p.m. on May 23 at the Hayes Township Hall, located at 09195 Old U.S. 31. This will be Knepp's last planning commission meeting and will include a retirement celebration with cake and coffee at 7 p.m.

10 things you never knew about Gary Marvin

Bringing you closer to your neighbors ...

1. Why did you choose this line of work?

I grew up in the nursery business and when I left high school, this was the last thing I wanted to do. I got called back to the family business when my mom passed away and we've been in Charlevoix for 16 years.

2. What plant have you found most difficult to grow?

I would say probably redbud trees. They are popular in the south but they barely grow in our area. It's frustrating because every year I travel south and they grow wild on the roadsides — they're just gorgeous.

3. What really makes you mad?

I guess my pet peeve would be selfish people.

4. What's your favorite plant?

The more unique they are, the more character they have — I don't like things cut into square boxes.

5. What do you do for fun?

I enjoy spending time with my family — boating and we have a cottage we go to frequently. And I enjoy building/construction.

Husband and father of two, Gary Marvin, checks over one of his many rose plants at his nursery, Marvin's Garden Supply Inc.

6. What is your biggest vice?

Sweet stuff. I really like cake.

7. Where do you go for gardening advice?

I frequently go to my customers for advice. I have some good customers who live their life in their garden. They help keep me informed on what's hot and what's new.

8. What is your favorite food?

Fruit. I love fruit that is in season.

9. If you could meet anyone for an hour lunch, who would it be?

Jimmy Carter. He is somebody I think is a fascinating person.

10. What's something few people know about you?

That my wife doesn't work here. People always assume I'm married to one of the women who work in the store.

OBITUARIES

Donald Nesburg: March 22, 1919 - May 17, 2007

Donald P. Nesburg, 88, died at Charlevoix Area Hospital on Thursday, May 17 following a brief illness.

He was born March 22, 1919, in Muskegon. He attended Muskegon Public Schools and graduated from Muskegon High School in 1937.

He began his career in automotive parts sales and service at Muskegon Automotive NAPA. In 1962 he established White Lake Automotive NAPA and became an eminent figure in the field of automotive parts and service in the Whitehall-Montague area until his retirement in 1982.

Donald was a member of the White Lake Congregational Church where he served as congregation president. He was a 32nd degree past master of the Muskegon Noachite Lodge F & A.M. 507 and Scottish Rite. He served on the board of directors and was recognized as Noachite Lodge Mason of the Year 1996 and District Mason of the Year 1997. He was a member of the White Lake Chamber of Commerce and served a term as its president.

Donald is survived by his wife of 64 years, Norma; his son, Alan (Kathryn) of Oak Park, Ill.; three grandchildren, Kevin, Kara and Krissy; his son, Roger (Annette) of Charlevoix; four grandchildren, Michael, Daniel, Rachel and Natalie; his daughter, Janet (David) Powell of Phoenix, Ariz.; one nephew, Edwin; and other relatives and many friends.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by a sister, Buryle and a brother, Delbert.

Memorial services for Donald P. Nesburg will take place at 1 p.m. on Saturday, June 2, at White Lake Congregational Church, located at 1809 South Mears St. in Whitehall. Pastor Keith Koebel will officiate. Relatives and friends are welcome from 6 to 8 p.m. on Thursday, May 24 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

In lieu of flowers, memorial funds have been established in his name for White Lake Congregational Church and the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation.

Maxine Hough: July 17, 1922 - May 18, 2007

Maxine B. Hough, 84, died peacefully in the care of her family, Little Traverse Bay Hospice and her dear friend, Jan Rathbun, on May 18, at her home on Lake Charlevoix in East Jordan.

Her body has been cremated according to her wishes with arrangements by the Bellaire Chapel of the Mortensen Funeral Home. A memorial service celebrating her life took place on Tuesday, May 22. Rev. Peggy Nattermann conducted the services at Boyne City Episcopal Church of the Nativity and military services were performed by the Boyne City American Legion Post #228.

Maxine was a lifelong educator having worked as a teacher and administrator in several Michigan public schools. She was also a lecturer and consultant for school accreditation at the University of Michigan. While working in Ann Arbor she met Dr. Jack L. Hough, then chair of the University of Michigan Oceanography and Geology departments. They married in 1972. Together they retired, designed and built a double masted schooner, Tondeleyo, and sailed the Great Lakes and Atlantic coast. Following world travels and adventures they settled in East Jordan. Her husband preceded her in death in 1989.

Maxine served God and country in many capacities. She was an Air Force World War II veteran and member of the Boyne City American Legion Ernest Peterson Post #228 where she was presently serving as commander. She initiated the Troop Support program for area deployed troops serving in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Maxine was a strong advocate for environmental preservation and worked with the Lake Charlevoix Association and Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. Maxine enjoyed volunteering at Camp Quality where she served as lifeguard and also lifeguarded at the East Jordan Public Schools under the tutelage of Jamie Smith. She earned medals in swimming competition at the Senior Olympics at the state and national levels. She was a member of the Red Hat Society, Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel and the Episcopal Church of the Nativity.

Maxine is survived by her daughter, Sandi Larson-Wood; husband William J. Wood of Clare; granddaughters, Kristin (Tom) Marvin of Bent Mountain, Va. and Brinn Zaika of Mt. Pleasant; and grandson Les Leddick of Clare. Her great-grandchildren are Hannah and Sydney Marvin, Halie Leddick, Adriah Zaika and Kail James McQueen. Maxine also loved and enjoyed her stepchildren Barbara and John Locke of Alexandria, Va., Dr. Tony and Lynn Hough of Detroit, granddaughter Julie (Phil) Wojcik, grandsons Doug Locke, Jack (Alison) Hough and Robert (Vicki) Hough and great-grandchildren Ethan and Henry Wojcik, Sam Hough and Lauren Hough.

The family requests that in lieu of flowers, contributions be made to the charity of one's choice or to Camp Quality, Little Traverse Bay Hospice or Boyne City American Legion Post #228.

Charlevoix's American Legion has organized a series of events to take place on Memorial Day, May 28, in Charlevoix. Events include a parade, grave decoration, a presentation of the Gettysburg Address and a rifle-firing squad.

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

In honor of Memorial Day, Charlevoix's American Legion is looking for community participation in honoring those who have served in the Armed Forces.

"We've been trying to give veterans a little recognition," said American Legion president, Joe Seidel.

On May 28, the Legionnaires will begin a series of events that include a parade, grave decoration, a presentation of the Gettysburg Address and a rifle-firing squad.

The events begin at 9 a.m. with a wreath-laying ceremony at the Brookside Cemetery flag pole that includes a reading of the Gettysburg Address, then grave decorations at Brookside, St. Mary and Barnard cemeteries.

The Legion is seeking people to join in this year's parade, beginning at 10 a.m. on Bridge Street. Parade participants so far include the Charlevoix Rayder Marching Band, Friends of the Library - K9 Platoon, the Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts, the Marine Corps and Coast Guard. The participants will assemble at 9:30 a.m. on East Garfield Street.

Following the parade at the Charlevoix Public Library will be a second reading of the Gettysburg Address and a list of Charlevoix veterans who died in action. Soldiers buried in Charlevoix County's cemeteries range from those who served in the Civil War to the Iraq war.

Norwood Township residents will celebrate the life and service of Ethel Coeling, a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Army who died in 2002. The service will take place at 8:30 a.m. on May 28 at the Norwood Cemetery.

Parade entries should contact Joe Seidel at (231) 675-4444.

AAA: 1.1 million plan Memorial Day travel

According to a AAA Michigan survey, an estimated 1.1 million Michiganians will travel during the upcoming Memorial Day weekend.

A national survey conducted for AAA by the Travel Industry Association of America (TIA), found more Midwest travelers are opting to drive instead of fly this Memorial holiday, despite high gas prices.

"High gas prices and increased vacation costs won't deter Americans from traveling this Memorial Day," said Claire Lockley, vice-president of travel for The Auto Club Group (ACG). "Many families will travel closer to home, they will travel for fewer days and will save money by staying in less expensive hotels and eating in less expensive restaurants, but they will continue to take vacations and plan getaways."

As of May 14, the statewide average for self-serve, regular gasoline was $3.271. That average is 37.1 cents more per gallon than a year ago.

Travelers will get a bit of a break this year. AAA's Leisure Travel Index shows flights over the holiday weekend averaging 5 percent less this year than last year, with the average flight costing $166. Car rental rates are expected to fall 16 percent from last year, with renters paying an average of $31, almost $6 less than last year. Hotel rates, however, will be up about 13 percent from a year ago, with travelers spending an average of $174 per night at AAA 3 Diamond hotels.

The 78-hour Memorial Day weekend officially begins at 6 p.m., Friday, May 25 and ends at 11:59 p.m. on Monday, May 28. During Memorial Day weekend in 2006, 18 people were killed in 17 fatal crashes in Michigan, an increase from the 15 killed in 11 fatal crashes in 2005. Five of last year's victims were belted. Alcohol was a factor in one of the fatal crashes.

This year, Michigan law enforcement agencies will continue an ambitious program to strictly enforce safety belt laws.

For traffic and detour information, motorists can call 1-800-AAA-MICH (222-6424). Or, before leaving, check the AAA Michigan Web site, www.aaatraffic.com, for up-May 23d traffic information.

FOR MIDWEST RESIDENTS PLANNING A SUMMER VACATION, THE 10 MOST POPULAR DESTINATIONS ARE:

A look at Charlevoix Courier summer editorial staff changes

New bylines will appear on the pages of the Charlevoix Courier this summer.

Stefanie Carano

The Courier welcomes two writers, both with past experience at the paper. Stefanie Carano, a former summer intern, will be a staff writer from May 14 through the end of August.

"I hope to really grow as a writer and reporter, to develop copy editing skills and hopefully blend more and learn more about the community," Carano said.

She will assume Courier editor Julie Witthoeft's reporting beat which includes City of Charlevoix government, business coverage and breaking news as well as tackling special photo assignments. Witthoeft will be on maternity leave beginning in late May and extending through the end of June.

During the editor's leave, staff writer, Benjamin Gohs, who has worked at the paper for two years, will serve in her place.

Carano, the 29-year-old daughter of Jim and Nancy Carano of Norwood, is a Petoskey resident who in 2001 earned a bachelor of fine arts degree in creative writing from Bowling Green University in Ohio. She went on to study at Michigan State University in East Lansing from where in 2005 she earned a master of arts degree in journalism.

Her professional writing experience includes a year as staff writer for Wayne based Michigan Community Newspapers, a 2003 summer internship with the Courier and published freelance submissions with Michigan Nature Association, Northwest Business News and Media Savvy Inc. of Oregon.

Carano will also continue her position as communications manager for her father's financial services company, Meridian Advisory Services, located in downtown Charlevoix.

Her other interests include downhill skiing, hiking and cooking.

Also on board is former summer intern Gina Attee, the 20-year-old daughter of Keith and Karen Attee of Charlevoix.

Gina Attee

Attee will cover feature stories and photo opportunities as well as generating stories for the Courier's Venetian Festival guide.

She is hoping her summer writing position will help her further develop her resume.

Attee currently attends Grand Valley State University in Allendale where she majors in English language and literature and is working toward a minor in writing. She is scheduled to graduate in April 2008 and is a 2004 graduate of Northwest Academy.

Aside from writing, Attee's interests include music and sailing. She plays the French horn at Grand Valley and in the Charlevoix City Band. This spring, summer and fall she will again compete in the Charlevoix Yacht Club racing series aboard her father's 30-foot sailboat Hoi Polloi.

Is spent nuclear fuel safe under new watch?

STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

What's the issue? Concerns for Big Rock from anti-nuclear groups like 'Don't Waste Michigan' and 'Coalition for a Nuclear-Free Great Lakes' and the Michigan Environmental Council came after the recent resignation of William Clark, a former security guard at Palisades.

What does Entergy have to say? Entergy's spokesman, Mark Savage, said the Big Rock site is safe and will continue to be secure. All security personnel go through a rigorous hiring and monitoring process that is conducted by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The quality of security protecting the former Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant property in Charlevoix against terrorist attack has been questioned.

The nuclear waste site is currently owned by Entergy Inc. who in April Consumers Energy, the local utility provider that used to own the Big Rock Point property in Charlevoix's Hayes Township, paid $30 million to take over 107 acres of the Big Rock property where spent nuclear fuel is stored.

Entergy sites in Michigan include Big Rock and the Palisades Nuclear Power Plant near Covert. Concerns for Big Rock from anti nuclear groups and the Michigan Environmental Council came after the recent resignation of William Clark, a former security guard at Palisades.

"Even if Entergy looks OK on the books, nuclear is a very risky business," said James Clift, director of environmental policy for the Michigan Environmental Council. "If one of those plants were to have a major accident, the company could deteriorate."

Entergy's spokesman, Mark Savage, said the Big Rock site is safe and will continue to be secure.

"We keep up with the latest security technology and ensure the conditions are safe at all times," Savage said.

He said that all security personnel go through a rigorous hiring and monitoring process that is conducted by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission. He also said this is the same process that was used when hiring Clark.

"It is standard procedure," he said.

Groups including 'Don't Waste Michigan,' 'Coalition for a Nuclear-Free Great Lakes' and the Michigan Environmental Council question whether the Big Rock site will remain a safe and protected site where it is scheduled to remain for the next 10 years. Charlevoix's location on Lake Michigan is especially important to them.

"Those casks (eight, idle canisters containing used fuel) could be breached by terrorist attack and catastrophic amounts of harmful radioactivity could escape and contaminate Lake Michigan and fallout downwind," said Alice Hirt, communications manager of Holland-based Don't Waste Michigan.

The Entergy takeover of Consumer's Energy facilities was completed last month. The Entergy corporation consists of a series of divisions that run nuclear and electrical facilities primarily in the southern United States.

Recently, the Michigan Environmental Council has appealed to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for reconsideration of their intervention against the sale agreement between Consumers and Entergy. Michigan Environmental Council is focusing on the inadequate amount of decommissioning funds set aside to clean up the sites after cessation of reactor operations and high-level radioactive waste storage.

Media personality tackles island documentary

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Vic McCarty

Northern Michigan television and radio personality and journalist Vic McCarty recently finished shooting a documentary on America's Emerald Isle.

McCarty, who in 2005 founded his own video production company, MacMedia, said he stumhled across the project by accident.

"I'd been looking for different projects and I was looking at doing one on the Ironton Ferry for a little bit and then, while looking at their Web site, I saw Beaver Island and their history and uniqueness," he said. "I just kept looking into it and contacted the Chamber of Commerce (Beaver Island) and here we are a year later."

While Beaver Island is known for its huge St. Patrick's Day celebration, McCarty set out to show the full flavor of the affable archipelago

"A lot of people don't understand life on the Beaver is a little different," he said. "I've been shooting for over a year now and I just feel like I'm getting to know the island."

McCarty said he will now take the dozens of hours of footage he shot and wlll edit them into a 30-minute show.

"I started with the obvious and it's hard not to do the whole King Strang and the Mormons thing, but I found out that is a really small part of what Beaver Island is about," he said. "The Mormons were only on the island for four or five years and King Strang's kingdom was short-lived."

It was the rich Irish heritage which captured McCarty's interest.

"The heritage on the Island is so strong. Some families, five and six generations, date back to Ireland," he said. "They came directly from Arrain Mhor. There was a twinning ceremony several years ago."

McCarty said one of the challenges on this project was getting to know the locals and convincing them his intentions were above board.

"That was interesting because the folks on Beaver Island, and this is something I have talked about with many of them, say there is a real balance between wanting to attract attention and people coming over because tourism is a huge dynamic of their economy, but they don't want to ruin what they have," he said. "They do not want to become another Mackinaw Island and still they kind of look at me like, 'What are you ding doing here?'"

He added, "It's like a giant family on the island and I went through periods of acceptance with people wondering what I was up to."

Documentaries often require a crew of people working on video, sound, editing, marketing, writing and research hut McCarty decided to go it alone.

"Much like my broadcast TV career, I am the team — a one-man-band," he said. "Because I'm shooting and editing and doing everything on my own, it chews up a lot of time on the production side. This is a half-hour, which doesn't seem like much, but the production takes a while and I want to get it right."

After graduating from Pepperdine University, McCarty worked in Roswell, New Mexico, Los Angeles, Calif. and then Michigan.

McCarty's original intent was to air the documentary on PBS, hut has since decided to look into other venues.

"I want to do it on Charter (cable) though that's not for sure yet," he said. "And I want to produce a DVD that can he for sale."

Despite the large amount of time McCarty has spent on his video venture, he still finds time to host a two-hour radio show on WMKT News-Talk 1270 and freelance sports stories he called "nontraditional off the beaten path" for 9&10 News.

"After 20 years in TV newsrooms it's a nice fit for me. I like it because I'm still putting the same amount or more hours in hut I get to work on stuff I want to work on. I have clients to answer to but I'm pretty much carving my own way," he said. "It's busy, it's hectic seven days a week instead of five because my office is at home."

He added, "I'm sort of a vagabond, a hroadcast Bedouin. I was on the set for so long doing news and sports that I missed getting out and talking to people."

The veteran newsman could have retired as a TV anchor, hut chose instead to take the new career path of freelance journalism and video production.

"From a creative standpoint I've heen thinking about doing this for many, many years," he said. "Right now I'm finding out I'm running out of time in the day and there are other things I want to do as far as TV is still concerned."

McCarty said he could not have made his movie without the cooperation of the people of Beaver Island.

"The island chamber (of commerce) has been a huge help. I would be remiss if I didn't say thank you to the businesses and people on the island," he said. "They're great people over there. Everyone has heen terrific."

Garden Club to host plant sale May 26

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club will host its annual plant sale from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. May 26 at 807 Dixon Avenue. Featured in this year's sale are hundreds of locally grown perennials, some potted annuals, ferns, daylilies, garden gloves and trowels. Proceeds from the sale are used to fund maintenance and planting at the 11 civic gardens that are funded by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club. (Above) The sale brings in gardeners from across the area.

Community-wide petunia planting project is May 24

The 26th Annual Operation Petunia is scheduled for 5 p.m. on Thursday, May 24 along five miles of U.S. 31 from the municipal airport to Mercer Boulevard.

The volunteer group, who generally totals about 500 people, are asked to choose a location and start planting. Planters should dress for the weather, wear comfortable clothes, garden gloves and bring a trowel.

The yearly event will culminate in a picnic beginning at 6 p.m. in Bridge Park featuring hot dogs, chips, cookies and soft drinks.

It costs nearly $13,000 to purchase this year's petunia crop. The City of Charlevoix awarded the contract for weed pulling to the Charlevoix Band Boosters for $20 per person, per hour, not to exceed $16,000.

A record, a cause and a lawn mower

BY RYAN BENTLEY
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

A riding lawn mower may not be the fastest vehicle one could drive across the United States, but speed isn't Lou Ransom's top priority.

As the Fife Lake native steers a Dixie Chopper riding mower through the 48 contiguous states, he's aiming to break a world distance record for mower travel — and promoting awareness and support of two children's health charities.

Ransom, 48, stopped in Charlevoix and Petoskey on Wednesday May 16 while making his way north through Michigan.

Indiana-based Dixie Chopper became Ransom's sponsor for the trip, supplying him with a mower capable of traveling up to 17 mph. Since starting his journey March 12 in Portland, Maine, Ransom has passed through 14 states.

The current record for distance traveled on a mower is just shy of 15,000 miles. Ransom, who plans to spend no more than a year traveling on the mower, hopes to double that distance.

As a former truck driver, Ransom realized that he'd covered great distances within the United States, but missed much of the country's scenery. In recent years, he decided he'd like to take a more leisurely trip that brings him closer to sights like the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone National Park.

He toyed with the idea of a moped ride, but then thought about a lawn mower tour after noticing the long-distance entry in the Guinness Book of World Records. A friend who had run marathons for charity suggested the sponsorship approach.

Through his journey, Ransom is encouraging donations to The Children's Miracle Network and Shriners' Hospitals for Children.

Ransom, who noted that he's an ex-convict, hopes to make up for some of his past wrongs by assisting the health charities.

"I can't do away with my past, but maybe I can put a small dent in it," he said.

During his trip, he's spent some nights outdoors in the sleeping bag he carries. Occasionally, he's been given the opportunity to sleep in a home, barn or American Legion hall.

Ransom intends to visit some well-known attractions along the way — Tahquamenon Falls, the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone National Park, for example — but is also eager to seek out lesser-known sights.

Ransom is taking note of his unique experiences on the road, like the day he spent helping construct a bridge and the time he was awakened by a bull moose nudging at his sleeping bag.

With a slow-moving-vehicle sign affixed to the rear of his mower, Ransom said he's normally been allowed to operate the vehicle on roads. Officials in New Jersey and Massachusetts disagreed, however, and he was forced to trailer the mower through parts of those states.

Ransom hopes he can make arrangements to drive the mower across the Mackinac Bridge.

Long known by the nickname Travlndude, Ransom hopes he can conclude his journey in Washington, D.C. Noting that he's already been given some job offers during the trip, the mower rider said he's not yet sure what he'll do when the journey is over.

"One, I will have memories like nobody else has," Ransom said, "and two, I will have people all over the United States who are friends and possibly a job because of it."

Ryan Bentley can be contacted at (231) 439-9342, or rbentley@petoskeynews.com.

To help out

Louis Ransom has set up a Web site describing his lawn mower tour at www.the1bigride.com. It offers links to two charities — the Children's Miracle Network and Shriners' Hospitals for Children — which he's encouraging people to support.

Those who'd like to support these charities can also mail contributions to Children's Miracle Network, 4500 S. 2300 East, Salt Lake City, Utah, 84117 or to Shriners International Headquarters, 2900 Rocky Point Drive, Tampa, Fla. 33607. Ransom asks that contributors write "the1bigride.com" on the check's memo line.

The funds will provide 16 scholarships to lucky Camp McSauba campers this summer. Other scholarship funding for the upcoming season has come from Char-Em United Way and the Department of Human Services.

The City of Charlevoix Recreation Department's Camp McSauba will offer about 60 scholarships for upcoming camp sessions.

"Since we started the camp 31 years ago, our philosophy has been to provide an opportunity for all kids that need the camping experience to come to Camp McSauba," City of Charlevoix Recreation Director, Ike Boss said. "We don't want to turn anyone away that needs to go."

Of the available scholarships, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and CharEm United Way donated funding for 20 scholarships each and the Department of Human Services donated 14.

The camp started in 1975. The camp served about 520 campers in 2006. The goal is to reach the 560 camper capacity.

The eight-session camp, which is open to kids ages 5-13, starts June 18.

Camp sessions are scheduled to take place June 18-22, June 25-29, July 2-6, July 16-20, July 23-26, July 30 to Aug. 3 and Aug. 6-10. The camp runs from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. Monday through Wednesday and from 9 a.m. Thursday to 11:30 a.m. on Friday. Pre and post camp care is offered for $30 a week.

Each session is open to 70 campers, which equates to a maximum of 12 campers per counselor.

The weekly camper cost is $80. The July 2-6 and July 23-26 sessions are being offered at $65 per week as camp is closed July 4 and July 27.

Camp counselors this year will operate under Leslie Hoffman, camp director and a teacher at St. Mary School. Camp counselors are Adam Wood, Dan Sanchez, Amber Klooster, John Alpert, Erin Weston and Jessica Pettis. Meighen Havens is camp aid.

The camp experience teaches participants teamwork skills, gun safety and archery.

Camp McSauba is located on Charlevoix's north side off Mt. McSauba Road.

For information about the scholarship program, to donate, or to register a child for the camp, call Boss at (231) 547-3253.

MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS RELEASE

Terri Lynn Land, Michigan Secretary of State

May 22, 2007

Avoid bumps in the road when buying, selling cars

Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land today encouraged vehicle buyers and sellers to understand their rights and responsibilities before making a deal, and urged them to visit her agency's Web site for helpful information.

"Buying a new or used car can be exciting," Land said. "But it's also a significant financial investment. With spring and summer being busy times for car sales, it's good to keep some tips in mind. All parties can help ensure their satisfaction by knowing what to look for and what is required by law. Having the proper information is key."

The Department of State licenses and regulates auto dealers and repair shops.

It also informs consumers of their rights and investigates related complaints.

Its Web site at www.Michigan.gov/sos has several brochures that offer tips for buying or leasing vehicles, as well as doing business with an established dealer or a private individual.

Before buying a used vehicle the department recommends:

Test driving it and having it inspected by a mechanic.

Making sure that it has a title. A vehicle cannot be registered without one.

Don't agree to the sale if a title cannot be produced or there are discrepancies.

Also be certain that the owner named on the front of the title is the same person signing it.

If there is more than one owner or buyer, all parties must sign the title.

Matching the vehicle identification number (VIN) on the title with the number on the dashboard.

Checking the odometer's mileage accuracy.

Under state and federal law, the mileage for most vehicles must be provided when ownership transfers.

Vehicles that are 10 or more years old are exempt.

When doing business with an auto dealer, it's wise to ask questions and read all documents before signing.

It's also important to note that there is no "cooling off" period.

Some consumers mistakenly believe they can return a vehicle within a certain number of days after a contract is signed.

Remember that a vehicle being sold "as is" means just that.

In fact, most used vehicles are not under warranty for any period of time.

There also is no such thing as a verbal warranty.

Get any guarantees in writing, including promises of repairs to be made prior to the vehicle's sale.

Keep in mind that Michigan's "Lemon Law" for defective vehicles only pertains to new vehicles.

Used vehicles are not covered under Michigan's so-called "Lemon Law."

"The vast majority of Michigan auto dealers are conscientious professionals who work hard to serve their customers," Land said. "Still, consumers should take the time to fully understand what type of vehicle they're getting, all details of the warranty and financing obligations. Buying a car should be a positive experience."

If consumers do have a complaint, they should first try working it out with the dealership owner or manager.

If the problem isn't resolved, contact the Department of State's Bureau of Regulatory Services at (1-888) SOS-MICH (767-6424).

An automotive complaint form also is available online.

The bureau investigates issues within its authority.

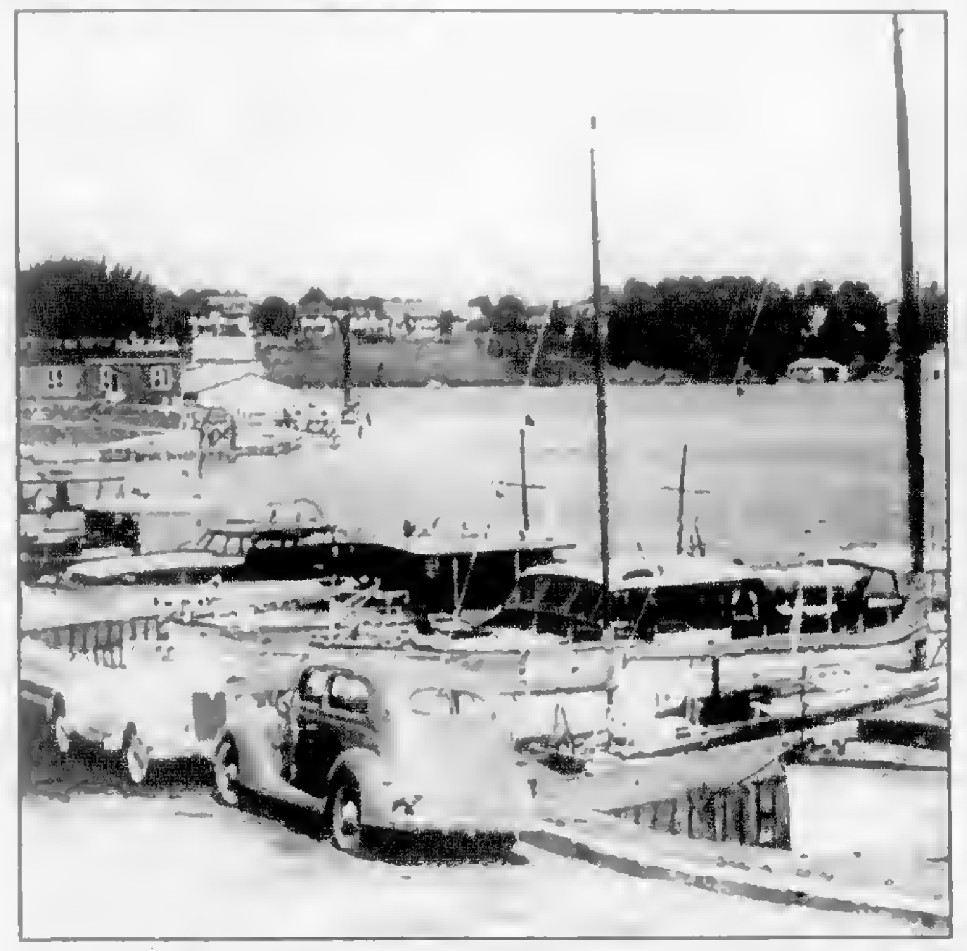
Marina FLASHBACK

In an effort to remind readers of how the East Park and municipal marina property have evolved, the Courier has teamed up with the Charlevoix Historical Society to bring readers a photo history of the property. This will run weekly in a "Then and Now" format with a picture from the past and the current construction schedule.

THEN...



(Left) One of the features of the new waterfront of the 1930s was a roadway that stretched from the base of Antrim Street and ran one block north to the base of Mason Street. Travelers used this road to reach Bridge Street. At first it was only a dirt road. Later it was paved with curbing and a grass strip installed next to the docks. Boat owners could park their cars right at their dock.

NOW...

BACKGROUND

The $10 million East Park and marina renovation project is being tackled in three phases.

Phase 1 includes the seawall replacement, removal of the 17 existing piers, installation of new sheet pile running the length of the park 850-feet, and other miscellaneous work. Installation of the new docks, Phase 2, includes installation of a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220-feet into Round Lake at the furthest point. Phase three includes demolition of existing buildings and construction of the new performance pavilion and harbormaster's facility as well as site work, landscaping and underground excavation.

PROGRESS REPORT WEEK OF MAY 23:

Dock A, B, C and D, including shopper's docks, have been installed.

Electrical for Phase II has started.

Underground storm drains have started to be installed.

UPCOMING EVENTS WEEK OF MAY 30:

Will start driving the H-pile, weather permitting.

Will continue to take deliveries for performance pavilion and harbor master building.

This report was generated by Pat Elliott, City of Charlevoix Street Department superintendent.

AmeriCorps volunteers cleanup local preserve

To celebrate the AmeriCorps Week with a "100 hours of Power" project, AmeriCorps members from the Charlevoix-Emmet County Intermediate School District put in a full day of volunteer work May 12 at the Charles A. Ransom Nature Preserve in Charlevoix.

To celebrate the AmeriCorps Week with a "100 hours of Power" project, AmeriCorps members from the Charlevoix-Emmet County Intermediate School District put in a full day of volunteer work May 12 at the Charles A. Ransom Nature Preserve in Charlevoix.

The service project resulted in many improvements to the 80-acre preserve that included clearing lake views, laying wood chips on a new trail, installing 140 feet of wood fencing, planting trees and grass seed, clearing trails, improving landscaping and removing old signs.

"It gives us a sense of pride that for years to come we will be able to return to Ransom Nature Preserve and see the fruits of our labor," said Matt Saunders, the local AmeriCorps coordinator.

Doug Fuller, director of stewardship for Little Traverse Conservancy which owns the preserve, added, "These tasks would have taken us several days to accomplish with our staff alone."

Commanding one of the most spectacular views in northern Michigan, the Ransom Preserve rises 320 feet above Lake Michigan. To locate Ransom Preserve from take U.S. 31 to Burgess Road. Then go three miles to Quarterline Road and turn left. Follow Quarterline until it dead ends into Maple Grove Road. Turn left on Maple Grove and continue about a mile to the parking lot at the end of the road.

Garden Club poster contest winners honored

Michigan Garden Clubs Inc. prize winners are first-grader Aaliah Pearsall (above) and third grader Turner Havens (left). Both are the first place winners in their respective grade levels in the Smokey Bear "Only You Can Prevent Wildfires" contest.

Charlevoix student artists received awards on Thursday, May 17 for their entries in this year's poster contests sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club at the annual Spring Tea.

Twelve students in first through fourth-grade were recognized for their poster work in the Smokey Bear/Woodsy Owl poster contest and 23 students in pre-Kindergarten through sixth-grade were commended for their entries in the National Garden Club's "My Garden of Many Colors" contest. The winning artwork was on display for an impressive crowd of parents, family and friends of the winning students.

Last fall garden club members presented the contest themes "My Garden of Many Colors" and Smokey Bear "Only You Can Prevent Wildfires"/Woodsy Owl "Lend a Hand – Care for the Land" to students in the art classrooms of Mary Beth McGraw at Charlevoix Elementary School and Lori Bolt at St. Mary School. Hundreds of students participated in the challenge. Club members met in November to determine the top local awards. First place posters advanced to the state competition where local students captured three first place awards. These posters have advanced to the regional level contest.

All first, second and third place winners in both contests were individually recognized by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club and presented with

Irish employees earn certified technician designation

Irish Boat Shop certified marine professionals Bill Brecheisen, Don Hicks, Brian Vandeyacht and Kirk Wilson recently earned the designation of master certified technician offered by the American Boat and Yacht Council.

American Boat and Yacht Council has been developing, writing and updating the safety standards for boat-building and repair in the United States for over 50 years.

This designation is for certified marine professionals who successfully pass at least three of the council's certification exams. American Boat and Yacht Council offers seven certification exams including electrical, diesel engines and support systems, gasoline engines and support systems, AC/refrigeration, composite boat building, marine corrosion and marine systems.

Michael Esposito, president of Irish Boat Shop, states, "We believe that enrolling our marine technicians in American Boat and Yacht Council's training programs increases the quality of our customer's boating experience. It takes commitment from our employees to advance their knowledge and successfully complete these training programs. We're proud of Bill, Don, Brian and Kirk's accomplishment."

Brecheisen, Hicks, Vandeyacht and Wilson have a combined 51 years of providing exceptional service for Irish Boat Shop customers.

For more information about Irish Boat Shop, call (231) 547-9967 or visit www.irishboatshop.com.

Charlevoix sweeps track and field crowns

Girls, boys teams advance to state finals on June 2

BY STEVE FOLEY
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

Good things often come in pairs.

For the Charlevoix High School track and field teams, dual Division III regional titles on Saturday, May 19 was not only a good thing, but a great accomplishment.

The Rayder boys held off a fast-charging Kingsley team to capture their third straight regional title at East Jordan's Boswell Stadium, while the Rayder girls won their first regional championship in convincing fashion in what turned out to be a perfect day after morning rain showers.

The Rayder boys had three first place finishes and scored at least a point in each event to finish with 133.5 points, while Kingsley was second with 112 and Kalkaska third with 71.

The Charlevoix girls had just one win, but like the boys, scored well in every event en route to finishing with 112. Benzie Central was second with 87.5, while Boyne City was third with 74 points.

Both teams will compete in the Division III state finals June 2 at Comstock Park. The top two finishers in each event at the relay qualify for the state meet, as do those athletes meeting or exceeding a pre-determined time, height or distance.

"The stress is finally over," said a relieved Charlevoix girls' coach Mary Plude. "I didn't think it would be that emotional, but when I saw those three senior girls (Emily Heffling, Brittney Lamb and Lindi Edger) and told them that they've won it, I realized just how important it was.

"They've (seniors) been working on this for four years, they've helped me build this team and they've reiterated it time and time again. They did what they had to do. They're just outstanding leaders."

Such was the case for the Rayder boys.

"Two years ago, we were just building into it and just getting the kids," Charlevoix boys coach Ken Plude said. "Now, it's a good senior group. Last year, I thought we hit our peak with that senior group and I really thought this year would be kind of a rebuilding year.

"However, the seniors went out and got some new kids, they got some good kids, they filled in some holes. Also, for me to do it three years in a row with my son (Scott) on the team, that makes it pretty special."

To also share a regional title with his wife for the first time was also a special feat for Ken Plude.

"To watch how Mary's been building that team and to see it come together, it was really special for me to watch," he said. "She's worked so hard for this and the kids really enjoyed it."

Mary Plude said she approached the regional just as she would any other meet.

"The girls performed just like they would at any other invitational," Plude said. "We accomplished our team and individual goals and didn't have to sacrifice anything. These girls are such an unselfish group, they're very determined and they just got down to work.

"To have both teams qualify really was a dream come true."

Charlevoix's Ashley Pett was the lone Rayder individual winner in the girls' meet as she took first in the discus.

The Rayders also took second in the 400, 1600 and 3200 relays. Alyssa Smith, Jessie Bills, Taylor Storm and Emily Heffling comprised the 400 relay; Storm, Katie Withrow, Ellise Smolenyak and Edger teamed up in the 1600 relay; and Lamb, Alina Dhaseleer, Withrow and Edger made up the 3200 relay.

Also for the Rayders, Dhaseleer qualified individually for both the 1600 and the 3200 by placing third in both events. Dhaseleer's time in the 3200 broke Liz Ulrich's Charlevoix school record.

Heffling qualified for state with third-place finishes in both the 100 and 300 hurdles.

Darron Munson paced the Rayder boys as he won both the 400 and the 200. He edged Lake City's Dean Wheeler in the 200 with a finish-line lunge.

Munson was also a member of the winning 1600 relay team that included Nate LaBlance, Scott Plude and Billy Roloff.

"Considering the long jump was in the afternoon, Darron had a great day, but I think it really affected his jumping," Ken Plude said. "I know he was disappointed in the long jump."

Also for the Rayders, Ray Jones finished second in both the shot put and discus, while Mitch Crandall was second in the high jump, and Scott Plude overcame a knee injury to place second in the 300 hurdles. Nick Wimmer, Jacob Wimmer, Roloff and LaBlance teamed up to place second in the 3200 relay.

In the pole vault, Charlevoix's Hunter Boss finished third, but qualified for state by surpassing the predetermined height.

"I thought we'd be pretty good, but with Scott (Plude) having his knee go bad last week, that was a concern," Ken Plude said. "Without him, it hurt us in some relays and sprint events, but Kingsley and Kalkaska had some injuries.

"They (Kingsley) were coming after us. Unfortunately for them, they didn't score in three key events, including one because of a disqualification. Last year, I thought we had a good team. This year we scored in all events and I don't think we've ever done that in a regional."

Rayder tennis miss state qualification by three points

The Charlevoix tennis team missed a showing at the state finals by three points.

At the May 17 regional meet Charlevoix placed fourth out of 12 teams.

"I was proud of the kids. We lost a lot of our practice time to the weather but we improved and finished strong," coach Erik Lundteigen said.

Individual results were:

- First, singles: Dan Swenor lost to Grayling 6-3, 6-1.
- Second, singles: Ty Haske beat Glen Lake 6-3, 6-2; lost to Traverse City St. Francis 6-3, 6-1.
- Third, singles: Weston Bryan beat Northport 6-3, 6-0; lost to Elk Rapids 6-3, 6-3.
- Fourth, singles: Alex McKenzie beat Grayling 6-0, 6-1; lost to Elk Rapids 6-4, 2-6, 6-2.
- First, doubles: Justin Klooster and Trevor Mays beat Manistee 6-4, 6-4; lost to Leelanau Schools 7-6, 4-6, 7-5.
- Second, doubles: Brad Cyr and Kris Bartling won the regionals in their flight. They beat Glen Lake 6-1, 6-1; beat Manistee 6-1, 6-2 and beat Traverse City St. Francis 6-4, 7-5. They finished the season 12-0.
- Third, doubles: Alex Molter and Collin McDonough were runner-up in their flight. They beat Northport 6-2, 6-2; beat Harbor Springs 6-3, 5-7, 7-6; and lost to Traverse City St. Francis 6-4, 6-0
- Fourth, doubles: Scotty Silberhorn and Kevin Greyerbiehl beat Leeland 6-2, 7-6; lost to Traverse City St. Francis 6-4, 6-2.

Soccer team scores 20 goals in three wins

The lady Rayder soccer team secured three wins last week in Lake Michigan Conference play to remain undefeated in the conference.

On May 18, Charlevoix beat Gaylord 4-2. The Blue Devils got on the board early going with a strong breeze when Bridget Schellie pounced on a rebound from Charlevoix keeper Tammy Potter. After that it was all Rayders as Charlevoix earned their thirteenth win of the season against a tough Division 2 opponent.

In the first half Charlevoix goals were scored by senior Lori Zimmerman on an assist from sophomore Meridith Rich and by Becca Madison.

Second half scoring came from Ariel Ramsey and Zimmerman.

On May 17 they beat Lake Michigan Conference opponent Kalkaska 8-0 to improve to 12-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

The Rayders received two goals apiece from senior Zita Anderson, junior Ariel Ramsey and sophomore Olivia Catt and single scores from Lori Zimmerman and KC McCary. Becca Madison assisted on four goals. Also picking up assists were Ramsey, Catt, McCary and Breanna Londgren.

Tammy Potter earned the shutout in the net. Ariel Ramsey was awarded Rayder Player of the Game honors.

The win followed an 8-0 victory over Grayling.

Charlevoix goals were scored by Emily Foster, Becca Madison (2), Ariel Ramsey (2), Caroline Dupuis, and Bridget Peters (2). Assists went to Madison, Ramsey (2), Catt, Marnie Greene, McCary and Madison Way (2). Tammy Potter earned the shutout in goal.

Freshman Caroline Dupuis earned the Rayder Player of the Game award for strong play.

The 10th ranked Rayders are now 13-1 overall, 12-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference. Charlevoix hosted Traverse City Liberty on Monday in a conference match. Results from that game were not available by press time.

4th annual Klooster tourney May 26 and 27 in Charlevoix

The 4th Annual Bob Klooster Memorial Invitational men's fast pitch softball tournament will begin May 26 at the City of Charlevoix baseball fields off West Carpenter.

The tournament is being sponsored by District 21 Softball.

Games begin at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, May 26 and continue into the evening. Play will resume at 9 a.m. Sunday morning, May 27, and will culminate with a championship game scheduled to take place at 5 p.m.

Klooster is one of two Michigan Amateur Softball Association Hall of Fame members from Charlevoix. The other is Leroy Buchanan as a manager. Klooster was an outstanding pitcher over a 33-year career from 1949 through 1982. He participated in five state championships including a Class C state championship with Ormsbee Motors from Cheboygan in 1963. He was also known for his outstanding hitting ability.

In 1981, Klooster was inducted into the Cheboygan Sports Hall of Fame and then in 1996, he was inducted into the Michigan Amateur Softball Association Hall of Fame.

Three contested city council ward seats

from Division Street between Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix south to the lower coast of Round Lake and a small portion of Hurlbut Avenue between Grant Street and State Street.

Competing for the Second Ward seat being vacated by Eugene Beer are Kim Vanmeter and Douglas (DJ) Way Jr. Vying for outgoing council member Shirley Gibson's Third Ward seat are Jill Picha and John Elzinga. City clerk Carol Ochs is currently running unopposed.

The general election to decide who will hold the clerk's and ward seats will take place Nov. 6.

The names on the November ballot won't necessarily reflect who will be clerk, or first, second and third ward council members. Write-in candidates can file their intention to run with Ochs, until 4 p.m. Oct. 26.

The city clerk and city council members are elected to two-year terms and there are no council term limits.

For more information, contact Ochs at (231) 547-3250 or stop by Charlevoix City Hall where write-in candidates can file, 210 State St.

FIRST WARD

Mary Eveleigh

Mary Eveleigh

Age: 54

Residence: Charlevoix resident since 1986

Occupation: Bookkeeper for Eveleigh Tile and Stone

Past political experience: Serves on the Zoning Board of Appeals

Why did you decide to run for city council or how do you think you can contribute?

Eveleigh: "I'm very much for the rights of people and for the protection of people and I like servicing people. I want people to feel like they can ask questions and that they're not stupid questions."

What do you hope to see in the new city manager?

Eveleigh: "I want someone that will look out for all of us as a whole."

Dennis Kusina

Dennis Kusina

Age: 58

Residence: Charlevoix resident since 1964

Occupation: Head of Kusina Farm Bureau Insurance Agency

Past political experience: Presently on the City of Charlevoix Planning Commission, has also served on the Downtown Development Authority

Why did you decide to run for city council or how do you think you can contribute?

Kusina: "I'd like to see people working together more. I'd like to see more communication between the council and the commissions. I see this as a natural progression from the planning commission."

What do you hope to see in the new city manager?

Kusina: "I hope to see somebody that is energetic and somebody that is a people-person."

John McNabb

John McNabb

Age: 49

Residence: Charlevoix resident since birth

Occupation: Industrial and Medical Gas Representative for Purity Cylinder Gas

Past political experience: Past campaign manager for candidates in Ann Arbor and Benzie County, director of the Commission on Youth for Benzie County for five years.

How do you think you can contribute to the city council?

McNabb: "I'd like to try to help bring more economic development and bring more things to serve youth in the community. I don't think we're doing as much in Charlevoix for our kids as our parents did for them. People need year-round jobs in Charlevoix and people that do live here year-round need to be entertained and taken care of."

What do you hope to see in the new city manager?

McNabb: "Someone who is focused on the year-round residences and the year-round businesses at least as much if not more than the summer residences and summer businesses."

SECOND WARD

Kim Vanmeter

Kim Vanmeter

Age: 42

Residence: Charlevoix resident since birth

Occupation: Realtor for Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors

Past political experience: Served on the City of Charlevoix Board of Review

Why did you decide to run for city council or how would you contribute?

Vanmeter: "I noticed this year there seems to be a lot of empty retail downtown and I don't see those filling right now with the uncertainty of the finishing of the park, but hopefully once that's done we can get businesses in there that will stay. I really want to get out and meet all the Second Ward people, find out what their plan is and go with that. I really want to get involved in the community."

What do you hope to see in the new city manager?

Vanmeter: "Someone with a lot of experience in dealing with a small, close-knit community rather than someone looking to run a big city."

Douglas Way Jr. (DJ Way)

Douglas Way Jr.

Age: 45

Residence: Charlevoix resident since birth

Occupation: Chief Financial Officer of Way Transportation

Past political experience: Way ran for former councilman Gabe Campbell's open Second Ward seat on city council in 2002. He faced Karen Campbell, Gabe's wife in the Nov. 5, 2002 election and lost by a small margin — the final tally was 193 to 183. That was the second time he ran for a second ward seat, he lost to incumbent Bill Bellows in November 2000.

Why did you decide to run for city council or how would you contribute?

Way: "I think everyone should serve the town in which they live, I feel like I can contribute with my input as to how to efficiently and responsibly aid the mayor and others in making sound financial decisions with respect to the people who live here."

What do you want to see in a new city manager?

Way: "I'd like to see a people-person, someone that equally meets the needs of the people and the city."

THIRD WARD

John Elzinga

Could not be reached by perss time.

Residence. Charlevoix resident for the past 10 years

Occupation: Retired farmer and fruit grower.

Past political experience: Spent 20 years as the Banks Township treasurer in Antrim County. He ran in a primary election for a Sixth District Charlevoix County Commissioner's seat in August 2002 against current commissioner Shirley Roloff and Richard Gillespie, a former commissioner. He took 141 votes, Roloff took 286 and Gillespie took 276.

Jill Picha

Age: 68

Jill Picha

Residence: Charlevoix resident since birth

Occupation: Housewife

Past political experience: Ran for Third Ward seat in 1995 against A.J. Witthoeft and lost by 11 votes.

Why did you decide to run for city council or how would you contribute?

Picha: "I had a few people approach me to run because I attend meetings all the time. I'm in all the meetings and I keep an eye on what's going on and if I feel that something's not for the people, I voice my opinion."

What do you hope to see in the new city manager?

Picha: "I'd like to see that the city runs as smoothly as it's been running in the last couple of months."

CITY CLERK

Carol Ochs

Age: 38

Carol Ochs

Residence: Born and raised in Charlevoix, spent time in Grand Rapids and returned to Charlevoix eight years ago.

Occupation/past political experience: City clerk for 2.5 terms

Why did you decide to run for city clerk again?

Ochs: "It's going to be a continuity issue. In the next year, we're going to have all new city council members. People will be settling down and getting to know the ropes."

What do you hope to see in the new city manager?

Ochs: "I hope he can find a way to bridge the gap between the staff here and council members that are inexperienced."

JUNE 2
BOATING SAFETY

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office will be offering Boater's Safety classes from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. June 2 at Charlevoix Public Library.

Those who currently have an on-line boating safety certificate, must take a proctored test and receive a state honored boating safety certificate. The state only honors on-line course completed certificates that have been verified by a proctored Michigan exam. Proctored exam time is from 7-8 p.m. on July 9 at the Boyne City Middle School and 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. on July 16 at the East Jordan District Library.

The class is free-of-charge and pre-registration is not required. Minimum age for class attendance is 12. Students should bring date of birth information with them for registration purposes. It is recommended that students eat prior to class or bring a small snack to class. Due to the short duration of the course, there will be no meal time. Students receiving a satisfactory test grade will receive their Michigan Boating Safety Certificate at the conclusion of the course.

Completion of this class is mandatory for individuals born after December 31, 1978 to operate a personal watercraft, for juveniles between the ages of 12 and 16 to operate a boat and for parents that allow their children between the ages of 12 and 14 to operate a personal watercraft. A parent must be riding with the child during operation.

For more information, call the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office Marine Division at (231) 547-4461 ext. 320.

JUNE 10

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Veterans march down Bridge Street to the Charlevoix Public Library in the Memorial Day parade. Hundreds attended the parade and ceremony.

Memorial Day marked in Charlevoix

Many battles were fought and many soldiers died since the first official Memorial Day observance shortly after that bloodiest of conflicts, the American Civil War, and for more than a century since, Americans have continued to gather each year in remembrance of those who sacrificed so much.

Veterans, the Rayder marching band, Boy and Girl Scouts and hundreds of onlookers attended the May 28 Memorial Day parade and subsequent ceremony outside the Charlevoix Public Library, which included a rifle-firing salute, the playing of "Taps" and a reading of the Gettysburg Address.

"It (Charlevoix's observance of Memorial Day) has progressively grown over the years to remember the people who are no longer with us and our friends and comrades who are somewhere

2 charged with 'doctor shopping'

Prosecutor says pair worked in 23 counties

A Conway man and a Sparta woman were recently charged in Charlevoix in connection with a far-reaching prescription drug ring.

Charlevoix County prosecuting attorney John Jarema said James Michael Rose and Heidi L. Endres were investigated earlier this winter for "doctor shopping," the practice of filling multiple prescriptions from more than one doctor for the same drug in a short period of time with the intent of stocking up on drugs which are later sold on the street.

Rose

Endres

"This case is unusual since it involves 23 counties. I don't believe another county has charged this type of crime under racketeering," Jarema said. "My office was willing to be the lead prosecution on this case because 'doctor shopping' is a huge problem with too many prescription pills ending up on the street."

Arrested on May 7, Endres

4 vie for manager's post

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix City Council members chose four possible candidates to fill the city manager position that was officially vacated in February.

Candidates were chosen from a list of approximately 40 people who applied for the position. In relation to this decision, they approved the extension of city treasurer Rick Brandi's contract as interim city manager until Jan. 15, 2008.

"I'll be bringing them up-to-May 30 as quick as possible," said Brandi. "We don't have an airport manager. I'll be trying to work with him on things like that."

3 candidates currently work in Michigan

MANAGER

Brandi's term will overlap that of the newly hired city manager.

Todd Campbell, Michael Mitchell, Robert Straebel and Dayle Walker will be invited to interviews for the position tentatively scheduled for June 15 and 16 during an open work session.

"There are four really good candidates that all have different styles and capabilities," said Brandi. "It should be a good choice no matter who they select."

At this time, the city council has no projected salary range for the new city manager.

By Jan. 15, 2008, Brandi will have earned $70,773 as both the city treasurer and city manager. This is an increase of $13,881 from his salary as city treasurer.

Former city manager Mike Wiesner's base salary was $86,684.

Brandi's current salary will continue while the new city manager begins his term.

Brandi is scheduled to get a two to three percent raise of his base pay of $57,392 on April 1, 2008, after he returns to his position as city treasurer.

Brandi's current figure is comparable to those of the city manager candidates whose salaries range from $59,995 to $82,648 and are all employed by municipalities.

Campbell is the assistant city manager, the Director of Community Development and runs the Doyle Community Center for the city of Sturgis.

Mitchell is the village manager for Jonesville.

Walker is the director of finance for the city of Cadillac.

Straebel, who currently resides in the Taos Valley, N.M., is the Taos Valley village administrator.

A professional committee led by Brandi, mayor Norman Carlson, Historical Preservation Committee member Mary Adams and Charlevoix State Bank president John Kurtz were chosen by Brandi and city police chief Gerard Doan to conduct interviews of the candidates.

The committee performed telephone interviews of all 40 applicants and from that list selected Campbell, Mitchell, Straebel and Walker.

"They did the best they could, we spent hours looking over their resumes," said Brandi.

This same list was reviewed and chosen by the city council last week.

"I think they're all qualified and all four would do a good job for Charlevoix," said Carlson.

The final decision will take place at a later meeting date.

"I think they're all qualified and all four would do a good job for Charlevoix."

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Free speech: Offensive, but not illegal

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

Since this country's inception a variety of our rulers have, from time to time, offended America's freedoms of expression.

John Adams' Sedition Act outlawed critical writing and speech against the U.S., a 1907 Supreme Court decision favored nationalism over property rights and free expression, in 2001 a reporter was interrogated by the Secret Service for writing an editorial asking Jesus Christ to smite George W. Bush and in 2006 a man was jailed for assault after telling Dick Cheney U.S. policy in Iraq was reprehensible.

While there have been numerous governmental freedom faux pas, the truth is we are blind to the true stewards of censorship — the American public.

Granted, our public servants make much better boogeymen, but it is our own cowardice which facilitates the further erosion of freedom: Every time we say, "there ought to be a law," apologize for expressing ourselves and use our right of expression to stifle someone else's views, we are guilty.

Somewhere along the line a great many people decided they have the right not to be offended. They took donations, formed groups and greased the palms of those who passed legislation on so-called hate speech and decency when all they needed do was ignore the insulting material thereby removing its power.

They started small by changing "manhole cover" to "person-hole cover," and "chairman" to "chairperson." Retarded people became mentally challenged and were then upgraded to cognitively impaired. I'm still white, but blacks are now African American regardless if they were born in Norwood or Sudan. And while I was born in America, I am not a native American, and I'm still not sure if it's polite to refer to Indians as Indians or a Native Americans.

In his book "Nigger: The Strange Career of a Troublesome Word," Randall Kennedy discusses the controversy over who can and cannot employ the so-called N-word. The idea that there exists a race-specific license on what words one can and cannot use is nearly as frightening as it is ridiculous.

As asinine as those who hate others based on race, religion or sexual preference are, they have every right to engage in free speech, even the hateful kind.

What I find delightful, though contradictory, is the disparity between epithets the PC Police will and won't allow. While I can get away with saying "Redneck, whitey, cracker, Canuck, pollock, flapdragon, frog, limey and Mohawk," no one would stand for me calling an Irishman a "mic" or an Italian a "wop."

Before you break out the "Death to Gohs" stationery, I'm not dropping slurs just for the heck of it. My job consists of words, language and the nuances therein. And few things terrify me more than being told I am barred from using certain aspects of the language simply because I may offend someone. If I cannot write or say *&%$ today, then what won't I be able to write or say tomorrow?

I'm not calling for people to start dropping F-bombs or N-words willy-nilly on newscasts or in magazines, but when a radio shock-jock loses his job for saying, "nappy-headed hos," political correctness has gone too far.

I doubt not for a second that Imus' poor word choice hurt some feelings, but if he would have made nasty comments about fat people, whites, Canadians or gays, he would today remain unscathed — this selective enforcement of an arbitrary and nonexistent law really must end.

New home sparkles with wood flooring

Kopitz

This column is part of a continuing series of columns about furnishing our new vacation home.

After finalizing the paperwork, we headed north to inspect our new vacation home in Charlevoix. Naturally, we wanted to sleep there as soon as we could, which to me, minimally, meant having mattresses, box springs and metal frames.

Our helpful real estate agent from Prudential, Loren Musilek, had not only directed us to Bartletts Furniture Store on North M-66 in Charlevoix, but he contacted the owner personally. Shortly, thereafter, I received an e-mail from Dee Lucas saying she would help me when I came in.

I called Dee on a Tuesday and said we would be there late Wednesday to select mattresses, box springs and frames. Of course, when I got there, I did what my clients always do, I asked, "How soon can we get delivery?"

Dee said, "We will try and have everything delivered at 9 a.m. Thursday morning." And amazingly, they did.

As we all know, there are many things of value besides just price which we have to consider when purchasing items for our homes. Many, including excellent service, can only be had from small business owners, like Bartletts Furniture Store.

When we arrived at our house in Charlevoix, I walked into the living area and realized that the existing beige Berber-looking carpeting, which I thought would work, at least for awhile — would be impossible for me to live with. It was just too busy and didn't go with my design scheme.

A wood floor seemed the most practical replacement. I explored the idea of wood laminate flooring for pricing reasons and I thought I would use it. However, I soon realized that the labor and the other details, such as moldings and floor preparation cost the same for laminate as for wood, so the price difference was not as drastic as I had imagined. Also the new floor would butt up against the existing real wood floor in the entry and I didn't think that would blend with the laminate. I decided to go with real wood even though I think wood laminate is a good product.

I ordered Mohawk wood flooring from Bartletts . I chose a light maple wood that had almost no variation in color. They installed quickly and promptly. (I gave them a key).

However, when I arrived at the house to inspect the finished product, the floor had a wide range of color variations. That was not what I ordered. I called Bartletts. Bruce Bartlett, the owner, came right over.

He agreed the floor was not like the sample and said he would take care of it. When I called a week or so later, I found out that new flooring had already arrived in town from Mohawk who also agreed the floor was not what was ordered. Bruce had made arrangements for the tear out and new installation. Honestly, I was not only amazed at how efficiently they handled the situation, but also the good-natured way he accepted the problem.

I've been in this business a long time and we all know that not everyone stands behind their products in the way that Bruce Bartlett did along with Mohawk wood flooring.

Let's remember the value of the personal touch, the extra mile, the individualized service that is typically only available from a personally-owned business. They have flexibility because of their manageable size. Each customer is important to them. Often the owner is on the premises and he or she can make the hard decisions quickly.

We all have local stores in our areas that want to be helpful and provide good service to their customers, in the same way that Bartletts does. We should patronize them.

was charged with racketeering, but pleaded to the lesser charge of attempted racketeering on Tuesday, May 22, in Charlevoix 90th District Court on one count of attempting to conduct a criminal enterprise for her role in the fraudulent purchase of prescription drugs in nearly two dozen counties over several months.

Endres faces a five-year felony and/or a $100,000 fine.

Rose, was originally charged with three counts including conducting a criminal enterprise, which is a 20-year, $100,000 felony; obtaining a controlled substance by fraud, which is a four-year, $33,000 felony and conspiracy to commit health care fraud, which is a 10-year, $50,000 felony. Additionally he was charged with habitual offender fourth degree which means count one and count three would become life offenses if convicted as charged.

In return for the lesser charge, Endres has agreed to testify against Rose during the preliminary examination which was scheduled for Tuesday, May 29, the results of which were not available before press time.

Chief assistant prosecutor Shaynee Fanara said Rose could face additional charges including fraudulent use of a financial transaction device, larceny in a building, a second racketeering charge and additional medical insurance fraud.

According to Michigan State Police trooper Jim E. Armstrong's affidavit of probable cause, he began investigating Rose and Endres in January after receiving information from the Northern Michigan Hospital pharmacy that Rose had, "obtained numerous prescriptions for Vicodin and in the pharmacist('s) opinion was doctor/pharmacy shopping."

Armstrong's affidavit alleges Rose and Endres used a doctor's prescription request form stolen from Kalkaska Family Practice to obtain drugs including hydrocodone from Feb. 27 through March 9 of this year.

On March 29, Armstrong stated, a fellow detective got a call from Endres' estranged husband who apparently received information claiming Endres, "had been a patient 19 times in different Northern Michigan emergency rooms in just the past three to four weeks."

On April 10, Armstrong found information in the Endres' medical insurance records that Endres, "went to Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey for controlled substance prescriptions on Jan. 28, Jan. 31, Feb. 6, Feb. 9 and Feb. 21," as well as a Jan. 19 visit to Quick Care in Petoskey.

Investigators from the Alpena post of the Michigan State Police then investigated both Rose and Endres for prescription fraud on March 30.

"(The investigator) confirmed that on March 27, 2007, Rose tried to fill a prescription at Neiman's Pharmacy in Alpena and they refused based on it being an invalid prescription. (The investigator) then check(ed) with Kmart pharmacy in Alpena and verified that Rose had just filled a prescription for Vicodin that day at 5:30 p.m.," Armstrong stated.

Armstrong also stated that on Jan. 22, Rose was issued and filled a prescription for hydrocodone at Central Drug Store in Charlevoix shortly after seeing a doctor at Petoskey Urgent Care.

Rose allegedly filled more than 24 prescriptions for hydrocodone in two months according to the Michigan Automated Prescription System, Armstrong stated.

Jarema said this type of behavior will not be tolerated in Charlevoix County.

"I have taken a tough stance on drugs in our community and I am committed to doing everything in my power to ensure that this community is safe for all its citizens," he said.

Neither Rose's or Endres' impending Charlevoix 33rd Circuit Court appearances were scheduled by press time.

acter, Henry Drummond, in "Inherit the Wind" said, "I don't swear for the hell of it. Language is a poor enough means of communication. We've got to use all the words we've got. Besides, there are damn few words anybody understands."

Following is a three-step emergency plan for those of you easily offended by free speech:

1. Stock up on tissue paper — Warning: Excessive weeping may require something more absorbent such as a beach towel or bedspread.

2. Do not turn off the radio nor close the offending book or newspaper — the side effects of doing so include personal responsibility and diminished indignation.

3. Punch yourself in the stomach, because you are a whiny little dork and frankly I don't have time to do it for you.

Repeat as necessary.

LETTERS to the editor

THEY WANT YOUR GUNS

Editor:

With the ongoing war on terrorism, the efforts of organizations who support the U.S. Constitution and the Second Amendment are now more important than at any time in the past.

In 2007, the anti-gunners launched an all-out assault on the rights of gun owners. Now that the anti-gunners control both houses of Congress, the "Brady Center to Eradicate the Private Ownership of Firearms" has made public their intent to push for a national gun ban. In fact, the gun banners are also working to ban ammunition as well.

In California they have banned .50-caliber firearms and many semi-automatic rifles and shotguns. Now they want to add more guns to the list and ban gun shows. In Washington, D.C. and other cities, it is illegal to have a loaded rifle or shotgun in your own home for self-defense. So when you are told that the anti-gunners don't want your rifles and shotguns, don't believe it.

The old adage If you don't learn from your history, you are destined to repeat it is a warning we must all heed. Hitler started by registering all the guns in Germany and then, to cause panic, he had the Reichstag (the building in Berlin where elected members of the republic met to conduct the daily business of the government) burned in order to justify martial law and gave Hitler a reason to confiscate all the guns leaving the populous unarmed, defenseless and prisoners in their own country.

This time the Hitler will be the New World Order and the United Nations plans to be the jailer with us all as its slaves or prisoners. Since this nation was founded, Americans have been warned to keep their government from growing too powerful. Benjamin Franklin's remarks seem to be more timely today than when he first uttered them: "Those who would give up essential liberty to purchase a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty or safety. Nor, are they likely to end up with either."

Ronald Reagan said, "Freedom is a fragile thing and is never more than one generation away from extinction."

When our Founders wrote the Bill of Rights, they didn't randomly number them. The first 10 amendments were placed in order of their importance. The First Amendment was the reason our country was established and the Second Amendment was to protect all our God-given rights. When our elected representatives vote against the Second Amendment, it indicates their fear of an armed populace suggesting intended wrong doing or treason on their part and who appear to support the U.N. and a New World Order. These are arrogant, self-serving and opportunistically motivated individuals who seek a place in the New World Order and will sacrifice everything we hold dear to achieve their goal. Never forget, the price of liberty is eternal vigilance. Duty Honor Country.

WE EXPORT, AND THEN WHAT COMES BACK?

Editor:

Globalization is the result of economic efficiency. Or is it? The United States is the number one exporter of wheat. Canada is the number three exporter of wheat. China is the number one importer of wheat. China exported contaminated wheat gluten into Canada that was then processed into pet food that was exported into the United States from Canada that was then marketed under a number of different brand names in the United States.

The United States is capable of producing wheat gluten from wheat and the United States processes beef, pork, turkey and chickens that could be processed into pet food directly, and perhaps with more safety.

DEATH OF A GOOD ONE

Editor:

I was truly saddened recently to learn of the passing away of Joe Kastanek of Schuyler, Neb., whom I had the honor of working with in the U.S. Air Force Strategic Air Command in the early 1960s in our capacity as Titan- II Missile Propellant Transfer System Maintenance Technicians keeping our Titan-II Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles combat ready for America's nuclear defense during the darkest days of the Cold War. I feel that his story is, like many other unsung veterans and Americans, the story of the true heroes of our time and country who stayed at their posts serving God, country and family until relieved of their earthly duty. I recall his competent, deliberate and quick action saving equipment and lives including my own in the dangerous work of handling hypergolic (self-igniting) missile propellants.

. Although reserved and unassuming himself, he left behind a true life legacy light-years greater than the modern ersatz heroes manufactured daily by our self-promoting media and politicians in today's world. His legacy is his successful life of courage and dedication to his God, country and noble family he had to leave behind to carry on until he sees them again someday. He is proof of the old truism: "There is no failure except in giving up"... and he never gave up.

We needed men like him back then and we need them now — they are the greatness of America. We should learn from his example of hard work, courage and dedication to his family and revere his memory, and the real monument he left behind: his family. As Americans we must do no less than carry on such a legacy and that of countless others who have faded in the mists of time falling on the obscure battlefields of war and life while building our great country. The soldiers, the fathers, the mothers, the families, who stayed true to their duty, even though they may have faltered, they are the true heroes of America and we must carry the torch of their sacrifices to the summit of their dreams of a safe and preserved America for all the ages. THANKS FOR WEB SITE

Editor:

Congratulations to the Charlevoix Courier owners and staff on the debut of the paper's online edition. The design is clean and eye-catching, and it was easy to navigate through the various sections of the paper. This is going to be great way to deliver sports guides and other materials of general interest to everyone in the community without incurring printing and mailing costs. It's also a great way to elicit the thoughts of citizens on important issues. Even the ads look good. Thanks, folks, for investing your time and money to make this happen.

Rainbow Shoppe celebrates 24 years

Who would have dreamed that this non-profit resale store would be ministering to the public for 24 years!

This is quite an accomplishment and we have the community to thank for our success. This was made possible through the donation of articles by the people, the patrons, volunteers, dedicated employees and our benefactors. It has enabled us to reach out to the needy and non-profit organizations of almost $2 million during these 24 years. Our most sincere thanks to each and everyone of you.

Come help us celebrate June 2 through 8 at the Rainbow Shoppe. Prizes will be offered.

All-school reunion set July 28

The Charlevoix High School Alumni Association will host an all-school reunion at the Charlevoix Public Library (formerly the Charlevoix elementary, middle, and high school) 2-5 p.m. Saturday, July 28.

All alumni are invited to stop by and see former classmates.

Tables will be arranged by decades and refreshments will be served.

The purpose of the alumni association is to provide communication among alumni of Charlevoix High School and support the scholarship and special projects fund at the Charlevoix schools.

The goals of the Charlevoix High School Alumni Association are to: Have at least 500 alumni join the association by 2008; fund one scholarship or special project for the Charlevoix schools each year starting in 2008; establish an alumni newsletter or Web site; plan and hold an all school reunion in the summer of 2007 during the Venetian Festival; and honor alumni by establishing an alumni hall of fame.

Window decals hearing the Rayder logo will be available at the reunion.

The cost to join the alumni association is $5.

Volunteers are needed to help with the set up, decorate, and welcome alumni for the reunion.

For more information, contact Sherrel Bergmann at 547-4457 or e-mail the association at rayderberg@aol.com.

The Alumni Association was started in the summer of 2006 by the class of 2005. Michael Wojan and Nathan Dube are the class presidents and Bergmann, class of 1965, is the adviser.

Interior designer and Detroit News columnist, Barbara Kopitz, is bringing her insight to the Courier's opinion page.

The first installment in a four-column series that will appear monthly on the Courier's opinion page can be found on page 4 of this week's edition.

Kopitz, an interior designer for the past 30 years who is known in the Detroit area as "Dr. Décor" and whose column has appeared weekly in the Detroit News/Free Press magazine Homestyle for almost seven years, is one of Charlevoix's newest residents.

In January 2006, she and her husband Bill Lichtig, whose primary residence is in West Bloomfield, bought a second home in the Charlevoix Country Club. While her latest home purchase is relatively recent, Kopitz's Charlevoix ties date back to her childhood when she spent summers in town.

"It's changed, but not hugely. It's still a small town. I can't think of anything more beautiful than Round Lake and Lake Michigan — it's still breathtaking," she said.

In writing, Kopitz draws from her decades of experience as owner of Barbara Kopitz Designs in Birmingham where she did client consultations and design specification.

She will write monthly for the Courier focusing on simple ideas to help people make their homes their haven.

"I really feel your surroundings have a great impact on how you feel. Your home should be your oasis. A happy place to be," she said. "I aim to help people create a beautiful environment that functions well for them."

Kopitz earned a bachelor of philosophy and a master of arts in interior architecture from Wayne State University. She is a professional member and former board member of the American Society of Interior Design and a former board member and past president of the Coalition for Interior Design Registration.

Aside from Homestyle, her work has appeared in numerous publications including Style Magazine, Home Planners and House and Garden.

She has three children and seven grandchildren. Her interests include gardening, hiking, tennis, kayaking and walking.

Boyne man arrested for arson of home

BY STEVE ZUCKER
PEOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Cambric

BOYNE CITY — Police say a woman who was living with a man accused of torching his own home last month told them the accused arsonist talked about burning down the home both before and after the incident.

Cordell Lester Cambric, 53, of Boyne City, was arraigned Wednesday on one count each of arson of a dwelling and arson of insured property. The charges are 20- and 10-year felonies respectively.

The charges stem from an April 22 fire that destroyed Cambric's home at 2082 Timber Ridge Trail. The home is in a private development that is just outside of Boyne City in Evangeline Township. Firefighters were called to a report of a fire in the area at about 11:15 p.m. and found the house was fully engulfed in flames when the they arrived on the scene.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office affidavit filed in the case, on May 18 a Michigan State Police fire investigator reported his findings that he believes the fire was intentionally set based upon the finding of gasoline on the home's ground-level south deck.

In the affidavit, police said during a May 17 interview the woman who had been living in the home with Cambric told investigators that Cambric had talked to her about burning the house on at least four occasions since December.

Police said the woman went on to say that during the second week of April, she felt that Cambric's statements were serious enough that she removed some of her belongings from the home and that Cambric had removed some of his own property from the home as well.

Police said the woman further said that when she learned of the fire the following day, she asked Cambric why he did it, he allegedly replied, "To make sure it was done right."

Police arrested Cambric on the charges late Tuesday.

Cambric also faces an habitual offender, fourth offense sentencing enhancement that would increase the maximum penalties on both charges to up to life in prison. Cambric's record includes felony convictions from the late '70s from downstate for burglary and selling cocaine and several controlled substance convictions from Charlevoix and Emmet counties in 2003. He was discharged from probation on those charges in March of 2006.

The court has appointed Charlevoix attorney Chris Turkleson to represent Cambric. When contacted by the News-Review late Wednesday, Turkleson said he had not yet had the opportunity to review the case or meet with his client. Cambric is scheduled to face a preliminary examination on the charges at 2:45 p.m. on Tuesday, June 5. He remains lodged at the Charlevoix County Jail in lieu of a $200,000 bond.

Kiwanis honors local pastors

In recognition of the first object of Kiwanis, "To give primacy to the human and spiritual rather than the material values of life," the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club honored local pastors.

The pastors were welcomed by President Dave Garland at the noon luncheon. The members of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club are very appreciative of the pastors' daily work which deepens and spreads the spiritual values that is the foundation of our community.

Steve Guthrie was the keynote speaker. He gave an inspired presentation on the difficulty that all pastors experience and encouragement to be true to their calling. The pastors in attendance were pastor Michael Maur of the Barnard, East Jordan, Norwood United Methodist church, pastor Mike Smith of the Ironton First Congregational Church, pastor Todd Thompson of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, pastor Dan Gilmore of the Church of the Nazarene, pastor "Chip" Sauer of the Community Reformed Church, pastor Mary Willis of the Charlevoix First Congregational Church, pastor Jim Mort of the First Baptist Church and pastor Pete Aronson of the Safe Harbor Baptist Church.

Charlevoix Pool sets annual meet

2007 Lake Charlevoix trout tourney moves to Ferry Beach

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

This year's Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament will take place June 8, 9 and 10 at Ferry Beach's Charlevoix boat launch, a change of location to Ferry Beach because of the renovations taking place at East Park.

Trout tournament committee member Dean Mikulski said one of the most proud events of the tournament will be the kid's trout pond.

"This event is very family-oriented," Mikulski said. "It's really more about people getting together and having a good time."

For $2, children can fish for rainbow trout. What they decide to do with the fish after that is up to them, Mikulski said.

Mikulski expects that most of the successful fishing this year for adults will take place on Lake Michigan rather than Lake Charlevoix or Round Lake.

"In Lake Charlevoix, trout are almost non-existent, there is a very small population of both brown and lake trout," he said.

But, he added, there was a generous catch off of Round Lake earlier this year.

The tournament award ceremony will begin at 1 p.m. Sunday, June 10, at Ferry Beach.

Cash prizes will be presented to the top 10 finishers in each division. The largest fish in each division will be mounted courtesy of Jeff Lutz of Lasting Memories Taxidermy.

A special trophy will also be awarded for the largest fish of the tournament caught on a Stinger Spoon, and the first place lake trout winner will be given the Rex Blanchard Memorial Trophy.

Last year's division winners were Christopher Mikulski for lake trout, Bill Mathers for steelhead, Joe Powell for brown trout and Matthew Mikulski for salmon.

Even if participants don't place in the top 10, other prizes will be awarded during a drawing at the end of the tournament.

For more information on the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament, visit the association's Web site at www.trouttournament.com or call 547-9054, 547-6805 or 330-0867.

Innovative teachers retire from Charlevoix's districts

BY STEFANIE CARANO
STAFF WRITER

With the end of the school year comes the retirement of teachers. This is the first installment of two on Charlevoix area educators and support staff who will be saying goodbye this year.

Laurie Keller, Elaine Kurtz and Ronald Moore recently sat down with the Charlevoix Courier to discuss their experiences in education.

Keller

A teacher at Charlevoix High School for 23 years, Keller has had a long love of mathematics. Her classes include algebra, calculus and mathematics II. Keller has observed the influence of technology on the mathematics students in her classroom.

"The students are better problem solvers," she said. "The logic, the order, the symmetry draws me to math."

Kurtz

In addition to her high school instruction, she was a technology trainer and workshop instructor at Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District (Char-Em ISD) for 10 years, introducing programs like Microsoft Word, Excel and Power Point to adults and teachers who didn't grow up with technology.

Her classroom instruction has also included computer programs at the high school.

"I'll miss being in the classroom, but I won't miss all the meetings and paperwork," she said.

Moore

Keller has two daughters, Heather and Kimberly, a granddaughter, Samantha, and a grandson, Jamie. Both of her daughters graduated from Charlevoix High School.

As a teaching assistant for the past 10 years, Elaine Kurtz has provided individualized reading and mathematics support for children enrolled in kindergarten through fourth-grade.

"When the kids come out of the classroom you can see where they need the help," said Kurtz. "So we do kind of personalize."

From a list given to her by teachers, Kurtz takes students out of the regular classroom to help them improve in reading or math.

On a typical day, for skills such as reading, a group of five or six children will follow a program provided by the Houghton-Mifflin company that includes phonics and take-home books.

During parent-teacher conferences, Kurtz also works with the parent or guardian of students she has in her groups.

"We give tips on reading strategies and emphasize that they need to read with their kids," she said.

What Kurtz enjoys the most and what she considers the most important part of her job is the recognition she gives her students at the end of the year. They are given a pizza party and certificates for all their hard work.

She will also miss her students and co-workers and will especially miss her time supervising the playground.

"Being on the playground in the middle of winter is a challenge," Kurtz said, "but it's nice to see the kids on a different level than in the structured classroom."

After retirement, Kurtz intends to spend retirement traveling with her husband and vis-

Teachers mark end of school year as start of retirement

iting her two grown children; her daughter, Amy, her son, Luther, and his wife, Alison.

Retiring teacher Ronald Moore started his career as a school psychologist for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District in 1970.

At the time of his hiring, his official title was school diagnostician and he primarily conducted testing and assessment for students who were suspected to be "mentally retarded," a condition now referred to as cognitively impaired.

As a greater number of neurological conditions came to be recognized, Moore's role expanded to serve a larger variety of children.

At the present, he has been faced with the issues of autism spectrum disorder (ASD).

"The big question is, is there an epidemic of ASD?" asks Moore. "I believe that first, the definition has expanded, and second, more people are being diagnosed as the public becomes more aware of it."

He has also treated children with emotional impairment and learning disabilities and said he has seen changes in the expectations of his students over the years.

"There's more demands on the kids now, such as standardized testing, MEAP scores," Moore said.

As a Char-Em ISD employee for 36 years, he's watched the district expand from 39 employees in 1970 to 250 employees at present.

There are currently eight school psychologists serving Char-Em ISD, up from three when he started.

Moore said he will miss his co-workers and students.

"I've started with some kids as preschoolers and later attended their high school graduation," he said. "I've been allowed a glimpse into their lives to understand why they're struggling and help them."

In addition to his work, Moore co-authored a column for five years that was published in the Petoskey News-Review titled "R & R For Parents" along with social worker Ron Svatora.

He served on the Charlevoix School Board of Education and is a volunteer for the Community Mediation Service, which he will continue to do after he retires.

Moore's wife, Linda, teaches at Charlevoix St. Mary's School and conducts reading interventions.

He has a son, Eric, and a daughter, Chaya, both graduates of Charlevoix High School.
